Canada, U.S. Drop Wheat Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States cut its export price of hard spring wheat another 13 cents a bushel Friday to meet a reduction made by Canada, a major competitor of this class of wheat in world markets.

In Winnipeg, Man., the Canadian Wheat Board Friday slashed the bulk of its export wheat prices seven to 13 cents a bushel.

It was the latest move in a series of cuts by the United States and Canada.

This makes a total reduction of 18 cents in the export price of this class of wheat since Monday, when price cutting began to sweep through world markets, reflecting a desire of major exporting countries to unload heavy supplies.

Foreign sales prices are determined by the Agriculture Department under an export subsidy program designed to keep American wheat competitive in world markets. Subsidies to exporters are necessary because the department's farm price support program holds domestic prices above rural price levels.

No change was made Friday in the export price of hard red winter wheat, which, however, already had been reduced 20 cents since Monday. Soft red white wheat at East and Gulf ports also had been reduced 18 cents since Monday and soft white wheat at West Coast ports

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Destruction of an Indonesian-inspired plot to promote armed revolution in Malaysia was announced by federal police Friday.

Three Malaysian political leaders who oppose Prime Minister Abdul Rahman's policies, were charged with conspiring to slip into Indonesia and set up a rebel government in exile as part of President Sukarno's campaign to crush this British-backed anti-Communist federation.

All three were arrested late Thursday, completing a round-up launched with four arrests Tuesday. The international security law permits indefinite detention without trial.

Police identified the accused politicians as Dr. Burhanuddin Al-Hemi, president of the Pan Malaysian Islamic party; Abdul Aziz Bin Ishak, president of the National Convention party; and

Midwest Freezes; Oregon Floods Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter staked out a vast subzero zone from northeastern Montana to New England on Friday and plastered part of it with one to four inches of new snow.

The surge of bitter cold, the worst of the winter in some sections, carried subzero temperatures as far south as northern Kentucky and a hard freeze into northern sections of the Deep South.

The most frigid temperatures were in the middle northern border states—41 below zero at Brainerd, Minn., 40 below at Valley City, N.D., and Hayward, Wis.

New snow fell from Montana across much of the Missouri Valley. Racing eastward, it was due to reach the Appalachian mountains by Saturday. One- to four-inch accumulations were reported at Omaha, Neb.; To-

Weather Here Windy, Warm

While tempestuous weather froze and flooded other parts of the nation, it treated the Pikes Peak region gently, but with wind.

It wasn't a bad day for the last part of January — the sun shone, the wind blew, no snow came, and the temperature moved up to 58 at about 12:40 p.m., stayed there until 3:30, and then tapered off gently to 50 at about 5.

By 7:45 p.m., the temperature was still up to 48, then a cooler wind swept through the city.

In 22 minutes, from 7:45 to 8:07, the mercury dropped 12 degrees, then levelled off there, at 36 degrees, before beginning a very slow descent to the low- or temperatures of the night.

The moisture total still is less than a quarter of an inch, which is about average for January. The U. S. Weather Bureau reports the total so far this year is .14 of an inch.

More of the same kind of weather is predicted for today.

House Bill Would Pay for Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill reintroduced in Congress Friday calls for payments for any upper Colorado River storage water used to offset downstream water and electric power deficiencies.

The bill, by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., is similar to one not acted upon by Congress last year.

It would authorize payments from the Colorado River development fund for any Upper Basin water used to offset deficiencies in Lower Colorado Basin states.

About $500,000 a year in power revenue from Boulder Canyon projects is deposited in the development fund, used for investigation and construction of projects in both Upper and Lower Basin states.

Allott criticized the Interior Department for opening gates at Glen Canyon Dam to make up for water shortages downstream last year. He called this misappropriation of Upper Basin water.

Tags Sold Over Counter Monday

Monday will be the first day license plates will be sold over the counter at the Motor Vehicle Department, but mailing of plates will continue throughout the year, Mrs. Harriet Beals, El Paso County clerk and recorder, said Friday.

Mrs. Beals said the deadline for using 1964 vehicle plates will be midnight, Feb. 28.

The sale of plates is running about parallel with the 1964 figures, she said. The Motor Vehicle Department has mailed a total of 43,927 plates, including 33,648 passenger licenses, 6,000 trucks plates, 1,175 mobile home licenses and 2,160 trailer plates.

The department also has ordered 118,635 plates for 1966 and they should arrive in April or May. A total of 110,285 plates were ordered for this year.

Floods unleashed by soaking rains and melting mountain snows made more than 1,000 persons homeless in the Pacific Northwest Friday.

Knee-deep snows belted Montana and artic blasts sent temperatures to 50 below zero in the upper Midwest.

Weathermen saw no immediate relief for flood besieged families in Oregon, Washington and Idaho or for suffering residents of the frozen midlands.

At least 1,000 persons were routed from their homes by runaway waters or threats of flooding in Oregon.

More than 40 persons were forced to higher ground when Lapwai Creek spilled into the little communities of Cuidesac and Sweetwater in Idaho. Other families fled from isolated homes along the Snohomish, Pilchuck and Snowqualmie Rivers in Washington.

Gov. Mark Hatfield called the situation in Oregon "dangerous" but both he and forecasters were optimistic that flooding would not be as widespread as last month when 18 persons lost their lives and nearly $250 million in property damage was done.

An estimated 400 persons left their homes in Salem, Ore., as the swollen Willamette River surged above flood stage from Corvallis to Portland. Earlier Hatfield said about 600 persons had been evacuated from lowland homes elsewhere in the state.

The governor reported that 200 families were isolated in the

LBJ Changes White House Way Of Reporting

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's stage direction has transformed the voice of the White House.

Two of his top Cabinet officers, both appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy, did much the same thing at the State Department and the Pentagon after they took office four years ago.

And the net result is a decline in the role of the wide-open, wide- ranging news conference as a method of telling the nation what is going on in the administration.

Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara are three officials who can command a national audience from the forum of a Washington news conference.

The President has altered the format and setting for White House news conferences, although he has had plenty. Rusk holds on-the-record conferences infrequently. And McNamara seldom calls one unless he has a major announcement to make.

Johnson largely has discarded the live broadcast news confer-

Compensation Bill Gets First Approval

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado House of Representatives gave preliminary approval Friday to a bill increasing the duration of benefits to workmen for disabilities caused by occupational diseases.

In most cases the period of benefits would be doubled. The bill is one of a series of workmen's compensation proposals resulting from the work of an interim commission named by Gov. John A. Love.

Work at Moonport To Resume

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Building and construction trades workers decided Friday night to end their two-day-old, construction-crippling strike at the nation's moonport.

They received assurance that their grievances would be heard by the President's Missile Sites Labor Commission.

Most of the 3,800 workers were expected to be back on the job Monday. Their stoppage completely tied up $201 million in top-priority space construction.

The controversy, fifth work stoppage here in a year, involves a 1963 contract with NASA signed with the Universal Marion Power & Shovel Co. of Marion, Ohio, to build two big transporters.

Under terms of the contract, Marion hires steelworkers to make the parts in the Ohio plant and then brings the same workers to the Cape to assemble them.

Jackson Negroes Call Off Mass Demonstration

By JAMES BONNEY

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negro leaders called off a mass demonstration Friday in response to state court orders and turned to other means to protest the killing of a Negro youth at the county jail.

The Negroes had wanted to march to the Hinds County courthouse to demand suspension of the five officers involved in the shooting of Ollie Shelby, 18. The demonstration was canceled on advice of attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Four state judges had banned the march on grounds it would interfere with the peace and dignity of the court and its proceedings. NAACP lawyers said a similar order had been upheld by the federal courts in 1963 and they urged the Negroes to comply.

Charles Evers NAACP field secretary in Mississippi, announced the cancellation, adding that Negroes would continue to press for suspension of the five officers pending completion of an investigation into the week-old killing.

Evers called for LeRoy Collins, director of the Federal Community Relations Service, to personally join in the inves-

Total of 93 AFA Cadets Have Quit During Probe

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Twenty-eight more cadets have resigned from the U.S. Air Force Academy, it was announced Friday, in the two-week investigation of cheating at examinations.

This brings to 93 the number who have resigned in the first scandal to strike the nation's newest service school. The investigation first was disclosed Jan. 19.

The official announcement did not go beyond the statement of the 28 additional resignations and spokesmen refused to enlarge on it.

Earlier, a report swept the academy that the 65 cadets who resigned earlier were directly connected with stolen examination papers.

Officials declined comment on the report, carried by the Denver Post in a copyright story.

Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert, in announcing last week that more than 100 cadets might be involved, told of a "well-organized group of 10 or 12 cadets" who stole examination papers and offered them for sale.

"The boys who have been before the board and who have resigned have been directly involved," the Post quoted a highly placed source at the academy.

None of the cadets has been identified by the academy and officials said they do not intend to release names.

Presidential Succession Bill Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chorus of bipartisan support arose Friday for swift congressional approval of a constitutional amendment to establish procedures for filling vice-presidential vacancies and insuring continuity of presidential leadership.

Its volume far exceeded dissents which included the expressed fear that the proposed presidential disability procedures might make possible a coup d'etat to unseat an unpopular president.

Foremost among favorable witnesses before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee were Nicholas Katzenbach, the newly designated attorney general; and Herbert Brownell, who filled that Cabinet post under President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Under examination in the public hearing was an amendment sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and 75 other senators. President Johnson in a special message Thursday endorsed the proposal and urged Congress "to act now without further delay."

Bayh, the subcommittee chairman, said after the close of the one-day hearing that his group will vote Monday on the amendment. Its approval by subcommittee, parent committee and Senate is considered a foregone conclusion. House committee hearings start Feb. 9.

To become effective, the amendment must be approved by two-thirds of the Senate and House and ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures.

In his message, Johnson also recommended the prompt ap-

New Orleans Dockers Okay Contract

United Press International

The huge Local 1419 of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) stamped final approval on a proposed dock workers contract Friday night.

The workers gave a ringing voice vote approval to follow the lead of ILA Local 1418, headed by Alfred Chittenden. It also voted unanimously in favor of the proposal. Another vote to ratify was held by a Mobile, Ala. local.

Friday night's approval left this port's 5,000 longshoremen free to return to work as soon as settlements are reached in other strikebound ports.

Chittenden said his unit ballotted 1,175 for and none against.

The contract provides an 80-cents increase in wages and fringe benefits. It was accepted by ILA and New Orleans Steamship Association negotiators Wednesday.

Chittenden described the contract as "wonderful." Clarence Henry, head of Local 1419, said it was "one of the best we ever signed.

Ratification at Mobile appeared certain.

Henry said the contract would mean about $175 a month more to each longshoremen.

Larry Keith Wolf who escaped from District Court Aug. 20 after he pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle, was sentenced Friday to the state reformatory for an indefinite period Friday.

Wolf, 20, Ft. Carson, turned himself in later to Kansas authorities and was brought back to El Paso County by Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan. He was then examined by Dr. Paul Draper and found to be legally sane.

The defendant then pleaded guilty to joyriding. Before passing sentence Judge David W. Enoch addressed the defendant saying "You realize your flight from the courthouse not only endangered your life but the lives of everyone else in the building?"

Wolf made muttered response, the only audible words being "Don't trust nobody."

A co-defendant, Ronald S. McIntosh, 19, Ft. Carson is scheduled to be sentenced Feb. 5.

Funeral Route For Churchill Passes History

By THOMAS A. REEDY

LONDON (AP) — The body of Winston Churchill leaves London Saturday over a route of his own choosing, past monuments of history he adored.

The wartime lion of England will be carried on a Royal Navy gun carriage from Westminster Hall to St. Paul's, then to the Tower of London, placed aboard a launch to sail up the Thames and thence to a railway station for the trip to Bladon and burial beside his parents.

This is what Sir Winston wanted and told his intimates long before he died.

The coffin leaves Westminster Hall on the gun carriage at 9:35 a.m. It will take the funeral procession an hour and 10 minutes to reach St. Paul's Cathedral, as the marchers pace at 65 strides to the minute. The regular marching pace is 120 to the minute.

Westminster and its history were Churchill's heart and blood. To the left is the Foreign Office, No. 10 Downing St., seat of prime ministers since Wal-

Ike, DeGaulle Make Call

LONDON (AP) — Two World War II generals — Dwight D. Eisenhower and Charles de Gaulle — paid a solemn, soldierly farewell visit Friday to the bier of an old comrade, Sir Winston Churchill.

The two wartime leaders, both now 74, each spent a few minutes in the vast, oak-beamed Westminster Hall, watching the slow but ceaseless march of mourners past the catafalque of the wartime leader.

Dressed in black overcoat and carrying a black homburg, Eisenhower walked into the hall through the great east door, stood for eight minutes, then bowed his head. He walked out into the raw London weather to a U.S. Embassy car.

People in the waiting queue recognized Eisenhower and waved. He waved back.

De Gaulle was driven to the hall directly from London Airport. Tall and stern and wearing his wartime brigadier general's uniform, the French president arrived only a few minutes after Eisenhower left.

He stood well back in the shadows of the huge doors, watching the stirring scene of affection in the hall. He stood in silence for a minute or two.

More than 250,000 persons had filed past the catafalque at 5 p.m. following the serpentine queue across the Thames for hours to reach it.

It was expected that the figure — a testimonial to the affection in which Churchill was held by his countrymen — would pass the 300,000 mark before the coffin is removed early Saturday for the state funeral in St. Paul's Cathedral. Officials said the total may exceed the 305,806 who paid tribute to King George VI in 1952.

Already at dusk, Londoners were taking up positions along the route of the funeral march with stools and camp chairs.

Mike Redfern, a medical student was one of the first. Nearby was Miss Elizabeth Whitehead, 20, who said simply: "If he had not been here during the war, I doubt whether I would be here."

Shopkeepers along the Strand and Fleet Street were boarding up their windows in expectation of an unprecedented crush of spectators.

The solemn, slow march from Westminster to St. Paul's, with Churchill's coffin resting on a green gun carriage drawn by 142 British sailors, will start at 9:45 a.m.

Troops lining the entire length of the funeral march — 3,000 of them — will be in position.

It would authorize payments from the Colorado River development fund for any Upper Basin water used to offset deficiencies in Lower Colorado Basin states.

About $500,000 a year in power revenue from Boulder Canyon projects is deposited in the development fund, used for investigation and construction of projects in both Upper and Lower Basin states.

Allott criticized the Interior Department for opening gates at Glen Canyon Dam to make up for water shortages downstream last year. He called this misappropriation of Upper Basin water.

Weather Here Windy, Warm

While tempestuous weather froze and flooded other parts of the nation, it treated the Pikes Peak region gently, but with wind.

It wasn't a bad day for the last part of January — the sun shone, the wind blew, no snow came, and the temperature moved up to 58 at about 12:40 p.m., stayed there until 3:30, and then tapered off gently to 50 at about 5.

By 7:45 p.m., the temperature was still up to 48, then a cooler wind swept through the city.

In 22 minutes, from 7:45 to 8:07, the mercury dropped 12 degrees, then levelled off there, at 36 degrees, before beginning a very slow descent to the low- or temperatures of the night.

The moisture total still is less than a quarter of an inch, which is about average for January. The U. S. Weather Bureau reports the total so far this year is .14 of an inch.

More of the same kind of weather is predicted for today.

Tags Sold Over Counter Monday

Monday will be the first day license plates will be sold over the counter at the Motor Vehicle Department, but mailing of plates will continue throughout the year, Mrs. Harriet Beals, El Paso County clerk and recorder, said Friday.

Mrs. Beals said the deadline for using 1964 vehicle plates will be midnight, Feb. 28.

The sale of plates is running about parallel with the 1964 figures, she said. The Motor Vehicle Department has mailed a total of 43,927 plates, including 33,048 passenger licenses, 6,000 trucks plates, 1,175 mobile home licenses and 2,169 trailer plates.

The department also has ordered 118,635 plates for 1966 and they should arrive in April or May. A total of 110,285 plates were ordered for this year.

Floods unleashed by soaking rains and melting mountain snows made more than 1,000 persons homeless in the Pacific Northwest Friday.

Knee-deep snows belted Montana and artic blasts sent temperatures to 50 below zero in the upper Midwest.

Weathermen saw no immediate relief for flood besieged families in Oregon, Washington and Idaho or for suffering residents of the frozen midlands.

At least 1,000 persons were routed from their homes by runaway waters or threats of flooding in Oregon.

More than 40 persons were forced to higher ground when Lapwai Creek spilled into the little communities of Cuidesac and Sweetwater in Idaho. Other families fled from isolated homes along the Snohomish, Pilchuck and Snowqualmie Rivers in Washington.

Gov. Mark Hatfield called the situation in Oregon "dangerous" but both he and forecasters were optimistic that flooding would not be as widespread as last month when 18 persons lost their lives and nearly $250 million in property damage was done.

An estimated 400 persons left their homes in Salem, Ore., as the swollen Willamette River surged above flood stage from Corvallis to Portland. Earlier Hatfield said about 600 persons had been evacuated from lowland homes elsewhere in the state.

The governor reported that 200 families were isolated in the COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — No more turnip greens will be served in the A&M Consolidated School cafeteria.

LBJ Changes White House Way Of Reporting

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's stage direction has transformed the voice of the White House.

Two of his top Cabinet officers, both appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy, did much the same thing at the State Department and the Pentagon after they took office four years ago.

And the net result is a decline in the role of the wide-open, wide- ranging news conference as a method of telling the nation what is going on in the administration.

Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara are three officials who can command a national audience from the forum of a Washington news conference.

The President has altered the format and setting for White House news conferences, although he has had plenty. Rusk holds on-the-record conferences infrequently. And McNamara seldom calls one unless he has a major announcement to make.

Johnson largely has discarded the live broadcast news confer-

Compensation Bill Gets First Approval

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado House of Representatives gave preliminary approval Friday to a bill increasing the duration of benefits to workmen for disabilities caused by occupational diseases.

In most cases the period of benefits would be doubled. The bill is one of a series of workmen's compensation proposals resulting from the work of an interim commission named by Gov. John A. Love.

Work at Moonport To Resume

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Building and construction trades workers decided Friday night to end their two-day-old, construction-crippling strike at the nation's moonport.

They received assurance that their grievances would be heard by the President's Missile Sites Labor Commission.

Most of the 3,800 workers were expected to be back on the job Monday. Their stoppage completely tied up $201 million in top-priority space construction.

The controversy, fifth work stoppage here in a year, involves a 1963 contract with NASA signed with the Universal Marion Power & Shovel Co. of Marion, Ohio, to build two big transporters.

Under terms of the contract, Marion hires steelworkers to make the parts in the Ohio plant and then brings the same workers to the Cape to assemble them.

Jackson Negroes Call Off Mass Demonstration

By JAMES BONNEY

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negro leaders called off a mass demonstration Friday in response to state court orders and turned to other means to protest the killing of a Negro youth at the county jail.

The Negroes had wanted to march to the Hinds County courthouse to demand suspension of the five officers involved in the shooting of Ollie Shelby, 18. The demonstration was canceled on advice of attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Four state judges had banned the march on grounds it would interfere with the peace and dignity of the court and its proceedings. NAACP lawyers said a similar order had been upheld by the federal courts in 1963 and they urged the Negroes to comply.

Charles Evers NAACP field secretary in Mississippi, announced the cancellation, adding that Negroes would continue to press for suspension of the five officers pending completion of an investigation into the week-old killing.

Evers called for LeRoy Collins, director of the Federal Community Relations Service, to personally join in the inves-

Total of 93 AFA Cadets Have Quit During Probe

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Twenty-eight more cadets have resigned from the U.S. Air Force Academy, it was announced Friday, in the two-week investigation of cheating at examinations.

This brings to 93 the number who have resigned in the first scandal to strike the nation's newest service school. The investigation first was disclosed Jan. 19.

The official announcement did not go beyond the statement of the 28 additional resignations and spokesmen refused to enlarge on it.

Earlier, a report swept the academy that the 65 cadets who resigned earlier were directly connected with stolen examination papers.

Officials declined comment on the report, carried by the Denver Post in a copyright story.

Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert, in announcing last week that more than 100 cadets might be involved, told of a "well-organized group of 10 or 12 cadets" who stole examination papers and offered them for sale.

"The boys who have been before the board and who have resigned have been directly involved," the Post quoted a highly placed source at the academy.

None of the cadets has been identified by the academy and officials said they do not intend to release names.

Presidential Succession Bill Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chorus of bipartisan support arose Friday for swift congressional approval of a constitutional amendment to establish procedures for filling vice-presidential vacancies and insuring continuity of presidential leadership.

Its volume far exceeded dissents which included the expressed fear that the proposed presidential disability procedures might make possible a coup d'etat to unseat an unpopular president.

Foremost among favorable witnesses before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee were Nicholas Katzenbach, the newly designated attorney general; and Herbert Brownell, who filled that Cabinet post under President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Under examination in the public hearing was an amendment sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and 75 other senators. President Johnson in a special message Thursday endorsed the proposal and urged Congress "to act now without further delay."

Bayh, the subcommittee chairman, said after the close of the one-day hearing that his group will vote Monday on the amendment. Its approval by subcommittee, parent committee and Senate is considered a foregone conclusion. House committee hearings start Feb. 9.

To become effective, the amendment must be approved by two-thirds of the Senate and House and ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures.

In his message, Johnson also recommended the prompt ap-

Wolf Given Indefinite Term

Larry Keith Wolf who escaped from District Court Aug. 20 after he pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle, was sentenced Friday to the state reformatory for an indefinite period Friday.

Wolf, 20, Ft. Carson, turned himself in later to Kansas authorities and was brought back to El Paso County by Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan. He was then examined by Dr. Paul Draper and found to be legally sane.

The defendant then pleaded guilty to joyriding. Before passing sentence Judge David W. Enoch addressed the defendant saying "You realize your flight from the courthouse not only endangered your life but the lives of everyone else in the building?"

Wolf made muttered response, the only audible words being "Don't trust nobody."

A co-defendant, Ronald S. McIntosh, 19, Ft. Carson is scheduled to be sentenced Feb. 5.

New Orleans Dockers Okay Contract

United Press International

The huge Local 1419 of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) stamped final approval on a proposed dock workers contract Friday night.

The workers gave a ringing voice vote approval to follow the lead of ILA Local 1418, headed by Alfred Chittenden. It also voted unanimously in favor of the proposal. Another vote to ratify was held by a Mobile, Ala. local.

Friday night's approval left this port's 5,000 longshoremen free to return to work as soon as settlements are reached in other strikebound ports.

Chittenden said his unit ballotted 1,175 for and none against.

The contract provides an 80-cents increase in wages and fringe benefits. It was accepted by ILA and New Orleans Steamship Association negotiators Wednesday.

Chittenden described the contract as "wonderful." Clarence Henry, head of Local 1419, said it was "one of the best we ever signed.

Ratification at Mobile appeared certain.

Henry said the contract would mean about $175 a month more to each longshoremen.

Funeral Route For Churchill Passes History

By THOMAS A. REEDY

LONDON (AP) — The body of Winston Churchill leaves London Saturday over a route of his own choosing, past monuments of history he adored.

The wartime lion of England will be carried on a Royal Navy gun carriage from Westminster Hall to St. Paul's, then to the Tower of London, placed aboard a launch to sail up the Thames and thence to a railway station for the trip to Bladon and burial beside his parents.

This is what Sir Winston wanted and told his intimates long before he died.

The coffin leaves Westminster Hall on the gun carriage at 9:35 a.m. It will take the funeral procession an hour and 10 minutes to reach St. Paul's Cathedral, as the marchers pace at 65 strides to the minute. The regular marching pace is 120 to the minute.

Westminster and its history were Churchill's heart and blood. To the left is the Foreign Office, No. 10 Downing St., seat of prime ministers since Wal-

Ike, DeGaulle Make Call

LONDON (AP) — Two World War II generals — Dwight D. Eisenhower and Charles de Gaulle — paid a solemn, soldierly farewell visit Friday to the bier of an old comrade, Sir Winston Churchill.

The two wartime leaders, both now 74, each spent a few minutes in the vast, oak-beamed Westminster Hall, watching the slow but ceaseless march of mourners past the catafalque of the wartime leader.

Dressed in black overcoat and carrying a black homburg, Eisenhower walked into the hall through the great east door, stood for eight minutes, then bowed his head. He walked out into the raw London weather to a U.S. Embassy car.

People in the waiting queue recognized Eisenhower and waved. He waved back.

De Gaulle was driven to the hall directly from London Airport. Tall and stern and wearing his wartime brigadier general's uniform, the French president arrived only a few minutes after Eisenhower left.

He stood well back in the shadows of the huge doors, watching the stirring scene of affection in the hall. He stood in silence for a minute or two.

More than 250,000 persons had filed past the catafalque at 5 p.m. following the serpentine queue across the Thames for hours to reach it.

It was expected that the figure — a testimonial to the affection in which Churchill was held by his countrymen — would pass the 300,000 mark before the coffin is removed early Saturday for the state funeral in St. Paul's Cathedral. Officials said the total may exceed the 305,806 who paid tribute to King George VI in 1952.

Already at dusk, Londoners were taking up positions along the route of the funeral march with stools and camp chairs.

Mike Redfern, a medical student was one of the first. Nearby was Miss Elizabeth Whitehead, 20, who said simply: "If he had not been here during the war, I doubt whether I would be here."

Shopkeepers along the Strand and Fleet Street were boarding up their windows in expectation of an unprecedented crush of spectators.

The solemn, slow march from Westminster to St. Paul's, with Churchill's coffin resting on a green gun carriage drawn by 142 British sailors, will start at 9:45 a.m.

Troops lining the entire length of the funeral march — 3,000 of them — will be in position.

Buddhist Leader Requests No U. S. Interference

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Thich Tri Quang was reported Friday to have laid it on the line to U.S. political officers — he wants Washington to keep hands off future Buddhist political campaigns.

Quang is the Buddhist leader whose eight-day hunger strike, with four other Saigon monks, built up pressure that led to the military ouster Wednesday of Tran Van Huong, the American-backed premier.

He met with the political officers in the first such conference between Americans and ranking Buddhists since the hierarchy started its final drive against Huong Jan. 28.

peka, Kan.; Billings, Mont., and St. Louis, Mo.

In the Far West, rain and snow blowing in from the Pacific continued to plague Washington, Oregon, Idaho and western Montana. More than nine inches of rain in three days swamped Newport on the Oregon coast.

Chicago's coldest morning of the winter, 6 below zero, struck just as Commonwealth Edison Co. restored service to the last of 250,000 customers blacked out by last Saturday's great ice storm.

A rodeo rider, Donald Gustafson, 27, froze to death on the bleak western North Dakota plains after his pickup truck stalled. He had walked half the five miles to shelter before collapsing in 20-below weather.

Five robins made a refueling stop in an Albany, N.Y., suburb and the Weather Bureau, in effect, said they were out of their minds. Although it was 7 below zero, Howard Cardell said he could positively identify as robins the feathered visitors at his feeding station.

The Weather Bureau in Chicago said some moderation of cold during the snow means nothing—a new surge of arctic air is expected in a day or so to reinforce the present cold.

In the rainy Pacific Northwest, flash floods and landslides were a continuing peril to life and property.

An elderly couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Mullins, were missing in a flood that hit their ranch home in the Cascade Mountains near Randle, Wash.

About 170 skiers and employes were marooned at Crystal Mountain resort in the Cascades 80 miles southeast of Seattle when slides and bridge washouts closed access roads. They have plenty of food, however, and are in no apparent danger.

Many Washington secondary roads were closed by floods or slides, and a few families were forced out of their homes.

In the Southwest and along the Gulf Coast, the weather was fair and mild.

proval of another amendment which would make it possible for voters to vote directly for candidates for president and vice president instead of for electors.

Legislation for this amendment has not been introduced yet, and early action on this suggestion seems unlikely.

The amendment now heading for probable early Senate action provides that when the office of vice president is vacant — as it was from November 1963 to January 1965 — the president shall nominate a man to fill it, subject to confirmation by a majority of both branches of Congress.

It provides also that when the president is incapacitated, the vice president shall take over with the approval of a majority of the Cabinet.

Should the president deny he is incapacitated, the vice president could assume the duties only with Cabinet sanction plus a two-thirds vote of approval by the Senate and House.

pole and Churchill's home on two occasions for nine years.

There is the Admiralty over which Sir Winston presided twice, in two world wars.

Up broad Whitehall the procession passed the Cenotaph. It is a 30-foot high column of marble to the unsung heroes of war and is inscribed "To the Glorious Dead."

Past it is the statue of Sir Walter Raleigh who introduced the tobacco which led to Churchill's personal symbol of identity, his cigar.

Behind Raleigh is the historic Banqueting House, built by Inigo Jones in 1622 with ceiling panels by Rubens. Winston knew its corridors.

The Horse Guards Parade will view an old friend going by. Scarlet-coated sentries on horseback have see Churchill whisk past countless times.

Staring down on all this is the skyline statue of Nelson on Trafalgar Square, surrounded by crouching brass lions.

From Nelson, the cavalcade passes into the Strand with its memories of the Savoy and Churchill's "Other Club," a group of his old friends whose dinners he attended faithfully.

Then it passed St. Clement Danes, the church now dedicated to the memory of "the few" — the Royal Air Force men who fought the Battle of Britain.

In the churchyard, peering down Fleet Street, stands a statue of the great Sam Johnson whose prose style was Churchill's model.

Into Fleet Street, home of the newspaper world, and past Temple Bar where the mile-square area of the original City of London starts. Over it presides a fierce copper griffon, symbol of defiance which many a British monarch had to learn to respect.

Up Ludgate Hill to towering St. Paul's where Nelson and Wellington rest. This is where Sir Winston wanted his final public obsequies. He made that clear 10 years ago when he was retiring as prime minister.

The trip from St. Paul's to the Tower is redolent of times past, when it meant no return for the benighted. The ancient Tower and its dungeons now house the crown jewels and receive tourists—but to Churchill it was the symbol of all his belief in monarchy.

Its own pier will receive his body at 12:45 p.m. and a motor launch will carry it up the river, a 15-minute voyage, while guns fire the last admiral's salute.

At Festival Pier, the coffin goes to Waterloo Station, aboard a train hauled by a 20-year-old steam engine named "Winston Churchill." It arrives at Bladon village outside the walls of Churchill's Blenheim Palace birthplace, at 3:30. Burial beside the graves of his father, Lord Randolph Churchill, and his American-born mother, Jennie Jerome, follows.

way. But American officials said they feel that, since the Buddhists have now had a major role in bringing down three governments, they are likely to try for more.

U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor called on Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh for their first conference since the Vietnamese strong man threw out Huong and seized power again.

Though they have been openly critical lately of each other's views on military intervention in governmental affairs, a U. S. mission spokesman said their relations were normal. They talked a little more than an hour.

Khanh also had a talk with political leaders of central Viet Nam, a stronghold of Buddhist power marked by continuing anti-American agitation. The little general, commander of the Vietnamese armed forces, has made it clear he now wants to keep in the good graces of the Buddhists.

His new acting premier, Harvard - educated Nguyen Xuan Oanh, ordered release of all persons arrested during the past week of demonstrations and riots except those suspected of being Viet Cong agents.

Saigon authorities, heeding this order, turned loose 79 Buddhist monks, 85 nuns, 132 students and 153 other persons. Among them were those picked up Jan. 22 when a mob smashed windows of the U.S. Information Agency library in widespread street fighting.

ence that marked the Kennedy years.

Five times during 14 months as President, Johnson has called news conferences in Washington with a day's advance notice. That was standard procedure under Kennedy and his predecessor, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It meant that experts in foreign policy, economic affairs and other fields swelled the turnout of newsmen, and fired many of the questions.

Kennedy held his news conferences in the big State Department auditorium. Johnson has gone there only once.

His standard setting is the oval office at the White House. A news conference there, called without advance notice, brings only the reporters who regularly cover the White House.

That means perhaps 50 to 60 newsmen instead of 300 or more.

All told, the White House says, Johnson has held 36 news conferences. That includes only those for which transcripts were made. Actually, there have been more, including the hike-and-talk sessions he has held with reporters on the grounds of the executive mansion, and other informal talks.

Privately, Johnson has said he wants Rusk and McNamara to meet newsmen more frequently. But both of these Cabinet officers have followed a pattern they set when they took office four years ago.

Elsewhere in the administration, news conference habits range from the handful a year policy of Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, to the regular sessions of Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and former Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

VA Changes To Save Money

DENVER (UPI) — C. F. Brickfield, chief of the Veterans Administration Department of benefits, said $176,700 would be saved yearly by the proposed transfer of operations of the Cheyenne VA regional office to Denver.

The official said 20 jobs would be declared surplus when the final move is made June 30. The surplus jobs will be offered to others within the VA.

Brickfield said 11 employes at the Cheyenne office would be moved to Denver. He said 14 would remain in Cheyenne with 11 moving over to the VA Hospital and three continuing personal services for Wyoming veterans.

The VA announced earlier this month that it would close down 14 hospitals and 17 regional offices in an economy cutback. Included among the hospitals scheduled for closing is the VA institution at Grand Junction.

the Foreign Office was under strain meeting the high dignitaries who poured into London to honor the great statesman who died last Sunday at 90.

Queen Elizabeth II ordered a state funeral for Churchill, which will rival any ever held in this ancient monarchy. Thursday night she showed the affection she feels for him by making a visit to the ancient hall where he is lying in state, a rare gesture by a British monarch.

Implicit in it was her recognition of Churchill's magnificent feat in marshalling the strength of Britain in an effort which saved the nation.

She will be the chief mourner at the funeral, with most of the royal family about her. From the decimated ranks of European royalty will come four kings, a queen and a number of princes, in addition to presidents, prime ministers and government leaders from 111 nations.

The queen received De Gaulle on a courtesy visit. Saturday she will be host at a Buckingham Palace luncheon for visiting kings and Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, heads of Commonwealth governments and the delegations of France, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Officers said Shelby attacked a policeman and tore off his shirt in an effort to grab a pistol. A deputy sheriff coming to the policeman's aid was hurled to the floor by the youth, authorities said.

Deputies said Shelby was beating the downed officer in the face when Deputy E. O. Sanderford fired a warning shot and then fired a second shot into the youth's head.

A coroner's jury ruled the shooting justifiable homicide.

Letter About VA Man Wrong Says Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. A. Willis Robertson,, D-Va., today attributed to a misunderstanding his recent letter saying W. J. Driver is resiging as administrator of veterans affairs.

Robertson said he had no information indicating that Driver, whose nomination is still pending in the Senate, has any plans to resign, as Robertson suggested in a letter to a constituent.

Driver, a VA career man is being moved up to the top post, denied Thursday night that he is stepping out.

"In the rush of handling my mail, I confused Mr. Driver with John S. Gleason Jr., who did resign recently," Robertson said.

The letter went to Thomas J. Gear of Hampton,, Va., commander of Post 48, American Legion,, in connection with protests from veterans groups and others over VA orders for closure of a number of veterans hospitals and other facilities.

Robertson wrote Gear that the Senate will inquire into the closings, adding, "Incidentally, Mr. Driver, who issued this order, has resigned and it is my understanding that his successor will take another look at what is involved."

Billie Sol Loses Court Maneuver

DALLAS (AP)—Billie Sol Estes, whose towering financial empire crashed with his arrest three years ago, lost a bid today to have an indictment thrown out.

The effort to erase the indictment came during a pre-trial hearing on charges that Estes, 40, lied to the government about the extent of his debts.

The case is before the court of U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes. Estes was brought to Dallas from El Paso Thursday.

U.S. Atty. Barefoot Sanders defended the indictment, which was returned by a Dallas federal grand jury Aug. 10, 1962. The case has been set for trial March 1.

The indictment charges Estes made false statements to the Commodity Credit Corp. about his financial matters in order to secure contracts to store government grain.

It says Estes swore he had liabilities Nov. 30, 1961, of $8.8 million, whereas they were $11.3 million; as of June 30, 1961, of $7.9 million, whereas they were $12 million; and as of April 3, 1961, of $6.3 million, whereas they were $10.4 million.

Two of the counts refer to sworn statements Estes made doing business as United Elevators, Plainview, Tex.

The former West Texas promoter went to jail in El Paso Jan. 19 after the Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of his 15-year sentence for mail fraud.

Democrats Want Money Estimates From Love

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — The Democratic minority in the Colorado Senate called Friday for estimates of state revenues and expenditures for the next five years.

The Democrats announced after a caucus that the long range figures are essential so the party can work out a position on tax measures.

"You can't run a business a year at a time," said Sen. Roy Romer, D-Denver, assistant party floor leader.

The Democrats, at a special meeting with reporters after the legislature adjourned for its weekend recess, said they had expected Republican Gov. John A. Love to present the figures when bills to carry out his tax program were offered Tuesday.

Since the governor did not provide the information, the Democrats said "We are going to try to get it ourselves."

They indicated they would contact State Controller Con Shea and other officials.

A special committee composed of Sens. George Brown of Denver, David J. Hahn of Aurora and Anthony F. Vollack of Arvada was named to try to obtain the information.

Love was unavailable for immediate comment on the Democratic statement. A few minutes before the position was announced Love left by commercial airliner for Montrose, en route to a speaking engagement before the Paonia Chamber of Commerce Friday evening.

Sen. Roland Mapelli of Denver, the Democratic caucus chairman, said that House Democrats — who hold a 42-23 margin in the chamber, agree with the Senate position.

The Senate Democrats said they were especially interested in getting estimates on operating expenses and construction expenses for colleges during the five-year period.

Romer said that apparently Gov. Love "is relying on a golden gimmick of $6.4 million to balance the budget for one year. What happens after this year," he asked.

The $614 million might be picked up for one year by the state general fund if Love's plan to increase the sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent is adopted. This would result because next year the replacement feature of the sales tax increase would be in effect only part of a year.

Brown said the Democratic demand for figures does not indicate any division within the party on finances or taxation. He commented that it is "the first time I have seen the Senate Democrats as one group" on taxation. The House, he added, "is standing close."

Canadian durum wheat prices were unchanged by the Canadian move. Affected were northern grades, which form the bulk of Canada's export wheat.

Although officials have declined to call the reductions a price war, it is the third time this week Canada has trimmed prices. The United States dropped its figures twice by increasing subsidy quotas.

The round of U.S.-Canada price cutting began Monday with trimming of Canadian prices for three grades of low-quality wheat shipped from Pacific ports.

Officials termed this initial reduction a reaction to Australian and French competition in the China market. Canada made a 27 million bushel sale to the Communist country with the reduced prices.

Schauer Takes High Court Post

DENVER (UPI) — Fort Morgan Dist. Judge Hilbert Schauer was sworn in Friday as a member of the Colorado Supreme Court in 10-minute ceremonies at the state capitol.

Chief Justice Edward Pringle administered the oath of office to Schauer, after the new justice was presented to the court by Gov. John A. Love.

The governor appointed Schauer to the court Jan. 14 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of justice Frank Hall of Trinidad.

The ceremony was held in the Supreme Court chambers. The big room was jammed with about 150 people, many of them the family and friends of Schauer.

In presenting Schauer, Love called him "an outstanding citizen of Colorado and an outstanding jurist."

Love said he was confident Schauer "will serve with honor and distinction on this honorable court."

In the Far West, rain and snow blowing in from the Pacific continued to plague Washington, Oregon, Idaho and western Montana. More than nine inches of rain in three days swamped Newport on the Oregon coast.

Chicago's coldest morning of the winter, 6 below zero, struck just as Commonwealth Edison Co. restored service to the last of 250,000 customers blacked out by last Saturday's great ice storm.

A rodeo rider, Donald Gustafson, 27, froze to death on the bleak western North Dakota plains after his pickup truck stalled. He had walked half the five miles to shelter before collapsing in 20-below weather.

Five robins made a refueling stop in an Albany, N.Y., suburb and the Weather Bureau, in effect, said they were out of their minds. Although it was 7 below zero, Howard Cardell said he could positively identify as robins the feathered visitors at his feeding station.

The Weather Bureau in Chicago said some moderation of cold during the snow means nothing—a new surge of arctic air is expected in a day or so to reinforce the present cold.

In the rainy Pacific Northwest, flash floods and landslides were a continuing peril to life and property.

An elderly couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Mullins, were missing in a flood that hit their ranch home in the Cascade Mountains near Randle, Wash.

About 170 skiers and employes were marooned at Crystal Mountain resort in the Cascades 80 miles southeast of Seattle when slides and bridge washouts closed access roads. They have plenty of food, however, and are in no apparent danger.

Many Washington secondary roads were closed by floods or slides, and a few families were forced out of their homes.

In the Southwest and along the Gulf Coast, the weather was fair and mild.

proval of another amendment which would make it possible for voters to vote directly for candidates for president and vice president instead of for electors.

Legislation for this amendment has not been introduced yet, and early action on this suggestion seems unlikely.

The amendment now heading for probable early Senate action provides that when the office of vice president is vacant — as it was from November 1963 to January 1965 — the president shall nominate a man to fill it, subject to confirmation by a majority of both branches of Congress.

It provides also that when the president is incapacitated, the vice president shall take over with the approval of a majority of the Cabinet.

Should the president deny he is incapacitated, the vice president could assume the duties only with Cabinet sanction plus a two-thirds vote of approval by the Senate and House.

Funeral Route For Churchill Passes History

pole and Churchill's home on two occasions for nine years.

There is the Admiralty over which Sir Winston presided twice, in two world wars.

Up broad Whitehall the procession passed the Cenotaph. It is a 30-foot high column of marble to the unsung heroes of war and is inscribed "To the Glorious Dead."

Past it is the statue of Sir Walter Raleigh who introduced the tobacco which led to Churchill's personal symbol of identity, his cigar.

Behind Raleigh is the historic Banqueting House, built by Inigo Jones in 1622 with ceiling panels by Rubens. Winston knew its corridors.

The Horse Guards Parade will view an old friend going by. Scarlet-coated sentries on horseback have see Churchill whisk past countless times.

Staring down on all this is the skyline statue of Nelson on Trafalgar Square, surrounded by crouching brass lions.

From Nelson, the cavalcade passes into the Strand with its memories of the Savoy and Churchill's "Other Club," a group of his old friends whose dinners he attended faithfully.

Then it passed St. Clement Danes, the church now dedicated to the memory of "the few" — the Royal Air Force men who fought the Battle of Britain.

In the churchyard, peering down Fleet Street, stands a statue of the great Sam Johnson, whose prose style was Churchill's model.

Into Fleet Street, home of the newspaper world, and past Temple Bar where the mile-square area of the original City of London starts. Over it presides a fierce copper griffon, symbol of defiance which many a British monarch had to learn to respect.

Up Ludgate Hill to towering St. Paul's where Nelson and Wellington rest. This is where Sir Winston wanted his final public obsequies. He made that clear 10 years ago when he was retiring as prime minister.

The trip from St. Paul's to the Tower is redolent of times past, when it meant no return for the benighted. The ancient Tower and its dungeons now house the crown jewels and receive tourists—but to Churchill it was the symbol of all his belief in monarchy.

Its own pier will receive his body at 12:45 p.m. and a motor launch will carry it up the river, a 15-minute voyage, while guns fire the last admiral's salute.

At Festival Pier, the coffin goes to Waterloo Station, aboard a train hauled by a 20-year-old steam engine named "Winston Churchill." It arrives at Bladon village outside the walls of Churchill's Blenheim Palace birthplace, at 3:30. Burial beside the graves of his father, Lord Randolph Churchill, and his American-born mother, Jennie Jerome, follows.

way. But American officials said they feel that, since the Buddhists have now had a major role in bringing down three governments, they are likely to try for more.

U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor called on Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh for their first conference since the Vietnamese strong man threw out Huong and seized power again.

Though they have been openly critical lately of each other's views on military intervention in governmental affairs, a U. S. mission spokesman said their relations were normal. They talked a little more than an hour.

Khanh also had a talk with political leaders of central Viet Nam, a stronghold of Buddhist power marked by continuing anti-American agitation. The little general, commander of the Vietnamese armed forces, has made it clear he now wants to keep in the good graces of the Buddhists.

His new acting premier, Harvard - educated Nguyen Xuan Oanh, ordered release of all persons arrested during the past week of demonstrations and riots except those suspected of being Viet Cong agents.

Saigon authorities, heeding this order, turned loose 79 Buddhist monks, 85 nuns, 132 students and 153 other persons. Among them were those picked up Jan. 22 when a mob smashed windows of the U.S. Information Agency library in widespread street fighting.

LBJ Changes White House Way Of Reporting

ence that marked the Kennedy years.

Five times during 14 months as President, Johnson has called news conferences in Washington with a day's advance notice. That was standard procedure under Kennedy and his predecessor, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It meant that experts in foreign policy, economic affairs and other fields swelled the turnout of newsmen, and fired many of the questions.

Kennedy held his news conferences in the big State Department auditorium. Johnson has gone there only once.

His standard setting is the oval office at the White House. A news conference there, called without advance notice, brings only the reporters who regularly cover the White House.

That means perhaps 50 to 60 newsmen instead of 300 or more.

All told, the White House says, Johnson has held 36 news conferences. That includes only those for which transcripts were made. Actually, there have been more, including the hike-and-talk sessions he has held with reporters on the grounds of the executive mansion, and other informal talks.

Privately, Johnson has said he wants Rusk and McNamara to meet newsmen more frequently. But both of these Cabinet officers have followed a pattern they set when they took office four years ago.

Elsewhere in the administration, news conference habits range from the handful a year policy of Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, to the regular sessions of Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and former Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

VA Changes To Save Money

DENVER (UPI) — C. F. Brickfield, chief of the Veterans Administration Department of benefits, said $176,700 would be saved yearly by the proposed transfer of operations of the Cheyenne VA regional office to Denver.

The official said 20 jobs would be declared surplus when the final move is made June 30. The surplus jobs will be offered to others within the VA.

Brickfield said 11 employes at the Cheyenne office would be moved to Denver. He said 14 would remain in Cheyenne with 11 moving over to the VA Hospital and three continuing personal services for Wyoming veterans.

The VA announced earlier this month that it would close down 14 hospitals and 17 regional offices in an economy cutback. Included among the hospitals scheduled for closing is the VA institution at Grand Junction.

Ike, De Gaulle Visit Comrade In London

the Foreign Office was under strain meeting the high dignitaries who poured into London to honor the great statesman who died last Sunday at 90.

Queen Elizabeth II ordered a state funeral for Churchill, which will rival any ever held in this ancient monarchy. Thursday night she showed the affection she feels for him by making a visit to the ancient hall where he is lying in state, a rare gesture by a British monarch.

Implicit in it was her recognition of Churchill's magnificent feat in marshalling the strength of Britain in an effort which saved the nation.

She will be the chief mourner at the funeral, with most of the royal family about her. From the decimated ranks of European royalty will come four kings, a queen and a number of princes, in addition to presidents, prime ministers and government leaders from 111 nations.

The queen received De Gaulle on a courtesy visit. Saturday she will be host at a Buckingham Palace luncheon for visiting kings and Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, heads of Commonwealth governments and the delegations of France, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Letter About VA Man Wrong Says Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. A. Willis Robertson,, D-Va., today attributed to a misunderstanding his recent letter saying W. J. Driver is resiging as administrator of veterans affairs.

Robertson said he had no information indicating that Driver, whose nomination is still pending in the Senate, has any plans to resign, as Robertson suggested in a letter to a constituent.

Driver, a VA career man is being moved up to the top post, denied Thursday night that he is stepping out.

"In the rush of handling my mail, I confused Mr. Driver with John S. Gleason Jr., who did resign recently," Robertson said.

The letter went to Thomas J. Gear of Hampton,, Va., commander of Post 48, American Legion,, in connection with protests from veterans groups and others over VA orders for closure of a number of veterans hospitals and other facilities.

Robertson wrote Gear that the Senate will inquire into the closings, adding, "Incidentally, Mr. Driver, who issued this order, has resigned and it is my understanding that his successor will take another look at what is involved."

Billie Sol Loses Court Maneuver

DALLAS (AP)—Billie Sol Estes, whose towering financial empire crashed with his arrest three years ago, lost a bid today to have an indictment thrown out.

The effort to erase the indictment came during a pre-trial hearing on charges that Estes, 40, lied to the government about the extent of his debts.

The case is before the court of U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes. Estes was brought to Dallas from El Paso Thursday.

U.S. Atty. Barefoot Sanders defended the indictment, which was returned by a Dallas federal grand jury Aug. 10, 1962. The case has been set for trial March 1.

The indictment charges Estes made false statements to the Commodity Credit Corp. about his financial matters in order to secure contracts to store government grain.

It says Estes swore he had liabilities Nov. 30, 1961, of $8.8 million, whereas they were $11.3 million; as of June 30, 1961, of $7.9 million, whereas they were $12 million; and as of April 3, 1961, of $6.3 million, whereas they were $10.4 million.

Two of the counts refer to sworn statements Estes made doing business as United Elevators, Plainview, Tex.

The former West Texas promoter went to jail in El Paso Jan. 19 after the Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of his 15-year sentence for mail fraud.

Redecoration Next Best to New Home Buy

The next best thing to buying a new home is redecorating. If the color of your vinyl wall coverings is getting so tiresome that you can't stand to look at the room any longer, quality paints provide a simple way to change the wall color to one you like better or to one that will fit in with your furnishings.

All you have to do is use the correct paint system. The successful painting of each of the three types of vinyl wall coverings depends on it, and the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association has devised an effective way to paint each type: smooth fabric without design, smooth fabric with design, and textured fabric.

Before begining any paint job, you must be very sure that you've prepared the surface properly. The first step in this direction is to see that any repairs are made before the walls are cleaned. Animal glue or resin adhesive should be used because these two products aren't affected by paint as are pressure tape and water-wetted adhesives.

Cleaning usually involves removing dirt, dust, oil, grease and similar stains. For most stains, a detergent wash is satisfactory, but for grease, wax, crayon or lipstick marks, removal is best with an odorless paint thinner.

It's very important that you use only quality primers and paints, because only quality products have lasting adhesion and hiding power and retain their color brilliance. Just consult your established, reputable paint dealer to be sure you're getting the right products.

Here is the proper paint system for each type of vinyl wall covering:

1. First brush on a coat of alkyd-based flat paint to act as a primer. Wait for this to dry. Then apply a final coat of either quality latex paint or alkyd paint, or enamel.

2. Use a latex primer-sealer (not an ordinary latex) to prevent the printed design from bleeding through. After this has dried, you should apply any quality or alkyd finish as a top coat.

3. Use an oil-based primer-sealer as the first coat, followed by any quality alkyd paint or enamel.

You may use an alkyd flat as a prime coat if you can't get an oil primer-sealer.

Child's Seat-Storage Unit Has Touch of Old West

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

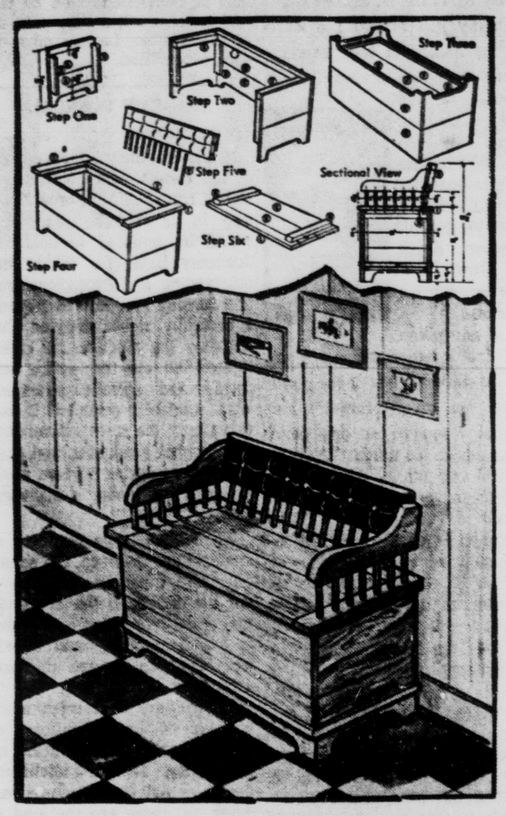
This week's Sketchbook design project presents a handsome piece of furniture for the playroom or child's bedroom. It has the value of being both a seat and a storage unit. Designed for the youngster's room in the theme of the old west, that of the stagecoach seat, it is a rewarding job for the weekend woodworker to tackle.

Sketchbook plan S-199 gives all details, parts and step-by-step construction drawings to make the stagecoach seat-storage unit. It is primarily straight board construction for the seat-storage space. Full size patterns printed in the plan give you exact templates for the arms and the bottom shapes of the box. Perhaps the only step that requires a bit of workmanship is measuring and setting in the dowels under the arms and at the seat back. Being careful solves this.

The Stagecoach Seat is sized to fit neatly at the foot of a twin-size bed and this length of 36" is suitable for strong blankets, bed linen or off-season clothes for the little guy. It is especially handy at the foot of the bed. Youngsters need a sturdy place they can sit on to tie their shoes and a place, too, to perhaps store the treasures and toys of their life.

Mom can join in the act and make this a family project by concentrating on the upholstery step of the back rest. She can select the vinyl fabric or any fabric that blends with current decor, set on the foam rubber cushion and secure the fabric with decorative tacks. If desired, the lift-up portion of the seat can also be upholstered for additional comfort.

If you are interested in a different and unique occasional piece of furniture and have need for a child's seat plus storage spot, send for plan S-199 of the Sketchbook series, available through this newspaper for 50 cents. As far as the child is concerned, he'll have a ball imagining himself as a real-hard-riding stagecoach driver.



STEP BY STEP following the Sketchbook do-it-yourself working drawings, this unusual children's stagecoach seat-storage unit for bedroom or playroom can be made in the home workshop. Its length fits a twin bed. TO ORDER Sketchbook Plan S-199, the Stagecoach Seat-Storage Unit, fill out the coupon below and mail it with 50 cents to SKETCHBOOK in care of this newspaper.

Builders of custom houses find that it helps sales when they are able to offer the buyer a wide choice of finishing materials. One of the most popular of these "choice" materials is ceramic tile for countertops and splashbacks in kitchens, and walls and floors in bathrooms.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: I bought a house four years ago and have already painted the outside three times because of a constant blistering and peeling condition. I followed some advice last time and put on a primer coat before the final coat, but it didn't help. Can you tell me what is causing this?

ANSWER: When paint blisters and peels as often as this, there appears to be a serious moisture problem. It is likely that excessive moisture from the inside of your house is moving through the interior walls and pushing through the exterior walls, thus attacking the paint from underneath. You must find a way of getting rid of the moisture without having it pass through the walls. One way is to use an exhaust fan in the kitchen and possibly in the bathroom and laundry, three key points where moisture is created. Another is to use a dehumidifier, some of which operate chemically, some electrically, but all with the purpose of removing many gallons of water from the air each day. Since it is reasonably certain that, even if your walls are insulated, the insulation does not have a vapor barrier, you can create a type of vapor barrier on the inside walls. Two coats of enamel or latex paint will help keep moisture from moving through the walls — so will one coat of aluminum paint plus one finish coat. Waterproof - coated wall fabrics also are effective. Another solution is to install metal vents along the top of the exterior walls, about one every 15 to 20 inches.

(You can get Andy Lang's detailed booklet "Painting Your House, Inside and Out" by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 954, Jamaica, N. Y., 11431.)

MAINTENANCE ECONOMY

Anyone involved in the maintenance of office buildings or institutions knows the high cost of cleaning tools and materials. Buffing and polishing machines, vacuum cleaners, waxes, polishes and the like, all run into big money over a year. More and more, those responsible for this type of work are looking for materials requiring the least maintenance, such as ceramic tile; long lasting and it never needs waxing, polishing or refinishing.

Check Heating Plant Before, During Winter

When biting cold weather catches us unawares, most of us quickly turn up the thermostat, comforted by the thought that the good old automatic heating system will give its usual dependable performance.

What a shock it would be to find out that for once the system rebelled and refused to work, getting even with you for years of neglect.

For most homeowners have a habit of neglecting their heating system, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

The Council says we are apt to take this attitude, thoughtlessly, with any smoothly operating automatic equipment in the home that makes modern living more comfortable, carefree and enjoyable. As long as it works, fine and dandy. "Out of sight, out of mind" — this is all too often the case with the heating system.

Fortunately, heating equipment such as used in a modern hydronic (hot water) heating system, is durable, and designed to give up to 40 years of completely dependable and satisfactory service. It can stand a lot of neglect, but only up to a point, says the Council. Sooner or later it cries out for attention. It needs simple care and maintenance to keep it at the peak of heating efficiency.

No heating system can be expected to show a consistent clean bill of health without an annual checkup. For this reason, the Council suggests that homeowners call in their heating contractor now, before the heating season starts.

KNOWS MATERIALS

There are many good reasons for hiring an architect, but one of the best is because he knows materials. He knows how to get the most for your money; what materials are durable. That is why he will specify long-lasting, low-maintenance surfaces such as ceramic tile for walls and floors.

Cool Thought Can Be Money Saver

Air conditioning was wonderful during those scorching days last summer, but who needs it now?

Almost nobody, but if you're moving into a new home or installing a new heating system in an older home, now is the time to think about whole-house cooling.

This is because it's less expensive from the labor standpoint to add air conditioning along with the new furnace than it is to convert later, home comfort experts of American Furnace Company advise.

If the budget can't be stretched to include air conditioning at the outset, ask your contractor about provisions for future conversion. He can pave the way now for a changeover that will cost you less later.

Ceramic Tile Floors Have Little Upkeep

Dripping coats and tracked-in mud won't harm an entrance hall floor surfaced with ceramic tile, because the mess can be removed quickly with the swish of a mop. No rug or other floor covering is necessary with a real tile floor. Nor is waxing, polishing, or painting of any kind required. Ceramic mosaic and quarry tile floors present virtually no upkeep problems, since an occasional swabbing with a damp mop is all that is needed.

The only active volcanos of several on the Solomon Islands are Bagana and Balbi.

Make Most Out Of Your First Apartment

"Two can live as cheaply as one," may be an economically unsound statement but hundreds of thousands of newly married couples moving into their first apartment are trying to put the old bromide into practice every year.

According to Eleanor Kandel, light control specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, two things that make for happier living are free —daylight and air. It's up to the tenant to make the most of whatever window space is available.

If possible, Mrs. Kandel says, the dining and work areas should be located next to windows. Venetian blinds can be adjusted to permit light and air to enter while retaining privacy and eliminating glare.

If your apartment has small, narrow windows instead of large ones, Mrs. Kandel recommends installing a wall-to-ceiling custom venetian to cover two or more windows. In combination with curtains or draperies, the oversized venetian will add immeasurably to the attractiveness of the window area and make the room look larger. The venetians also make cleaning easier, the Flexalum specialist says.

Slim and modern furniture, she adds, is less costly than massive pieces and adds life to an apartment with limited space.

SOUND PAINTING

When painting acoustical ceiling tile, use the thinnest coat of wall paint that will give the hiding and color desired. It is important that the paint does not fill up the openings in this type tile. Spraying the paint on is considered to be the most satisfactory method of application for acoustic tile.

SOUND PAINTING

When painting acoustical ceiling tile, use the thinnest coat of wall paint that will give the hiding and color desired. It is important that the paint does not fill up the openings in this type tile. Spraying the paint on is considered to be the most satisfactory method of application for acoustic tile.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Lack of Communications

For a great many years, business and industrial leaders have failed to focus sufficient attention upon the education structure in these United States. The neglect is easily understood.

Beginning in the days of the Industrial Revolution in Britain, pioneering entrepreneurs learned that government often stood in their way when it came to producing and distributing their products. Thus, the first effort of business was to seek, through political means, a climate favorable to their operations.

Schools at that time knew nothing whatever about economics or about business procedures. The infant industries were put together by trial and error with no support from the educational side of the scene and with actual hostility invoked against them by politicians and social reformers.

Politics took precedence. And in process of learning how governments were both formed and influenced, businessmen concentrated their efforts in political channels.

The nineteenth century brought the working relationships of industrialists and politicians very close. The same century saw the rise of labor unions and organized socialist forces which also plunged into the political arena to try to create conditions more advantageous to the wage-earner and less favorable to the industrialist.

The 20th century has seen this move rise in emphasis until it is entirely possible that the climax of this surge for favorable labor-legislation is nearing its apogee.

But in the latter half of the 19th century, a certain group of socialists, known as the Fabians, saw clearly that the educational institutions were being neglected in the contest for political supremacy. The London School of Economics was organized for the purpose of giving a socialist cast to instruction in higher institutions of learning.

Industrialists either remained ignorant of this fact or ignored it as being of little consequence. The result, in the 20th century in America, is that despite the fact that far more college students major in business and allied fields than in any other single pursuit, today in this country there is little communication between colleges and universities and the business and industrial leaders, for whom the colleges allegedly perform their services.

Obviously, there are major exceptions to this lack of communications. There are a number of far-seeing industries and corporations which have maintained rapport and still others which have been seeking to break down this lack of communications. A number of the most outstanding have been contributing financial support for years to educational institutions of their choice.

However, when a businessman today wants an answer to a complex problem, he is prone to ignore the college. Instead, he runs to the government and seeks, by laws which are to assist him or to limit his competitors, to obtain the answer to whatever problem of the moment attracts his interest.

This is essentially a short-sighted policy which has lasted far too long. Today, business and industry suffer enormously as a result of the inroads made against them by the government. Yet, many of these inroads began merely because the businessman himself asked for them, originally.

Thus, today the businessman contributes mightily to political contests, pays for lobbies in Washington, competes with his rivals for government contracts and submits to regulations which are always oppressive and often ridiculous. He pays taxes in astronomical amounts to help cover the costs of his rival's successful bids, and about the only avenue he can conceive as being open to him is more of the same.

Meanwhile, colleges and universities, lacking the knowledge and the know-how that he could have contributed, themselves come under government influence. Courses in business management in the main leave much to be desired. And young men and women who are interested in commercial pursuits when they enter college are more and more weaned away from such ventures by virtue of the socialist pap they imbibe as they partake of their studies.

What businessmen could do, if they would, is to open a communications front with the colleges and universities of their choice. They could abandon their attitude that political solutions are the only practical avenue to be followed and recognize that if colleges and universities could begin to understand the meaning of freedom and free enterprise, the cause of business and industry would be advanced far more rapidly and surely than any amount of political electioneering.

Handicap

The fellow engaged in making his mark in the world will find that he moves in a society armed with erasers.

An Elegant Corner

There are many fine new business buildings going up in and around the Springs and many of the old ones are being rehabilitated and one of the finest jobs of "face lifting" on an old building we have seen to date was accomplished by the Aley Drug Company at 332 South Tejon Street.

Frank Onufrock, owner of Aley Drug, says it is one of the oldest buildings in that area. But you wouldn't believe it now. Viewed from outside or in, it has the look, the feel and even the smell of a new building. You know, that nice, clean, never been used smell of lumber, plaster, paint and everything that goes into the making of a fine new building.

And Frank accomplished all this while keeping open for business as usual. Of course, much credit for this fine job goes to Harry Pierceall, the architect and the Bickley Construction Company, builders.

The Aley Drug building is on the corner of Costilla and Tejon Streets and stands right next to the handsome Home Furniture Building which was built in 1960. And on the corner across the street stands another attractive, though smaller, new building, the Royal Liquor store. These three buildings enhance their surroundings considerably and add charm to the south end of Tejon Street.

They are another excellent example of urban renewal by private enterprise — the only kind that is worthwhile.

We stopped in to compliment Frank Onufrock on his fine new-old building and he said, "We're 'down town' now."

We said, "Don't tell that to the politicians or they will tax you accordingly."

"They already are," said Frank.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION No. 646: "What is an answer to those who claim advocates of a free economy, where all people are permitted to help establish values, are reverting to the law of the tooth and claw'?"

ANSWER: That statement is usually made by those who want to practice the law of the tooth and the claw. It is made by socialist and labor union leaders who believe that a man does not have a right to work without paying tribute to a private organization, and to politicians who want to get power over the lives of others.

The answer is that when all people are permitted to help establish values, that is really free enterprise and voluntary cooperation; and is anything but the law of the tooth and the claw.

But those persons who are guilty want to becloud the issue and make a derogatory remark about anyone who believes in freedom, who believes that each man has a right to do anything that each and every other individual has an equal right to do, who believes the government has no right to do anything that each and every individual doesn't have a right to do.

The individual has a right to protect his property and he also has a right to join with others to form a voluntary government supported on a voluntary basis to protect each other's life and property.

Those who believe and practice the law of the tooth and claw are those using initiated force or threats of same, or fraud, to get what they obtain. They usually get laws passed to make their theft legal, but the laws do not make theft moral.

Those who get what they want on a voluntary basis where both parties make a profit, spiritual or material, are not reverting to the law of the tooth and the claw. They, instead, injure no one and the gain of each is the gain of all.

Do not let those people who make the claim that the man who believes in a free market competition is practicing the law of the tooth and the claw, confuse the issue: They are the ones who are practicing the law of the tooth and the claw.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

OTTO MATED VERSE

Though Otto was a cowpoke
Who had an eye for dames,
He never popped the question,
On him they staked no claims.

For Otto was a lone wolf
And he loved to ride the plains,
Though many cowgals chased him
They got nothing for their pains.

He said, "I'll never marry,"
The while his teeth he grated,
But when he met Miss Carrie,
He quickly Otto mated.

If it is true that automation causes unemployment, the proper thing to do is for us to automate.

Let's see now, where shall we start? Why not with the farms, they were the first to automate? Okay, so we start with the farms.

First we destroy the combines (short for combined harvesters and threshers). This bit of destruction sets us back 40 years to the days of headers and binders, when the grain was first cut, hauled and stacked to await the threshing rig, which came along later with a big crew of hungry men to thresh the wheat. There is visual proof that this move will furnish work for two-hundred-fifty to three-hundred-fifty thousand "harvest stiffs." That's the number of hoboes who used to ride the freights into the wheat states. One man now harvests and threshes more than ten did in the good old days.

Now, having given the hoboes back their jobs (I was one of 'em), let us go back a bit further and create a few million more jobs, or rather, recreate them, by eliminating the headers and binders. Let us go back to the scythes and cradles (still symbols of automation, mind you), let us do away with the potato diggers, the corn harvesters, the mechanical cotton pickers; let us do away with every mechanical device on the farm.

With this move, in one fell swoop, we have opened up farm jobs for all the millions who have left the farm since the 1870's when the exodus away from the rural life began. But we now have almost four times the population we had then, so we will need four times as many workers. In order to furnish enough employees for the farms, we are going to have to shut down at least 8 out of every 10 factories, foundries, processing plants, mines, mills and what have you.

On the farm without machinery you will work 12 hours per day, fourteen in harvest time, and do two hours of chores daily. You will be able to feed yourself and family and one-half of another person from your production. Instead of five per cent of the people on the farms, there will be five per cent left in the cities. Think what that would save in urban renewal. What a marvelous standard of living we could enjoy if only it weren't for machines.

Let's try another tack. Suppose we leave the farms automated and de-automate industry. Remove all machinery from the factories and foundries, from the processing plants, the mines and the mills. What? You couldn't have any of those things without machinery? Machinery is automation, and we decided we didn't want that, didn't we?

Oh, I see, some machinery is all right, the kind you are used to and have been working with. It's new machinery that bothers you. Well, your old man griped about the machinery you can't live without today.

Okay, we will just unautomate one industry. Take the auto plants, they are about the worst offenders. Let's go back to building cars by hand. Oh, you love autos and like to drive them, you don't think you could get along without them, but you couldn't pay $50,000 for one? Well, neither could many other people, so it wouldn't do much good to de-automate the car industry would it? We would make millions of unemployed ex-auto workers in the process. Did it ever occur to you that that is exactly what would happen if we were ever fools enough to de-automate any industry?

Even the spinning wheel was the beginning of automation in the textile industry. We did get rid of the spinning wheel after the loom was invented. The only time it pays to eliminate one machine is when another is invented that does the same job better, faster and cheaper — and creates more jobs, not fewer. To create unemployment we would have to start going backwards towards less efficient machinery.

Wit and Whimsy

Like the story about the man who telephoned a married couple he hadn't seen in a long time. The wife answered.

Man: "Hi Mary, how's everything? How's ol' Jim?"

Mary: "Jim? Didn't you know? He's dead. Went down to the garden to pull a cabbage for dinner, bent down and fell dead right on the spot."

Man: "Oh you poor thing! What on earth did you do?"

Mary: "What could we do? We had to open a can of peas."

Cuthbert had been listening for half an hour to a lecture from his father on the evils of late morning rising.

Father: "You will never amount to anything, unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember, it's the early bird that catches the worm!"

Cuthbert (laughed): "Ha, Ha! How about the worm? What did he get for turning out so early?"

Father: "My son, that worm hadn't been to bed all night; he was on his way home!"

Complainant: "I've been getting threatening letters through the mail. Isn't there a law against that?"

Post Office Inspector: "Of course there is. It's a very serious offense to send threatening letters. Have you any idea who's doing it?"

Complainant: "Sure. The Dumpus Furniture Company."

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

In my last article I discussed the nature of the "extreme moderate" and stated that a middle of the road position could only lead to the decline of personal liberty. I should like to go into greater depth to show just how this works.

On any given political question, there are only two positions that one may take: one which promotes individual freedom, or one which weakens it. No matter what decision you make, men will be either more or less free as a result of your choice. If the question is whether or not a 3 per cent sales tax should be enacted, a "yes" answer will amount to a reduction in freedom, for the state will forcibly deprive the customer of a portion of his money for the "privilege" of being able to make a purchase; if the answer is "no," then this money will not be taken from the customer, and his freedom, at least to this extent, has been preserved.

Along comes the middle-of-the-roader, however, and proposes a "compromise" between the two choices, but note that the compromise is always over the degree of coercion. It involves only the amount of loss of freedom. You cannot "compromise" on any issue involving freedom and still have as much freedom as you had before. To illustrate: let us suppose one group advocates a 3 per cent sales tax, but the pro-freedom people oppose it saying that any sales tax will reduce individual liberty. The "moderate" comes along and offers a compromise: "let us have a 2 per cent sales tax instead." At first blush most people would feel that such a compromise is "fair," because it gives both sides a portion of what they want. But does it? When one man says "I demand the right to forcibly deprive you of a portion of your property by use of a 3 per cent sales tax," and his intended victim replies "I insist on being free from your coercion," can it be said that a "compromise" aids both parties? Clearly not, for when a 2 per cent tax is substituted for the 3 per cent tax, the "moderate" is admitting that it is proper for the first man to deprive the second man of some of his property; the only question open for debate is the amount that will be stolen. The question of the second man's freedom has already been answered, and in the negative. The act of "compromise" decides the matter in favor of the demands of the first man.

When two thieves approach a man and one demands all of his money, but the other wants to be more "moderate" and leave him $5 to get home on, is the second man any less the thief? Can it be said that the victim is as secure in his property as he was before encountering the thieves? The act of theft has taken place and the thief has benefitted. The victim is not better off — in fact he is not even as well off as before — he has sustained a loss. How then can it be said that simply reducing the amount of money to be stolen is a compromise in recognition of the demands of the victim?

When the socialist says: "I want 50 units of socialism imposed on everyone" and his victims reply: "We want 0 units of socialism; we want our freedom," and the moderate comes along and says: "let us have 25 units of socialism," the issue of freedom or socialism has just been answered by the moderate in favor of socialism. The main battle has just been lost. A compromise is reached, but only as to the amount of socialism that will be imposed, namely 25 units. Next time around, the socialist will argue for 75 units of socialism, and the moderate will again offer a compromise, let us say at 50 units. By the act of "compromise," the original demand of the socialist has been met — it just took a little longer. And so it goes, as the recent history of this country will attest: the socialist out in front leading the charge, with the moderate bringing up the rear, but with no doubt as to the direction both are going.

ACADEMY SCANDAL

To the Editor:

If I were the mother of one of the cadets who recently resigned from the Air Force Academy in its cheating scandal, I would be tempted to hold the academy liable for taking my outstanding and exceptional son and turning him into a cheater. I certainly would demand that not only the students be investigated but also the entire academic and athletic structure. What kind of a school is it that takes only the most outstanding high school graduates and then somewhere during 4 years pushes them into doing a dishonest act?

When such large numbers of students are involved, the school obviously must be at fault — not the cadets. If the academic and athletic program of a school is too demanding and overly rigorous then change the program, not the students.

Let military academies, along with all other institutions of higher learning, concentrate on graduating normal intelligent people — not super automatons. After all, these are the kind of people who are the greatest asset in all fields, military and otherwise.

Men do not need this extremely difficult training to be a success and a leader of men in industry and private business so why should our military have as their aim the production of supermen?

Sports Editor Loy Holman is itching to know the names of the athletes involved. Just because West Point published the names of the athletes concerned in their 1951 scandal is no reason the Air Force Academy should do the same. Those names aren't Loy Holman's business nor the business of anyone else except the parents of the students involved and the school. The importance of the Academy does not lie only in the fact that it supplies a football team for the area.

PERTINENT ROUTE

To the Editor:

In regard to the letter by George M. Ernst and his opinion concerning majority rule — I refer Mr. Ernst to the Bible.

St. Matt. 7:13-14. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

Many, I point out, would constitute a majority in relation to a few — so it would seem that God's opinion of majority opinions is not very high.

PER CENT SILVER

Certainly did enjoy "One Way to Prevent Hoarding."

There was a piece in the Wall Street Journal not long ago that told JUST how much silver was in the different coins. Failed to clip it and now I would like to know. Do you know? As I remember the dollar is about 90 per cent silver.

These new 25 cents and 50 cents sure don't have the same "ring" do they? And from what I gather — the per cent of silver in 25 cents down varies according to what SOMEBODY SOMEWHERE decides to put in.

Do you have accurate information on this?

MRS. JOHN S. ACORN
Colville, Wash.

Editor's Note: We did not have the information reader Acorn requested at our fingertips. But we called the Charles Leeming Tutt Library at Colorado College and their researcher kindly looked it up for us. She gave us the latest figures they have on the subject. She was not sure whether or not there had been any recent changes.

Reader Acorn says the smaller coins don't have the same "ring" they used to, but it has been so long since we tossed a four-bit piece on the bar that we are hardly qualified to make a judgment on this.

The figures follow:

There are exactly 412.5 grains of fine silver in one silver dollar. On a slip stick this figures out to approximately 85.94 per cent.

There are 192.9 grains of silver in a 50 cent piece. This means that there are 385.8 grains in two 50 cent pieces, or in one dollar's worth of silver change, since the quarter is one-half the weight of the half-dollar and the dime is one-fifth its weight. The percentage of silver is the same in all three of the lesser coins. The difference between the silver content of the dollar and a dollar's worth of change amounts to six per cent, or 79.94 per cent for silver in the lesser coins.

In other words, the chicken-feed isn't worth as much as the cart-wheels.

The above figures are in troy weight at 480 grains per ounce.

To the Editor:

I have written this in hopes of publication in your outstanding paper, for the purpose of promoting a better understanding of the importance of an education to the youth of America today. Many students have confused ideas of their purpose in schools and therefore, they must be made to realize that without an education, success in this modern society is almost impossible.

At this time of year, a student especially acknowledges his existence in the field of education. Finals make us all aware that we have certain obligations to our parents, teachers, and especially to ourselves.

Recently at an assembly, the Palmer High Band presented several musical selections which instilled a certain patriotism to every member of the student body. To me, I saw a school united by an interest in a particular activity which held us in silence for several minutes. But, as I looked upon this unity, I discovered we all should soon be divided. This division of people and personalities will be a loss not only to Palmer, but to Wasson as well. Because, as Wasson and Palmer see their student bodies dissolve, the birth of a new school, Billy Mitchell, will be brought into existence. Competition and rivalry will be stronger now, and a new spirit for a different school must take place in many of us.

As this semester closes and a new one approaches, I think all students should take time out to evaluate the responsibilities they possess and what they should do to successfully uphold the small burden they carry. Many young adults look upon school as a place to clown and have fun, instead of an educational institution as it is meant to be. They distract other's attention in class and speak disrespectfully to the very people who are there to help them. These are the scholars who learn the hard way that life is not a bed of roses. A person whom I hold a great deal of respect for spoke the following to his class not long ago, "If you think school is a big joke and that an education is not a necessity, then you walk out of these doors and look at life as it really is. Go out and find a job, if you can, and when you have found yourself a failure, think back and the realization of your ignorance will humiliate you beyond reason."

Though he does not major in speech, he still spoke words of wisdom. A wisdom that a few laughed at. But, is this really a joke? Certainly life is no joke, and a means of support is living, and a proper education is the best insurance of a profitable occupation.

While watching this band assembly, I suddenly realized I had not appreciated my school to its fullest. My attitude was not of sufficient measure. I had looked upon certain classes as a sort of punishment for a reason not known to me. I had not appreciated them enough and therefore, I had a sense of distaste for school. But, now I understand the reason for my presence at each class, no matter how distasteful it may seem.

It is my hope to see other future adults of this community, state, and nation open their eyes in appreciation to the people who are preparing them for the years ahead and the future which depends on our generation.

When the time draws near, it is my fondest desire to experience a new unity of people, personalities, and ideals. And, as I change my loyalty from the Brown and White to the Red and Gray, I will know the loss I must face as I walk through the doors of Palmer for the last time and must open the door to a new life and different friendships. It is then I will understand best what my parents meant when they said to me, "Live everyday to its fullest, because you can only live it once, and in just twenty-four hours it will be gone."

To The Point

Who Needs Comfort?

"Comfort" is principally a nineteenth-and twentieth-century aspiration. Not until our own generation was it possible for people to be thoroughly comfortable at all seasons: central heating, air conditioning, and a multitude of gadgets have accounted for that. This may be heresy — but I doubt whether comfort is good for man.

These lines are written in a Scottish country house, austerly beautiful, built about 1750. The laird who built it cared little enough for comfort: he was interested in the grand style of things. The ceilings of Durie House are very high, and the rooms are very big, and even in summer this stone mansion is chilly — but always cheerful.

In some ways, Durie is less comfortable than it was two centuries ago, for there are few servants nowadays to fetch wood and coals and do chores. Yet it is a good place to live, if one dresses warmly. Hot-water bottles have supplanted warming-pans. One encounters small comfort, but plenty of privacy and good cheer. At the top of society, the laird and his wife are quite indifferent to comfort, knowing better things, among them architectural loveliness.

Half a mile distant, on this estate, tinkers are encamped. (Tinkers, gentle reader, are a folk of gypsy-like habits who, nevertheless, are not gypsies.) These tinkers carry all their goods and chattels from place to place in peramubulators and little hand-carts; they sleep in tiny unheated tents, all winter. They never have known comfort, and they don't mean to be introduced: they doggedly resist all attempts to assimilate them to the pattern of modern confortable life. They are healthy, independent, and sufficiently merry. At the bottom of society, the tinkers are quite indifferent to comfort, preferring to be masterless men and sturdy beggars.

Are the proprietor of Durie and his wife, or the tinkers — at opposite poles of society — badly misguided in their contempt for comfort? I think not. For man must pay a high price for every creature-comfort. If one wants overheated rooms and modern gadgets, he must adapt himself to the routine of twentieth-century life and labor. Ordinarily he must surrender both splendor and independence, if he seeks to be snug and smug.

It is high time, I maintain, for some of us to deny the claims of modern comfort. Already rebellion rears its lovely head among deer-hunters, fishermen, and campers who escape from suburbia to the sanctuary of cabin and tent. It is not well to be a slave to wall-to-wall carpeting, the price of what may consume a man's potential leisure. It is not well to lead an incubator kind of life, in which we move only from houses at extremely artificial temperatures to automobiles at extremely artificial temperatures. It is not well to chain one's self to "labor saving" gadgets acquired on the installment plan, various kinds of labor being good for body and soul.

To the old and infirm, I would allow many comforts, since they are barred from active duties and pleasures. But I scowl upon a coddled rising generation, surfeited and bored, whom doting parents endeavor to rear immune from any sort of challenge or want. To be soft and sheltered is not to be happy. If the choice must be made, it is better to grow up as an ignorant, brawling tinker than as an affluent juvenile delinquent.

Never before in history did most people — in America and western Europe, that is — enjoy any choice between austerity and comfort: they had to live very simply, willy-nilly. But simplicity — nay, even austerity — is beginning to have charms for a minority who sense that the summit of human aspiration is higher than the rumpus room.

Lack of Communications

For a great many years, business and industrial leaders have failed to focus sufficient attention upon the education structure in these United States. The neglect is easily understood.

Beginning in the days of the Industrial Revolution in Britain, pioneering entrepreneurs learned that government often stood in their way when it came to producing and distributing their products. Thus, the first effort of business was to seek, through political means, a climate favorable to their operations.

Schools at that time knew nothing whatever about economics or about business procedures. The infant industries were put together by trial and error with no support from the educational side of the scene and with actual hostility invoked against them by politicians and social reformers.

Politics took precedence. And in process of learning how governments were both formed and influenced, businessmen concentrated their efforts in political channels.

The nineteenth century brought the working relationships of industrialists and politicians very close. The same century saw the rise of labor unions and organized socialist forces which also plunged into the political arena to try to create conditions more advantageous to the wage-earner and less favorable to the industrialist.

The 20th century has seen this move rise in emphasis until it is entirely possible that the climax of this surge for favorable labor-legislation is nearing its apogee.

But in the latter half of the 19th century, a certain group of socialists, known as the Fabians, saw clearly that the educational institutions were being neglected in the contest for political supremacy. The London School of Economics was organized for the purpose of giving a socialist cast to instruction in higher institutions of learning.

Industrialists either remained ignorant of this fact or ignored it as being of little consequence. The result, in the 20th century in America, is that despite the fact that far more college students major in business and allied fields than in any other single pursuit, today in this country there is little communication between colleges and universities and the business and industrial leaders, for whom the colleges allegedly perform their services.

Obviously, there are major exceptions to this lack of communications. There are a number of far-seeing industries and corporations which have maintained rapport and still others which have been seeking to break down this lack of communications. A number of the most outstanding have been contributing financial support for years to educational institutions of their choice.

However, when a businessman today wants an answer to a complex problem, he is prone to ignore the college. Instead, he runs to the government and seeks, by laws which are to assist him or to limit his competitors, to obtain the answer to whatever problem of the moment attracts his interest.

This is essentially a short-sighted policy which has lasted far too long. Today, business and industry suffer enormously as a result of the inroads made against them by the government. Yet, many of these inroads began merely because the businessman himself asked for them, originally.

Thus, today the businessman contributes rightly to political contests, pays for lobbies in Washington, competes with his rivals for government contracts and submits to regulations which are always oppressive and often ridiculous. He pays taxes in astronomical amounts to help cover the costs of his rival's successful bids, and about the only avenue he can conceive as being open to him is more of the same.

Meanwhile, colleges and universities, lacking the knowledge and the know-how that he could have contributed, themselves come under government influence. Courses in business management in the main leave much to be desired. And young men and women who are interested in commercial pursuits when they enter college are more and more weaned away from such ventures by virtue of the socialist pap they imbibe as they partake of their studies.

What businessmen could do, if they would, is to open a communications front with the colleges and universities of their choice. They could abandon their attitude that political solutions are the only practical avenue to be followed and recognize that if colleges and universities could begin to understand the meaning of freedom and free enterprise, the cause of business and industry would be advanced far more rapidly and surely than any amount of political electioneering.

Handicap

The fellow engaged in making his mark in the world will find that he moves in a society armed with erasers.

An Elegant Corner

There are many fine new business buildings going up in and around the Springs and many of the old ones are being rehabilitated and one of the finest jobs of "face lifting" on an old building we have seen to date was accomplished by the Aley Drug Company at 332 South Tejon Street.

Frank Onufrock, owner of Aley Drug, says it is one of the oldest buildings in that area. But you wouldn't believe it now. Viewed from outside or in, it has the look, the feel and even the smell of a new building. You know, that nice, clean, never been used smell of lumber, plaster, paint and everything that goes into the making of a fine new building.

And Frank accomplished all this while keeping open for business as usual. Of course, much credit for this fine job goes to Harry Pierceall, the architect and the Bickley Construction Company, builders.

The Aley Drug building is on the corner of Costilla and Tejon Streets and stands right next to the handsome Home Furniture Building which was built in 1959. And on the corner across the street stands another attractive, though smaller, new building, the Royal Liquor store. These three buildings enhance their surroundings considerably and add charm to the south end of Tejon Street.

They are another excellent example of urban renewal by private enterprise — the only kind that is worthwhile.

We stopped in to compliment Frank Onufrock on his fine new-old building and he said, "We're 'down town' now."

We said, "Don't tell that to the politicians or they will tax you accordingly."

"They already are," said Frank.

ET TU BRUTE?

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION No. 646: "What is an answer to those who claim advocates of a free economy, where all people are permitted to help establish values, are reverting to the law of the tooth and claw'?"

ANSWER: That statement is usually made by those who want to practice the law of the tooth and the claw. It is made by socialist and labor union leaders who believe that a man does not have a right to work without paying tribute to a private organization, and to politicians who want to get power over the lives of others.

The answer is that when all people are permitted to help establish values, that is really free enterprise and voluntary cooperation; and is anything but the law of the tooth and the claw.

But those persons who are guilty want to becloud the issue and make a derogatory remark about anyone who believes in freedom, who believes that each man has a right to do anything that each and every other individual has an equal right to do, who believes the government has no right to do anything that each and every individual doesn't have a right to do.

The individual has a right to protect his property and he also has a right to join with others to form a voluntary government supported on a voluntary basis to protect each other's life and property.

Those who believe and practice the law of the tooth and claw are those using initiated force or threats of same, or fraud, to get what they obtain. They usually get laws passed to make their theft legal, but the laws do not make theft moral.

Those who get what they want on a voluntary basis where both parties make a profit, spiritual or material, are not reverting to the law of the tooth and the claw. They, instead, injure no one and the gain of each is the gain of all.

Do not let those people who make the claim that the man who believes in a free market competition is practicing the law of the tooth and the claw, confuse the issue: They are the ones who are practicing the law of the tooth and the claw.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

OTTO MATED VERSE

Though Otto was a cowpoke
Who had an eye for dames,
He never popped the question,
On him they staked no claims.

For Otto was a lone wolf
And he loved to ride the plains.
Though many cowgals chased him
They got nothing for their pains.

He said, "I'll never marry."
The while his teeth he grated.
But when he met Miss Carrie,
He quickly Otto mated.

If it is true that automation causes unemployment, the proper thing to do is for us to automate.

Let's see now, where shall we start? Why not with the farms, they were the first to automate? Okay, so we start with the farms.

First we destroy the combines (short for combined harvesters and threshers). This bit of destruction sets us back 40 years to the days of headers and binders, when the grain was first cut, hauled and stacked to await the threshing rig, which came along later with a big crew of hungry men to thresh the wheat. There is visual proof that this move will furnish work for two-hundred-fifty to three-hundred-fifty thousand "harvest stiffs." That's the number of hoboes who used to ride the freights into the wheat states. One man now harvests and threshes more than ten did in the good old days.

Now, having given the hoboes back their jobs (I was one of 'em), let us go back a bit further and create a few million more jobs, or rather, recreate them, by eliminating the headers and binders. Let us go back to the scythes and cradles (still symbols of automation, mind you), let us do away with the potato diggers, the corn harvesters, the mechanical cotton pickers; let us do away with every mechanical device on the farm.

With this move, in one fell swoop, we have opened up farm jobs for all the millions who have left the farm since the 1870's when the exodus away from the rural life began. But we now have almost four times the population we had then, so we will need four times as many workers. In order to furnish enough employees for the farms, we are going to have to shut down at least 8 out of every 10 factories, foundries, processing plants, mines, mills and what have you.

On the farm without machinery you will work 12 hours per day, fourteen in harvest time, and do two hours of chores daily. You will be able to feed yourself and family and one-half of another person from your production. Instead of five per cent of the people on the farms, there will be five per cent left in the cities. Think what that would save in urban renewal. What a marvelous standard of living we could enjoy if only it weren't for machines.

Let's try another tack. Suppose we leave the farms automated and de-automate industry. Remove all machinery from the factories and foundries, from the processing plants, the mines and the mills. What? You couldn't have any of those things without machinery? Machinery is automation, and we decided we didn't want that, didn't we?

Oh, I see, some machinery is all right, the kind you are used to and have been working with. It's new machinery that bothers you. Well, your old man griped about the machinery you can't live without today.

Okay, we will just unautomate one industry. Take the auto plants, they are about the worst offenders. Let's go back to building cars by hand. Oh, you love autos and like to drive them, you don't think you could get along without them, but you couldn't pay $50,000 for one? Well, neither could many other people, so it wouldn't do much good to de-automate the car industry would it? We would make millions of unemployed ex-auto workers in the process. Did it ever occur to you that that is exactly what would happen if we were ever fools enough to de-automate any industry?

Even the spinning wheel was the beginning of automation in the textile industry. We did get rid of the spinning wheel after the loom was invented. The only time it pays to eliminate one machine is when another is invented that does the same job better, faster and cheaper — and creates more jobs, not fewer. To create unemployment we would have to start going backwards towards less efficient machinery.

Wit and Whimsy

Like the story about the man who telephoned a married couple he hadn't seen in a long time. The wife answered.

Man: "Hi Mary, how's everything? How's ol' Jim?"

Mary: "Jim? Didn't you know? He's dead. Went down to the garden to pull a cabbage for dinner, bent down and fell dead right on the spot."

Man: "Oh you poor thing! What on earth did you do?"

Mary: "What could we do? We had to open a can of peas."

Cuthbert had been listening for half an hour to a lecture from his father on the evils of late morning rising.

Father: "You will never amount to anything, unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember, it's the early bird that catches the worm!"

Cuthbert (laughed): "Ha, Ha! How about the worm? What did he get for turning out so early?"

Father: "My son, that worm hadn't been to bed all night; he was on his way home!"

Complainant: "I've been getting threatening letters through the mail. Isn't there a law against that?"

Post Office Inspector: "Of course there is. It's a very serious offense to send threatening letters. Have you any idea who's doing it?"

Complainant: "Sure. The Dumpus Furniture Company."

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

In my last article I discussed the nature of the "extreme moderate" and stated that a middle of the road position could only lead to the decline of personal liberty. I should like to go into greater depth to show just how this works.

On any given political question, there are only two positions that one may take: one which promotes individual freedom, or one which weakens it. No matter what decision you make, men will be either more or less free as a result of your choice. If the question is whether or not a 3 per cent sales tax should be enacted, a "yes" answer will amount to a reduction in freedom, for the state will forcibly deprive the customer of a portion of his money for the "privilege" of being able to make a purchase; if the answer is "no," then this money will not be taken from the customer, and his freedom, at least to this extent, has been preserved.

Along comes the middle-of-the-roader, however, and proposes a "compromise" between the two choices, but note that the compromise is always over the degree of coercion. It involves only the amount of loss of freedom. You cannot "compromise" on any issue involving freedom and still have as much freedom as you had before. To illustrate: let us suppose one group advocates a 3 per cent sales tax, but the pro-freedom people oppose it saying that any sales tax will reduce individual liberty. The "moderate" comes along and offers a compromise: "let us have a 2 per cent sales tax instead." At first blush most people would feel that such a compromise is "fair," because it gives both sides a portion of what they want. But does it? When one man says "I demand the right to forcibly deprive you of a portion of your property by use of a 3 per cent sales tax," and his intended victim replies "I insist on being free from your coercion," can it be said that a "compromise" aids both parties? Clearly not, for when a 2 per cent tax is substituted for the 3 per cent tax, the "moderate" is admitting that it is proper for the first man to deprive the second man of some of his property; the only question open for debate is the amount that will be stolen. The question of the second man's freedom has already been answered, and in the negative. The act of "compromise" decides the matter in favor of the demands of the first man.

When two thieves approach a man and one demands all of his money, but the other wants to be more "moderate" and leave him $5 to get home on, is the second man any less the thief? Can it be said that the victim is as secure in his property as he was before encountering the thieves? The act of theft has taken place and the thief has benefitted. The victim is not better off — in fact he is not even as well off as before — he has sustained a loss. How then can it be said that simply reducing the amount of money to be stolen is a compromise in recognition of the demands of the victim?

When the socialist says: "I want 50 units of socialism imposed on everyone" and his victims reply: "We want 0 units of socialism; we want our freedom," and the moderate comes along and says: "let us have 25 units of socialism," the issue of freedom or socialism has just been answered by the moderate in favor of socialism. The main battle has just been lost. A compromise is reached, but only as to the amount of socialism that will be imposed, namely 25 units. Next time around, the socialist will argue for 75 units of socialism, and the moderate will again offer a compromise, let us say at 50 units. By the act of "compromise," the original demand of the socialist has been met — it just took a little longer. And so it goes, as the recent history of this country will attest: the socialist out in front leading the charge, with the moderate bringing up the rear, but with no doubt as to the direction both are going.

ACADEMY SCANDAL

To the Editor:

If I were the mother of one of the cadets who recently resigned from the Air Force Academy in its cheating scandal, I would be tempted to hold the academy liable for taking my outstanding and exceptional son and turning him into a cheater. I certainly would demand that not only the students be investigated but also the entire academic and athletic structure. What kind of a school is it that takes only the most outstanding high school graduates and then somewhere during 4 years pushes them into doing a dishonest act?

When such large numbers of students are involved, the school obviously must be at fault — not the cadets. If the academic and athletic program of a school is too demanding and overly rigorous then change the program, not the students.

Let military academies, along with all other institutions of higher learning, concentrate on graduating normal intelligent people — not super automatons. After all, these are the kind of people who are the greatest asset in all fields, military and otherwise.

Men do not need this extremely difficult training to be a success and a leader of men in industry and private business so why should our military have as their aim the production of supermen?

Sports Editor Loy Holman is itching to know the names of the athletes involved. Just because West Point published the names of the athletes concerned in their 1951 scandal is no reason the Air Force Academy should do the same. Those names aren't Loy Holman's business nor the business of anyone else except the parents of the students involved and the school. The importance of the Academy does not lie only in the fact that it supplies a football team for the area.

PERTINENT ROUTE

To the Editor:

In regard to the letter by George M. Ernst and his opinion concerning majority rule — I refer Mr. Ernst to the Bible.

St. Matt. 7:13-14. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

Many, I point out, would constitute a majority in relation to a few — so it would seem that God's opinion of majority opinions is not very high.

Certainly did enjoy "One Way to Prevent Hoarding."

There was a piece in the Wall Street Journal not long ago that told JUST how much silver was in the different coins. Failed to clip it and now I would like to know. Do you know? As I remember the dollar is about 90 per cent silver.

These new 25 cents and 50 cents sure don't have the same "ring" do they? And from what I gather — the per cent of silver in 25 cents down varies according to what SOMEBODY SOMEWHERE decides to put in.

Do you have accurate information on this?

MRS. JOHN S. ACORN
Colville, Wash.

Editor's Note: We did not have the information reader Acorn requested at our fingertips. But we called the Charles Leeming Tutt Library at Colorado College and their researcher kindly looked it up for us. She gave us the latest figures they have on the subject. She was not sure whether or not there had been any recent changes.

Reader Acorn says the smaller coins don't have the same "ring" they used to, but it has been so long since we tossed a four-bit piece on the bar that we are hardly qualified to make a judgment on this.

The figures follow:

There are exactly 412.5 grains of fine silver in one silver dollar. On a slip stick this figures out to approximately 85.94 per cent.

There are 192.9 grains of silver in a 50 cent piece. This means that there are 385.8 grains in two 50 cent pieces, or in one dollar's worth of silver change, since the quarter is one-half the weight of the half-dollar and the dime is one-fifth its weight. The percentage of silver is the same in all three of the lesser coins. The difference between the silver content of the dollar and a dollar's worth of change amounts to six per cent, or 79.94 per cent for silver in the lesser coins.

In other words, the chicken-feed isn't worth as much as the cart-wheels.

The above figures are in troy weight at 480 grains per ounce.

To the Editor:

I have written this in hopes of publication in your outstanding paper, for the purpose of promoting a better understanding of the importance of an education to the youth of America today. Many students have confused ideas of their purpose in schools and therefore, they must be made to realize that without an education, success in this modern society is almost impossible.

At this time of year, a student especially acknowledges his existence in the field of education. Finals make us all aware that we have certain obligations to our parents, teachers, and especially to ourselves.

Recently at an assembly, the Palmer High Band presented several musical selections which instilled a certain patriotism to every member of the student body. To me, I saw a school united by an interest in a particular activity which held us in silence for several minutes. But, as I looked upon this unity, I discovered we all should soon be divided. This division of people and personalities will be a loss not only to Palmer, but to Wasson as well. Because, as Wasson and Palmer see their student bodies dissolve, the birth of a new school, Billy Mitchell, will be brought into existence. Competition and rivalry will be stronger now, and a new spirit for a different school must take place in many of us.

As this semester closes and a new one approaches, I think all students should take time out to evaluate the responsibilities they possess and what they should do to successfully uphold the small burden they carry. Many young adults look upon school as a place to clown and have fun, instead of an educational institution as it is meant to be. They distract other's attention in class and speak disrespectfully to the very people who are there to help them. These are the scholars who learn the hard way that life is not a bed of roses. A person whom I hold a great deal of respect for spoke the following to his class not long ago, "If you think school is a big joke and that an education is not a necessity, then you walk out of these doors and look at life as it really is. Go out and find a job, if you can, and when you have found yourself a failure, think back and the realization of your ignorance will humiliate you beyond reason."

Though he does not major in speech, he still spoke words of wisdom. A wisdom that a few laughed at. But, is this really a joke? Certainly life is no joke, and a means of support is living, and a proper education is the best insurance of a profitable occupation.

While watching this band assembly, I suddenly realized I had not appreciated my school to its fullest. My attitude was not of sufficient measure. I had looked upon certain classes as a sort of punishment for a reason not known to me. I had not appreciated them enough and therefore, I had a sense of distaste for school. But, now I understand the reason for my presence at each class, no matter how distasteful it may seem.

It is my hope to see other future adults of this community, state, and nation open their eyes in appreciation to the people who are preparing them for the years ahead and the future which depends on our generation.

When the time draws near, it is my fondest desire to experience a new unity of people, personalities, and ideals. And, as I change my loyalty from the Brown and White to the Red and Gray, I will know the loss I must face as I walk through the doors of Palmer for the last time and must open the door to a new life and different friendships. It is then I will understand best what my parents meant when they said to me, "Live everyday to its fullest, because you can only live it once, and in just twenty-four hours it will be gone."

To The Point

Who Needs Comfort?

"Comfort" is principally a nineteenth-and twentieth-century aspiration. Not until our own generation was it possible for people to be thoroughly comfortable at all seasons: central heating, air conditioning, and a multitude of gadgets have accounted for that. This may be heresy — but I doubt whether comfort is good for man.

These lines are written in a Scottish country house, austerly beautiful, built about 1750. The laird who built it cared little enough for comfort: he was interested in the grand style of things. The ceilings of Durie House are very high, and the rooms are very big, and even in summer this stone mansion is chilly — but always cheerful.

In some ways, Durie is less comfortable than it was two centuries ago, for there are few servants nowadays to fetch wood and coals and do chores. Yet it is a good place to live, if one dresses warmly. Hot-water bottles have supplanted warming-pans. One encounters small comfort, but plenty of privacy and good cheer. At the top of society, the laird and his wife are quite indifferent to comfort, knowing better things, among them architectural loveliness.

Half a mile distant, on this estate, tinkers are encamped. (Tinkers, gentle reader, are a folk of gypsy-like habits who, nevertheless, are not gypsies.) These tinkers carry all their goods and chattels from place to place in peramubulators and little hand-carts; they sleep in tiny unheated tents, all winter. They never have known comfort, and they don't mean to be introduced: they doggedly resist all attempts to assimilate them to the pattern of modern confortable life. They are healthy, independent, and sufficiently merry. At the bottom of society, the tinkers are quite indifferent to comfort, preferring to be masterless men and sturdy beggars.

Are the proprietor of Durie and his wife, or the tinkers — at opposite poles of society — badly misguided in their contempt for comfort? I think not. For man must pay a high price for every creature-comfort. If one wants overheated rooms and modern gadgets, he must adapt himself to the routine of twentieth-century life and labor. Ordinarily he must surrender both splendor and independence, if he seeks to be snug and smug.

It is high time, I maintain, for some of us to deny the claims of modern comfort. Already rebellion rears its lovely head among deer-hunters, fishermen, and campers who escape from suburbia to the sanctuary of cabin and tent. It is not well to be a slave to wall-to-wall carpeting, the price of what may consume a man's potential leisure. It is not well to lead an incubator kind of life, in which we move only from houses at extremely artificial temperatures to automobiles at extremely artificial temperatures. It is not well to chain one's self to "labor saving" gadgets acquired on the installment plan, various kinds of labor being good for body and soul.

To the old and infirm, I would allow many comforts, since they are barred from active duties and pleasures. But I scowl upon a coddled rising generation, surfeited and bored, whom doting parents endeavor to rear immune from any sort of challenge or want. To be soft and sheltered is not to be happy. If the choice must be made, it is better to grow up as an ignorant, brawling tinker than as an affluent juvenile delinquent.

Never before in history did most people — in America and western Europe, that is — enjoy any choice between austerity and comfort: they had to live very simply, willy-nilly. But simplicity — nay, even austerity — is beginning to have charms for a minority who sense that the summit of human aspiration is higher than the rumpus room.

Liberty, as proclaimed by law and constitutions, can never have full meaning without the added ingredients of Fraternity and Brotherhood; without the spirit of friendliness and unselfishness . . . love for one's fellows. Those powerful qualifying attributes help spell out what Americanism is.

When one sees a family unit, parents and children, with Bibles in hand, attending church to worship as they please . . . then one is witnessing Liberty in its finest and most fullsome forms, for that, too, is American. Freedom of religious worship is equally important, along with economic freedom and freedom from oppression, in America. Then worship God as you please but be sure to worship . . . that is Americanism.

First Church Elects New Officers

The annual business meeting of the First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, was held Thursday evening to hear the yearly reports of officers, boards and committees on last year's work, to elect officers, boards and committees for 1965, and to transact all other business brought before the meeting.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation and unanimous congregation support of a resolution of gratitude to retiring treasurer Dr. Carrie Gilman Carey.

In 1943, Dr. Carey joined the church, and by 1945 became its treasurer. As a tribute to her untiring loalty, her name was inscribed on the chapel in 1959. Now, after 20 years of service to the church as treasurer members of the First Congressional Church are conferring upon her another kind of recognition in the form of a simple but valid statement underwritten by all which reads, "In response to your long and dedicated stewardship as our Treasurer, Dr. Carey, we pledge to you our deep gratitude and our constant affection."

Newly - elected officers for the year are: James V. Carris, assistant moderator; Juanita Evans, membership clerk John Jenkins, treasurer; Jack Curry, assistant treasurer; Miriam Grant, recording secretary.

Re-elected to office are: Don Bates, moderator; Willith E. Armstrong, auditor; Mrs. A. L. Brown, historian; Mrs. James Manella, flower chairman.

Panthers Take WRL Lead

Harrison's Towering Cagers Dump Academy, 89-76

By DICK FOSTER

Harrison's tall and talented Panthers pulled out all stops Friday night at Air Academy High, and when Norm Sullivan's team was through with the Kadets, they had a decisive 89-76 victory.

It will go a long way in deciding the Will Rogers League's first basketball champion too, as Harrison now stands atop the heap with no defeats in four outings. Academy now shows 3-1 and will face Canon City tonight while the Panthers go to City Auditorium to meet Cheyenne.

It was unfortunate for the Kadets that they had to face Harrison Friday, for the Panthers had just about every portion of their game working in top shape. Despite Academy's platoon strategy and the fabulous performances of Bert Spear and Randy Green, Harrison was all too powerful a machine.

The smooth functioning Harrison team saw brilliant performances by all of the key personnel. Harold Oldham sank 13 points, Ed Hook bombed in 18 points and got 16 rebounds, Mike Obert got 18 rebounds and 22 points, John Gagnon sank another 10 points and John Dalton put in 20 points, including some show stopping stuff-shots.

Academy outshot Harrison percentage wise, hitting 31 of 61 from the field for 50.8 per cent, and getting 14 of 18 at the free throw line. Bert Spear's terrific eye connected on 14 of 19 attempts for 28 points while Green hit six of 12 fielders for 12 more points. Harrison shot 35 of 75 shots from outside for 46.7 per cent, and got 19 of 27 from the charity lane.

The Panther height was probably the biggest deciding point. Harrison front liners Oldham, Obert, and Dalton controlled the boards all night, gathering 55 rebounds to the Kadets effort of 35.

Harrison played ball control too. Persistance was one word that Sullivan's cagers have learned well while shooting. The Panthers were very seldom left without a basket when they went under the basket for a shot. Harrison height also frustrated Academy's smaller men and they were forced to shoot from the outside most of the time.

It was actually a runaway throughout most of the fast moving affair. Academy's platoon system, a tool designed to wear out the competition, did some damage in the third quarter though. After the Panthers had run an entire first half, the cagers grew weary and the Kadets rallied briefly with a fresh unit.

Air Academy's plan looked to be one of putting up a blistering pace and wear down the competition. The Kadet cagers started running at the tipoff and scampered hard throughout. They had alternating platoons to replace the tired roundballers.

Harrison's lanky lads hustled right with Academy. The Kadets were moving too fast to shoot right, and they were completely outmanned when the re-bounding chore came around.

Harrison moved quicky in front with a 20-10 first quarter edge. The Panthers worked around a sticky Academy defense, and sometimes managed a fast break. Most of the time, however they just flooded one side and drew the Kadets, leaving a man open under the hoop.

The Panthers could have had another 10 points had their passing been on target, but they blew several fast breaks with overthrown balls.

Nevertheless, Sullivan's crew racked up a 46-32 halftime bulge.

BYU Gunners Cut Down AFA Cagers

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Brigham Young's jet-age Cougars swept into the Cadet Gymnasium at breakneck speed Friday night and never slowed down, thrashing Bob Spear's manpower-shy Air Force team with a high-voltage fast break that produced a record-smashing 110-77 victory.

The flashy Utah quintet hit town as the nation's highest-scoring basketball team and it didn't take a partisan crowd of 2,200 long to find out why. The Falcons usually dependable defense was ripped to tatters by the Cougars' electrifying running game and a fantastic shooting bombardment that had the net hanging limp with exhaustion at the conclusion.

The Air Force, minus floor leader scott Etnyre, guard Jerry Yankee, and reserve Jim Tipton, all sent to the sidelines by the current cheating scandal, had its customary poise disrupted early by a glue-tight BYU press. In addition the Cougars had the Falcons' nifty shuffle solved in the telling early minutes of the contest and it wasn't until the Cadets fired up their own running game after intermission that they began to get in on the scoring fun.

The Cougars, with crisp lead-out passes that frequently traveled half the length of the floor with pinpoint accuracy, cruised through the Falcons like a group of startled greyhounds and often climaxed the race down-floor with spectacular feeds that caught men barreling toward the goal wide open.

To make defense even more impossible, the Air Force could concentrate on no one area. All five of the BYU starters hit in double figures and every one shot at a better than 50 per cent clip from the field. Overall the team hit a sizzling 53.3 per cent of its casts from the floor, dropping 49 of 92. The Air Force had a highly respectable 43 per cent, but it was far from sufficient on this particular evening.

The Cougars were paced by 6-3 John Fairchild, a picture ballplayer with All - America moves in every twist of his lean frame. He deposited 20 points, had the team's overwhelming edge in the backboard wars with 12 rebounds, and was a staunch defender. Guard Dick Nemelka shared the scoring honors with his 20 point contribution.

For the Falcons, who tried gamely to keep pace with a 51 point second half, Sam Peshut hit 22 points, many on arching half-hooks off the break in the final 20 minutes. Pete Hugdahl

CANON CITY—Gary Richardson's vastly improved Gladiators snaped a three-game losing streak here Friday night in Will Rogers League play as the visiting Widefield roundballers stormed past Canon City's Tigers, 51-37.

It was the fourth straight WRL loss for Ray Wheeler's Tigers, who now occupy the cellar in loop standings via a 0-4 record.

The Gladiators were paced by Dave Smedsrud, who poured in 17 points hitting eight field goals and one charity toss, John Henke added 11 points and Dick Stevenson pumped in 10 points to give the Gladiators three players scoring in the double figures.

Tonight the Tigers journey to Air Academy High while the undefeated Harrison cagers take on Cheyenne Mountain to round out the WRL slate.

Chamberlain Leads 76ers By Celtics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain and the Philadelphia 76ers bested Bill Russell and the Boston Celtics 118-105 Friday night in the second game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader before 10,831, the largest crowd to see a pro basketball game here in almost three years.

In the first game at Convention Hall Dave Budd's field goal with 1:36 remaining broke a tie and helped the New York Knicks score a 106-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Chamberlain scored 27 points and gabbed 34 rebounds while holding Russell to 12 points and 17 rebounds.

Boston has lost only nine games this season, four of them to Philadelphia.

This was a tight game with no more than three points separating the teams until the late minutes of the first half when Philadelphia outscored the champion Celtics 16-3 to take a 64-52 halftime lead.

Pokes Add Sixth Victory To String

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Wyoming notched its sixth straight basketball win Friday night, a 92-70 nonconference victory over San Jose Sate.

The winning streak is an 11-year high for the Cowpokes.

Flynn Robinson scored 20 points in the first half to pace Wyoming to a 51-39 lead at the intermission. The Cowboys utilized a devastating fast break as they led from the first basket.

Drops DU Sextet Into Loop Cellar

By LOY HOLMAN

Inspired by some pressure goal tending from Bill Howard and clutch shooting when the Pioneers were serving time for penalties, Colorado College, scored a 4-2 victory over the University of Denver Friday night to escape the cellar of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

The triumph gave CC a 2-5 league record and pushed them ahead of last place Denver's 1-5-1 mark in the WCHA. The two teams are to meet again this evening in a return go at the DU Arena with the first faceoff scheduled for 8 p.m.. and a near capacity crowd anticipated.

FRIDAY'S RESULTS

Colorado College 4, Denver 2
Michigan Tech 10, Michigan U. 2
North Dakota 5, Minnesota 4

The Tigers win — their second over the Pioneers in the last 25 games — buoyed the hopes of Coach Bob Johnson's Bengals for a possible playoff spot at the end of the regular season. Still left besides the clash with DU in Denver tonight are two-game series with Minnesota and North Dakota at home and similar sets with Michigan Tech and Michigan State on the road.

Should CC play as well as they did Friday night they could definitely make the playoffs. But tonight's contest will be a crucial one in this bid.

The loss all but eliminated Denver from the post-season play as Coach Murray Armstrong estimated they would have to sweep the pair from the Tigers and then win three of their four remaining league games. That seems near impossible since they must face North Dakota and Tech in the

In other games around the a 5-4 win over Minnesota at Tech took over second place Minneapolis, and Michigan from Minnesota with a 10-2 sity at Tech. All teams meet again tonight.

The Tigers, with Howard having his finest night of his still short career at CC, took a one goal lead in the first period and were never headed. Both teams scored in the second period and then senior Warren Fordyce and sophomore Jim Amidon added the clinchers in the final chapter to wrap up the victory.

Howard, a transfer from Grand Forks, N. D., breaking a habit of one bad period a game, was spectacular in making 34 hard stops of the Denver shots. He definitely outclassed DU's heralded Buddy Blom who was being touted for All-America. Blom halted 29 shots, but the Tigers found his weakness with high shots over his often prone body.

All but one of the goals for both sides were made while one of the teams was short via penalty, with the Tigers even scoring once while they were minus a man.

Scoring once while Denver was shorthanded by penalty, and again when their own team had a man in the sin bin, the Tigers skated their way to a 2-1 lead at the end of the first two periods and were on their way toward the upset of the pre-season favorites.

Peppering the Denver goal relentlessly in the opening minutes, the dash of the Bengals finally paid off when DU was called for its first infraction of the contest. With defenseman Jerry Petrie cooling his heels on the sidelines, CC applied the power play with the sophomore line on the attack.

At the 11:21 mark, little over a minute after the penalty, Johnny Genz opened the scoring by taking a pass from Amidon on the side and then lifting the puck into the upper right corner.

That's the way it stood through the rest of the period with the Tigers holding a 1-0 advantage, although the Pioneers came about as close as possible to tying the score. With four minutes left, DU's Grant Warwick fired a hard shot at the CC goal, but after hitting the pip and bouncing back the disc rested right on top of the goal line and goalie Howard fell on it.

Early in the second period, however, Denver evened matters, with this time the Tigers sitting out a penalty and a man short. CC was caught forechecking slightly too vigorously and the Pioneers broke out of their zone of a three on two rush and Howard was forced into coming out of the crease to try and stop the attack. Norm Kvern pushed it into the opposite corner to tie the count just 21 seconds after the penalty.

Colorado College later gained the lead again with less than five minutes left in the second period — scoring despite their own team killing another penalty. Bob Lindberg blocked a slap shot from DU on the point and then out-raced the Pioneers to the puck in the Denver end. He centered to Bob Magie and

Hawks Topple Bullets

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Pettit and Zelmo Beaty teamed for 65 points and led the St. Louis Hawks to a 124-119 victory over the Baltimore Bullets in a National Basketball Association game Friday night.

The victory increased the second-place Hawks' lead over the Bullets to 2½ games in the Western Division and proved partial revenge for last weekend when the Bullets beat St. Louis three times in three days.

St. Louis held a seven point lead late in the game before Baltimore made a final rush and closed to 119-117.

Broncos Build Early Lead To Defeat Tigers, 80-68

HASTINGS, NEB.—Powerful Hastings College rolled to an 80-68 victory over outgunned Colorado College here Friday night in the first of a two-game weekend series. The second contest is set for tonight.

The Broncos, using their entire 12 man squad, rolled to a commanding early lead and then held off a late surge by Red Eastlack's Tigers that closed the gap in the final minutes. The loss left CC with a 2-11 record for the campaign. Hastings is now 13-2.

The winners jumped to a 10-2 lead in the opening minutes of play and had widened the gap to a whopping 40-12 with four minutes left in the half. Hastings then went scoreless while Dave Herrington ran in five points and Pete Susemihl four as the Tigers closed to 40-23 at halftime.

The Broncos still had a 20 point margin at 76-56 with four minutes left in the game but Chris Grant hit six straight points and Bill Evans four as the Tigers staged a late rally to reduce the final bulge.

Susemihl led the CC scorers with 19 points and Herrington added 17. Bennie Crawford captured game honors with 23 for the Broncos.

Wasson's Stall Game Defeats Terrors, 53-44

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Wasson used a variation of Palmer's wide - court stall offense in the fourth period Friday night and handed the Terrors a 53-44 loss in the Palmer Gym.

The victory boosted Wasson's South Central League record to 3-2 and dropped Palmer to 2-3.

Palmer played even with the Thunderbirds throughout the first half and left the court at halftime facing a two-point deficit. The Terrors, aiming to get their own stall out of the bag once they took the lead, never got a chance, Wasson maintained at least the two - point spread through the third period, which ended, 39-35 for the Thunderbirds. Then Wasson drove in four points to lead off the final period and the foul-ridden Terrors could not regroup.

The T-Birds, led by the dribbling of Jim Smith, started its stall at 5:15 while holding a 47-41 lead. In the next four minutes two of Palmer's top scorers fouled out.

Smith gained 14 points, high for both teams, and pleased at least the Wasson side with his ball - handling during Wasson's delay game. Randy Stanley, Wasson's leading scorer for the season, came up with 11 points.

Ed Fitzgerald, the last of three Terrors to foul out, ripped the cords for 12 points, shooting from outside a great deal. Tom Espinoza, the first Tribesman to go out on fouls, scored 11 points. The third fouler, Charles McKenzie, had eight points to place third among Terror scorers.

Wasson scored first on a basket by Mike Martin and didn't let Palmer get ahead until the start of the second period, when McKenzie, Ron Travis and Espinoza got three straight buckets and moved the Terrors to a 17-14 lead.

Iowa Upsets UCLA, Loyola Stuns Wichita

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — With Chris Pervall scoring 28 points, Iowa's unranked Hawkeyes upset top-rated UCLA 87-82 after Loyola of Chicago had stunned Wichita 93-82 in a Chicago Stadium basketball doubleheader Friday night.

The Bruins' loss was only their second in their last 45 games. Illinois defeated the 1964 NCAA champions 118-93 in December. It gives UCLA a 13-2 mark while Iowa is 10-5.

After the score was tied seven times and the lead changed hands 13 times in the first half, the count was locked 45-45 at intermission. Pervall pumped in 12 points in the first half with teammates Jim Rodgers adding 11 and Dennis Pauling 12.

Behind the scoring of Pervall and George Peoples, Iowa clinched into a 10-87 lead in the opening minutes of the second half and held on until the end.

McCarthy Leads Bucs

Pirates Eke Out Win Over St. Joe

Behind the shooting of their ace gunner, Tom McCarthy, St. Mary's Pirates registered their eighth Denver Parochial League with a slim 58-54 victory over visiting St. Francis Friday night.

McCarthy scored 25 points to pace the Buccaneer attack while teammate John Van Horn contributed 13 points to the winning cause. This was the Pirates eighth DPL victory against one loss as Don Wright's cagers maintained their co-lead in the pennant chase. In overall competition, the Bucs have compiled a 13-2 won-loss record.

The Pirates raced to a 32-20 lead at halftime. But their northern visitors managed to contain the St. Mary's basketballers in the second half as both teams scored 26 points apiece.

This Sunday to St. Mary's aggregation plays host to winless Mt. Carmel, beginning at 2:30 p.m. at the Pirates Gymnasium.

Harrison's Towering Cagers Dump Academy, 89-76

By DICK FOSTER

Harrison's tall and talented Panthers pulled out all stops Friday night at Air Academy High, and when Norm Sullivan's team was through with the Kadets, they had a decisive 89-76 victory.

It will go a long way in deciding the Will Rogers League's first basketball champion too, as Harrison now stands atop the heap with no defeats in four outings. Academy now shows 3-1 and will face Canon City tonight while the Panthers go to City Auditorium to meet Cheyenne.

It was unfortunate for the Kadets that they had to face Harrison Friday, for the Panthers had just about every portion of their game working in top shape. Despite Academy's platoon strategy and the fabulous performances of Bert Spear and Randy Green, Harrison was all too powerful a machine.

The smooth functioning Harrison team saw brilliant performances by all of the key personnel. Harold Oldham sank 13 points, Ed Hook bombed in 18 points and got 16 rebounds, Mike Obert got 18 rebounds and 22 points, John Gagnon sank another 10 points and John Dalton put in 20 points, including some show stopping stuff-shots.

Academy outshot Harrison percentage wise, hitting 31 of 61 from the field for 50.8 per cent, and getting 14 of 18 at the free throw line. Bert Spear's terrific eye connected on 14 of 19 attempts for 28 points while Green hit six of 12 fielders for 12 more points. Harrison shot 35 of 75 shots from outside for 46.7 per cent, and got 19 of 27 from the charity lane.

The Panther height was probably the biggest deciding point. Harrison front liners Oldham, Obert, and Dalton controlled the boards all night, gathering 55 rebounds to the Kadets effort of 35.

Harrison played ball control too. Persistance was one word that Sullivan's cagers have learned well while shooting. The Panthers were very seldom left without a basket when they went under the basket for a shot. Harrison height also frustrated Academy's smaller men and they were forced to shoot from the outside most of the time.

It was actually a runaway throughout most of the fast moving affair. Academy's platoon system, a tool designed to wear out the competition, did some damage in the third quarter though. After the Panthers had run an entire first half, the cagers grew weary and the Kadets rallied briefly with a fresh unit.

Air Academy's plan looked to be one of putting up a blistering pace and wear down the competition. The Kadet cagers started running at the tipoff and scampered hard throughout. They had alternating platoons to replace the tired roundballers.

Harrison's lanky lads hustled right with Academy. The Kadets were moving too fast to shoot right, and they were completely outmanned when the rebounding chore came around.

Harrison moved quicky in front with a 20-10 first quarter edge. The Panthers worked around a sticky Academy defense, and sometimes managed a fast break. Most of the time, however they just flooded one side and drew the Kadets, leaving a man open under the hoop.

The Panthers could have had another 10 points had their passing been on target, but they blew several fast breaks with overthrown balls.

Nevertheless, Sullivan's crew racked up a 46-32 halftime bulge.

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Brigham Young's jet-age Cougars swept into the Cadet Gymnasium at breakneck speed Friday night and never slowed down, thrashing Bob Spear's manpower-shy Air Force team with a high-voltage fast break that produced a record-smashing 110-77 victory.

The flashy Utah quintet hit town as the nation's highest-scoring basketball team and it didn't take a partisan crowd of 2,200 long to find out why. The Falcons usually dependable defense was ripped to tatters by the Cougars' electrifying running game and a fantastic shooting bombardment that had the net hanging limp with exhaustion at the conclusion.

The Air Force, minus floor leader scott Etnyre, guard Jerry Yankee, and reserve Jim Tipton, all sent to the sidelines by the current cheating scandal, had its customary poise disrupted early by a glue-tight BYU press. In addition the Cougars had the Falcons' nifty shuffle solved in the telling early minutes of the contest and it wasn't until the Cadets fired up their own running game after intermission that they began to get in on the scoring fun.

The Cougars, with crisp lead-out passes that frequently traveled half the length of the floor with pinpoint accuracy, cruised through the Falcons like a group of startled greyhounds and often climaxed the race down-floor with spectacular feeds that caught men barreling toward the goal wide open.

To make defense even more impossible, the Air Force could concentrate on no one area. All five of the BYU starters hit in double figures and every one shot at a better than 50 per cent clip from the field. Overall the team hit a sizzling 53.3 per cent of its casts from the floor, dropping 49 of 92. The Air Force had a highly respectable 43 per cent, but it was far from sufficient on this particular evening.

The Cougars were paced by 6-3 John Fairchild, a picture ballplayer with All - America moves in every twist of his lean frame. He deposited 20 points, led the team's overwhelming edge in the backboard wars with 12 rebounds, and was a staunch defender. Guard Dick Nemelka shared the scoring honors with his 20 point contribution.

Chamberlain Leads 76ers By Celtics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain and the Philadelphia 76ers bested Bill Russell and the Boston Celtics 118-105 Friday night in the second game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader before 10,831, the largest crowd to see a pro basketball game here in almost three years.

In the first game at Convention Hall Dave Budd's field goal with 1:36 remaining broke a tie and helped the New York Knicks score a 106-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Chamberlain scored 27 points and gabbed 34 rebounds while holding Russell to 12 points and 17 rebounds.

Boston has lost only nine games this season, four of them to Philadelphia.

This was a tight game with no more than three points separating the teams until the late minutes of the first half when Philadelphia outscored the champion Celtics 16-3 to take a 64-52 halftime lead.

Pokes Add Sixth Victory To String

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Wyoming notched its sixth straight basketball win Friday night, a 92-70 nonconference victory over San Jose Sate.

The winning streak is an 11-year high for the Cowpokes.

New SEC Slate Set for 1970

By KELSO STUREON

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Conference, which has never been able to name an official football champion because of unequal scheduling, laid the groundwork for such a move Friday by approving a round-robin schedule.

The new football schedule will be instituted in 1970, when there will be 10 schools in the conference. That year they will play five traditional rivals each season and two other alternating SEC opponents for a total of seven games.

Under the new schedule, which makes every team play every other member school within three years, there is no rule which limits a university to only seven SEC games. However, a move already afoot would have only the seven games count in the standings each year so a champion could be crowned.

In the past, the press and other news media have recognized as the conference champion the team finishing with the best won-lost percentage. This, however, proved unfair to teams which finished with 6-1 records and aw the title go to a team which was 7-1.

In other major action, the Executive Committee voted to keep Bernie Moore, who will be 70 this spring, as commissioner for another year and gave him a $5,000 salary increase. This increases his salary to $25,000 a year.

The committee made plans to select a new commissioner and the leading candidate still appeared to be Jim Corbett, athletic director at Louisiana State University.

The conference also:

—Voted against allowing female athletes to compete with or against males in SEC sports, but did rule that young women now participating in conference athletics could play out their eligibility.

—Turned down Florida State's attempt to gain admission by not giving the motion a second.

—Voted to permit schools to begin signing basketball players one week after the final game of the season instead of on or after the present date of April 1.

—Killed a move to raise the over-all limit of 140 football and basketball scholarships allowed each school by tabling several different motions until next year.

—Killed a move to permit SEC teams to play in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament by not allowing the motion to reach the floor.

Kilborn Sets Track Mark at Toronto

By BOB GREEN

TORONTO (AP) — Blonde young Pam Kilborn of Australia set a women's indoor world record of 6.3 seconds in the 50-yard high hurdles Friday night at the Toronto Telegram-Maple Leaf games.

The 19-year-old schoolteacher broke away to an excellent start and finished the four-hurdle course more than one yard in front of Debbie Thompson of Frederick, Md.

The time broke the old record of 6.4 Miss Kilborn shared with Tammy Davis of the U.S.

The young Aussie completed a double when she beat Miss Thompson again, this time with a lunge at the tape, in 5.8 in the 50-yard dash, a meet and Canadian record.

In the men's hurdles, world broad jump record holder Ralph Boston of Nashville, Tenn., swapped places with Russ Morgan and won in 6.2. Morgan had edged Boston in the finals of the 60-yard dash in the Millrose Games in New York Thursday night.

he slammed a rebound high over the Denver goalie's head.

Just as the second period ended, there was a disputed shot by the visitors, but because the goal light will not flash when the period is over there was really no question that it was no goal. It brough quite a protest from the Pioneers, however, as Myles Gillard's deflect from in front went squarely into the net for what could have been the tying tally.

With just short of five minutes gone in the final stanza, the Tigers started building a little more cushion to their slim lead, and it was a fine effort by team captain Fordyce that gave the Bengals their insurance.

Intercepting the puck along the right boards, Fordyce forced his way past two defenders and came in on the DU net all alone. He sent the puck flying over the sprawling body of the Denver goalie who had no chance at the save.

Then, at the 7:10 point, Amidon scores again for the Tigers to give them a 4-1 lead, catching the red shirted Pioneers again with a man in the penalty box. It was a rather lazy shot from the left side which bounced in and out of the cage.

But Denver continued to make a battle of it, and near the midway mark of the period they trimmed the margin to two goals with Lou Geddes knocking in a rolled that skimmed over the CC goalies out-stretched stick as he lay on the ice after being faked to the wrong side of the net.

Then, in the final three minutes, the Bengals survived another penalty with DU putting tremendous pressure on the goal after Jeff Sauer was called for a rather questionable hooking infraction. But Howard stood up under the pressure to earn the Tigers their second league victory and only the second win over Denver in the last 25 games.

Two Golfers Tie For Lucky Lead

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New Zealand's Bobby Charles and young Billy Martindale fired subpar golf Friday to overhaul the five first-round co-leaders and share the top spot midway of the $57,500 Lucky International Open with 36-hole scores of 138.

Charles, the British Open titlist in 1963, carded a four-under-par 67 and missed a chance for exclusive possession of first place when he bogeyed the 15th nad 16th holes.

Martindale, a 25-year-old Texas A&M graduate, played the last nine holes of the Harding Park municipal course in even par.

Then he carded three birdies on the next nine with putts of 5, 6 and 18 feet while going over par only once — when he missed a green for a second round 69.

Charles hooked to the right of the 18th green, hit up short and then missed a 10-foot putt.

Both the present British Open king, Tony Lema of nearby San Leandro, and defending Lucky champion Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, blew themselves out of the tournament with 77s and scores of 156. Lema then was disqualified when it was found he signed an incorrect score card.

Jack MacGowan and Gardner Dickinson, two of the first-round co-leaders at 68, both shot even par 71 over the 6,722-yard layout to share second place at 139, one stroke off the pace.

Another of the first round co-leaders, Thomas (Butch) Baird, remained in a good position for the $7,500 first prize with a 72 and 140. George Archer put a 73 with his 68 for a 141, while rookie Jack Montgomery carded five bogeys on his final nine holes for 75 and 143.

It took a score of 147 or better for a pro to compete in the remaining field of 70 pros and 10 amateurs.

Deadlocked with Baird at 140 were Canadian George Knudson, with a 69 Friday; Billy Maxwell and Don January, both with 70s.

Lema, who three-putted the 10th, 11th and 12th holes, was recorded as having signed an incorrect score card because it had him with a fiveratherthan had him with a five rather than a bogey six at the 10th.

Australian Bruce Crampton, winner of the Bing Crosby tournament last Sunday, shot a 72 for a 143. Bill Casper, who hasn't finished worse than third in three 1965 tourneys, slipped to a 73 and 145 at the midway point.

Sidelined by high scores along with Lema and Rodriguez were England's Tony Grubb with 77-149, Canada's Al Johnston 76-151, Dow Finsterwald 77-157, and current PGA champ Bobby Nichols, 79-150.

Texas A&M Coach Wants AFL Away

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Gene Stallings said Friday that American Football League representatives won't be welcome on his campus until the AFL agrees to cooperate with the National Collegiate Athletic Association in the signing of college players.

Stallings, in a Galveston Daily News interview, said "I support Darrell Royal 100 per cent on the stand he is taking."

He referred to statements by Royal, University of Texas football coach who has protested AFL clubs signing college football players until they have completed their college eligibility.

The National Football League has said it will abide by a NCAA request not to sign college football players before they complete their eligibility.

"Until the AFL agreed to cooperate with the NCAA, their representatives are not welcome on our campus during spring practice," Stallings said.

KIOWA — Calhan gained a 58-46 Black Forest League victory over Kiowa Friday night.

Dennis Carter had 16 points for the victors. Tom Kopper paced Kiowa with ten points.

DENVER (AP) — John Block who tied for game scoring honors with 27 points, missed a 1-and-1 opportunity for Southern California at the free throw line with six seconds left that allowed Denver to escape with a 79-78 basketball victory Friday night.

Block and Frank Mixon of Denver deadlocked for high point honors.

After Block's missed free throw with Denver ahead 77-76, Mixon grabbed the rebound and started dribbling out of the crowd when he was fouled by Block.

With three seconds left, Mixon cashed both free throws to give Denver a 79-76 bulge. USC's Ron Shackleford got an uncontested basket as the buzzer sounded for the final points.

CSC's Golf Coach Dies

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Dr. Howard G. Danford, 61, professor of physical education and golf coach at Colorado State College, collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack Friday afternoon.

Danford was performing a physical education demonstration during the college's mid-year conference on education.

He was a national authority on volleyball and was demonstrating "power volleyball" to physical education instructors from schools across the state.

He was rushed to Weld County General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

added 18 and had the crowd roaring with a deadly burst of firing in the minutes just following intermission.

The final total established a pair of Air Force records. It was the most points ever tallied against a Falcon team, wiping clean the old mark of 99 run up by Wyoming a year ago. And it was a record two-team total, surpassing the standard of 178 set by the Air Force and Colorado State University in 1957.

The Cougars' opening burst, which saw then shred the nets with 18 points in the first five minutes, stunned the crowd but it was nothing to compare with the display early in the second half. BUY slammed in eight of its first nine shot attempts and the Falcons, picking up the cue, matched the visitors almost point for point. The two clubs had blistered the cords for 31 points before the half was five minutes old and although the pace slackened somewhat, the floor was still taking a beating at the finish.

It took the Cougars exactly six seconds to get things rolling on a jump shot by Bob Quinney and after the Falcons grabbed a brief 3-2 lead on a goal and a free shot by Walt Edgerly the Utah team ran off 16 straight points and with just five minutes elapsed any contest had concluded. BUY raced on to a 48-26 halftime lead and then gradually lengthened it throughout the staggering second half bombarding. Cougar reserves worked the final few minutes of both halfs.

The Cougars, who move their road show on to Denver University tonight, came here ranked 19th in the nation and left with the fans wondering what the other 18 teams can be like!

The Falcons have no time to rest their weary muscles following the firewagon pace of Friday night. This evening Wyoming moves in and the Cowboys also prefer the fast route of travel. A preliminary contest between the freshman squads of the two schools is scheduled for 6 p.m. with the varsities following at 8.

Wasson's Stall Game Defeats Palmer

to make the count 17-16. Then Espinoza scored and a nifty out of bounds play. Rod Wells hit on a delay break for Wasson to make the score 19-18, was fouled and made the extra point at 2:28 of the second period. Smith canned a pair of free throws seven seconds later and Palmer never regained the advantage.

The Terrors did go to their own stalling game with 1:18 left in the first half, holding Wasson scoreless. But Palmer could not get man open for the lay - up which usually comes from the wide spread formation and Fitzgerald picked up a pair of free shots for the only points thereafter.

The third period was a story of basket exchanges. Palmer could not more than two points in a row and Wasson manged to get four in a string only once. But the Terrors drove well through the T-Bird defense, resulting in most of the points the Tribe obtained.

Smith hit a lay-up off the fourth quarter tip and Pettigrew followed soon after with another basket, giving the T-Birds a 43-35 lead.

Travis, a 6-1 sophomore playing his second varsity game for the Terrors, tied the score, 2-2, on a neat jumper from the side as action got underway. Smith came back to put the Thunderbirds in front again and McKenzie tied it again, 4-4.

Charlie Steel then put in a rebound shot and Mike Martin added another two-pointer on Wasson's first fast break. Martin later added two more to give Wasson a 10-5 lead. Fitzgerald hit two of his 15-footers and Travis added another corner shot, but Steel was busy, bringing home a pair of buckets to give the Thunderbirds a 14-11 lead after eight minutes.

Espinoza went off at halftime with four personals. He picked up his fifth at 5:33 of the fourth period. McKenzie fouled out trying to break Smith's single - handed stall at 3:23. Two more Terrors drew fouls as the clock ticked off precious seconds but no T-Bird could hit until Smith dropped in a one-and-one at 1:40.

Rick Pettigrew added two more as Fitzgerald fouled out at 1:13.

Palmer travels tonight to play highly-touted Pueblo East. Wasson will be idle.

By KELSO STUREON

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Conference, which has never been able to name an official football champion because of unequal scheduling, laid the groundwork for such a move Friday by approving a round-robin schedule.

The new football schedule will be instituted in 1970, when there will be 10 schools in the conference. That year they will play five traditional rivals each season and two other alternating SEC opponents for a total of seven games.

Under the new schedule, which makes every team play every other member school within three years, there is no rule which limits a university to only seven SEC games. However, a move already afoot would have only the seven games count in the standings each year so a champion could be crowned.

In the past, the press and other news media have recognized as the conference champion the team finishing with the best won-lost percentage. This, however, proved unfair to teams which finished with 6-1 records and aw the title go to a team which was 7-1.

In other major action, the Executive Committee voted to keep Bernie Moore, who will be 70 this spring, as commissioner for another year and gave him a $5,000 salary increase. This increases his salary to $25,000 a year.

The committee made plans to select a new commissioner and the leading candidate still appeared to be Jim Corbett, athletic director at Louisiana State University.

The conference also:

—Voted against allowing female athletes to compete with or against males in SEC sports, but did rule that young women now participating in conference athletics could play out their eligibility.

—Turned down Florida State's attempt to gain admission by not giving the motion a second.

—Voted to permit schools to begin signing basketball players one week after the final game of the season instead of on or after the present date of April 1.

—Killed a move to raise the over-all limit of 140 football and basketball scholarships allowed each school by tabling several different motions until next year.

—Killed a move to permit SEC teams to play in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament by not allowing the motion to reach the floor.

—Voted to permit teams to accept football bowl bids on the Saturday preceeding Thanksgiving day.

he slammed a rebound high over the Denver goalie's head.

It brough quite a protest from the Pioneers, however, as Myles Gillard's deflect from in front went squarely into the net for what could have been the tying tally.

With just short of five minutes gone in the final stanza, the Tigers started building a little more cushion to their slim lead, and it was a fine effort by team captain Fordyce that gave the Bengals their insurance.

Intercepting the puck along the right boards, Fordyce forced his way past two defenders and came in on the DU net all alone. He sent the puck flying over the sprawling body of the Denver goalie who had no chance at the save.

Then, at the 7:10 point, Amidon scores again for the Tigers to give them a 4-1 lead, catching the red shirted Pioneers again with a man in the penalty box. It was a rather lazy shot from the left side which bounced in and out of the cage.

But Denver continued to make a battle of it, and near the midway mark of the period they trimmed the margin to two goals with Lou Geddes knocking in a rolled that skimmed over the CC goalies out-stretched stick as he lay on the ice after being faked to the wrong side of the net.

Then, in the final three minutes, the Bengals survived another penalty with DU putting tremendous pressure on the goal after Jeff Sauer was called for a rather questionable hooking infraction. But Howard stood up under the pressure to earn the Tigers their second league victory and only the second win over Denver in the last 25 games.

Two Golfers Tie For Lucky Lead

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New Zealand's Bobby Charles and young Billy Martindale fired subpar golf Friday to overhaul the five first-round co-leaders and share the top spot midway of the $57,500 Lucky International Open with 36-hole scores of 138.

Charles, the British Open titlist in 1963, carded a four-under-par 67 and missed a chance for exclusive possession of first place when he bogeyed the 15th nad 16th holes.

Martindale, a 25-year-old Texas A&M graduate, played the last nine holes of the Harding Park municipal course in even par.

Then he carded three birdies on the next nine with putts of 5, 6 and 18 feet while going over par only once — when he missed a green for a second round 69.

Charles hooked to the right of the 18th green, hit up short and then missed a 10-foot putt.

Both the present British Open king, Tony Lema of nearby San Leandro, and defending Lucky champion Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, blew themselves out of the tournament with 77s and scores of 156. Lema then was disqualified when it was found he signed an incorrect score card.

Jack MacGowan and Gardner Dickinson, two of the first-round co-leaders at 68, both shot even par 71 over the 6,723-yard layout to share second place at 139, one stroke off the pace.

Another of the first round co-leaders, Thomas (Butch) Baird, remained in a good position for the $7,500 first prize with a 72 and 140. George Archer put a 73 with his 68 for a 141, while rookie Jack Montgomery carded five bogeys on his final nine holes for 75 and 143.

It took a score of 147 or better for a pro to compete in the remaining field of 70 pros and 10 amateurs.

Deadlocked with Baird at 140 were Canadian George Knudson, with a 69 Friday; Billy Maxwell and Don January, both with 70s.

Lema, who three-putted the 10th, 11th and 12th holes, was recorded as having signed an incorrect score card because it had him with a fiveratherthan had him with a five rather than a bogey six at the 10th.

Australian Bruce Crampton, winner of the Bing Crosby tournament last Sunday, shot a 72 for a 143. Bill Casper, who hasn't finished worse than third in three 1965 tourneys, slipped to a 73 and 145 at the midway point.

Sidelined by high scores along with Lema and Rodriguez were England's Tony Grubb with 77-149, Canada's Al Johnston 76-151, Dow Finsterwald 77-157, and current PGA champ Bobby Nichols, 79-150.

Texas A&M Coach Wants AFL Away

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Gene Stallings said Friday that American Football League representatives won't be welcome on his campus until the AFL agrees to cooperate with the National Collegiate Athletic Association in the signing of college players.

Stallings, in a Galveston Daily News interview, said "I support Darrell Royal 100 per cent on the stand he is taking."

He referred to statements by Royal, University of Texas football coach who has protested AFL clubs signing college football players until they have completed their college eligibility.

The National Football League has said it will abide by a NCAA request not to sign college football players before they complete their eligibility.

"Until the AFL agreed to cooperate with the NCAA, their representatives are not welcome on our campus during spring practice," Stallings said.

Kilborn Sets Track Mark at Toronto

By BOB GREEN

TORONTO (AP) — Blonde young Pam Kilborn of Australia set a women's indoor world record of 6.3 seconds in the 50-yard high hurdles Friday night at the Toronto Telegram-Maple Leaf games.

The 19-year-old schoolteacher broke away to an excellent start and finished the four-hurdle course more than one yard in front of Debbie Thompson of Frederick, Md.

The time broke the old record of 6.4 Miss Kilborn shared with Tammy Davis of the U.S.

The young Aussie completed a double when she beat Miss Thompson again, this time with a lunge at the tape, in 5.8 in the 50-yard dash, a meet and Canadian record.

In the men's hurdles, world broad jump record holder Ralph Boston of Nashville, Tenn., swapped places with Russ Morgan and won in 6.2. Morgan had edged Boston in the finals of the 60-yard dash in the Millrose Games in New York Thursday night.

The final total established a pair of Air Force records. It was the most points ever tallied against a Falcon team, wiping clean the old mark of 99 run up by Wyoming a year ago. And it was a record two-team total, surpassing the standard of 178 set by the Air Force and Colorado State University in 1957.

The Cougars' opening burst, which saw then shred the nets with 18 points in the first five minutes, stunned the crowd but it was nothing to compare with the display early in the second half. BUY slammed in eight of its first nine shot attempts and the Falcons, picking up the cue, matched the visitors almost point for point. The two clubs had blistered the cords for 31 points before the half was five minutes old and although the pace slackened somewhat, the floor was still taking a beating at the finish.

It took the Cougars exactly six seconds to get things rolling on a jump shot by Bob Quinney and after the Falcons grabbed a brief 3-2 lead on a goal and a free shot by Walt Edgerly the Utah team ran off 16 straight points and with just five minutes elapsed any contest had concluded. BUY raced on to a 48-26 halftime lead and then gradually lengthened it throughout the staggering second half bombarding. Cougar reserves worked the final few minutes of both halfs.

The Cougars, who move their road show on to Denver University tonight, came here ranked 19th in the nation and left with the fans wondering what the other 18 teams can be like!

The Falcons have no time to rest their weary muscles following the firewagon pace of Friday night. This evening Wyoming moves in and the Cowboys also prefer the fast route of travel. A preliminary contest between the freshman squads of the two schools is scheduled for 6 p.m. with the varsities following at 8.

Carver Leads Monument Win

MONUMENT—Crosby Carver scored 16 points Friday night in leading Monument to a 71-50 Black Forest League victory Friday night over Deaf and Blind.

Monument took a 13-10 first quarter lead and built it to 51-30 at the end of three periods. The Rangers scored their eighth BFL triumph against one loss.

DU Nips Southern Cal Cagers

DENVER (AP) — John Block who tied for game scoring honors with 27 points, missed a 1-and-1 opportunity for Southern California at the free throw line with six seconds left that allowed Denver to escape with a 79-78 basketball victory Friday night.

Block and Frank Mixon of Denver deadlocked for high point honors.

After Block's missed free throw with Denver ahead 77-76, Mixon grabbed the rebound and started dribbling out of the crowd when he was fouled by Block.

to make the count 17-16. Then Espinoza scored and a nifty out of bounds play. Rod Wells hit on a delay break for Wasson to make the score 19-18, was fouled and made the extra point at 2:28 of the second period. Smith canned a pair of free throws seven seconds later and Palmer never regained the advantage.

The Terrors did go to their own stalling game with 1:18 left in the first half, holding Wasson scoreless. But Palmer could not get man open for the lay - up which usually comes from the wide spread formation and Fitzgerald picked up a pair of free shots for the only points thereafter.

The third period was a story of basket exchanges. Palmer could not more than two points in a row and Wasson manged to get four in a string only once. But the Terrors drove well through the T-Bird defense, resulting in most of the points the Tribe obtained.

Smith hit a lay-up off the fourth quarter tip and Pettigrew followed soon after with another basket, giving the T-Birds a 43-35 lead.

Travis, a 6-1 sophomore playing his second varsity game for the Terrors, tied the score, 2-2, on a neat jumper from the side as action got underway. Smith came back to put the Thunderbirds in front again and McKenzie tied it again, 4-4.

Charlie Steel then put in a rebound shot and Mike Martin added another two-pointer on Wasson's first fast break. Martin later added two more to give Wasson a 10-5 lead. Fitzgerald hit two of his 15-footers and Travis added another corner shot, but Steel was busy, bringing home a pair of buckets to give the Thunderbirds a 14-11 lead after eight minutes.

Espinoza went off at halftime with four personals. He picked up his fifth at 5:33 of the fourth period. McKenzie fouled out trying to break Smith's single - handed stall at 3:23. Two more Terrors drew fouls as the clock ticked off precious seconds but no T-Bird could hit until Smith dropped in a one-and-one at 1:40.

Rick Pettigrew added two more as Fitzgerald fouled out at 1:13.

Palmer travels tonight to play highly-touted Pueblo East. Wasson will be idle.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Good Neighbor

It's refreshing to find athletic groups united and compatible, specifically on the high school level.

All too often, school officials don't stop their feud on the sports field but carry their bitterness into other league functions. Thus, there is less harmony league members.

This uncooperative spirit oftimes causes friction which not only hampers the operation of the league but the youngsters uense this situation on and off the athletic field.

It seems these hard - to - get - along - with "adults" are bent on destorying the purpose of amateur athletics — sportsmanship and character — by their hard - nosed tactics and selfish attitude.

Why can't these hard losers accept the gladiators' effort to bring glory and cash customers to their respective athletic programs and stop this bickering.

This is not to say a competitive spirit should not exist among the league schools, for unquestionably this is the strongest point in continuing athletics in secondary schools. It is my understanding the competitive spirit was designed for the athletes, but not for the supposedly educated and logical adults that are charged with supervising athletics.

This is why it's refreshing to find the newly formed Will Rogers League running smoothly.

At least those men in charge of the five-school league's athletic program have managed to reach decisions and policy without causing ill-feeling. In fact, the entire league has attained unity in just a short period since forming the Triple-A circuit last September.

The WRL conducted its first football season without any grave problems and this must be credited to each school's efforts to cooperate and work for the good of the league.

Talking with these men you can't help but feel they have achieved success in establishing a smooth - running athletic program in the WRL.

Canon City is the newest and fartherest school competing in the WRL along with cheyenne Mountain, Harrison, Widefield and Air Academy. Canon City officials are delighted with the with Canon City's Principal John Griffin, that school's former basketball coach, I came to only one conclusion; that all league members were satisfied with the operational policies and the attitudes displayed towards each other.

Griffin related he found the athletic and academic standards among the WRL schools compatible and more centrally located than the previous leagues — the old South Central League and the Southern League — which Canon City was a member.

In fact, Griffin expressed a desire that Canon City and the other WRL members join the three Colorado Springs schools, including Wasson, Palmer and the newly constructed Billy Mitchell High School, to form a metropolitan league.

Eldon Helm, principal of Cheyenne Mountain High School and former basketball, football and baseball coach at that school, expressed a desire that such a metropolitan league be formed. Helm, president of the WRL, qualified the statement that the all league members were agreeable to joining the three city schools to form a metropolitan.

Even though Helm said there would be problems to work out before such a league could be formed, the Cheyenne principal felt they could be resolved; such as the biggest setback of athletic facilities to accomodate the influx of spectators. But Helm felt that the majority of the WRL schools could resolve this problem.

As far as the larger city schools dominating the league, Helm felt sure the WRL schools could adjust to the competition.

Cozza Is New Yale Grid Coach

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A happy Carmen Cozza, making no effort to conceal his emotions, was promoted Fri- Yale's 32nd head football coach.

The balding 34-year-old Cozza, a former football and baseball star at Miami of Ohio, succeeds his close friend John Pont.

Pont resigned a week ago to become head coach at Indiana University and before leaving highly recommended Cozza for the Yale job.

In making the announcement Friday athletic director DeLaney Kiphuth stressed that it was not an intermediate appointment, and that Cozza "has won the admiration of the Yale Athletic Association family" in his two years at the university.

Kiphuth also said, "The future of Yale football is in very capable hands."

Nothing was said about the financial terms, but Cozza probably signed for some $14,000 a year.

Cozza said he hopes to name his assistants by next week. He said he had a long list to choose from when word got out recently that he was a top candidate.

Hill Rise Seeks Sixth Win at Santa Anita Today

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hill Rise, an outstanding exponent of the turf's horses for courses theory, goes after his fifth stakes triumph in six starts at Santa Anita Saturday.

The 4-year-old ace of George Pope's El Peco Ranch picks up top weight of 123 pounds against 10 rivals in the 1¼ miles of the $100,000-added Charles D. Strub Stakes — the first 100 grander of the 1965 season.

Hill Rise, somewhat of a disappointment last year after reeling off the last one-quarter mile in under 24 seconds while dropping a close decision to Northern Dancer in the Kentucky Derby, was three for three at the West Coast track as a 3-year-old. This string included the rich Santa Anita Derby.

After losing the Malibu Stakes early this month in his 4-year-old debut, the son of Swaps came back two weeks ago with an impressive score in the San Fernando Stakes. His next major objective will be the $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 27 in which he'll hook up with Gun Bow and Candy Spots.

If all 11 start, the winner will earn $81,100 of the $126,100 purse. Hill Rise figures to be the outstanding choice even though he'll give seven to 11 pounds to his rivals. Don Pierce, astride Hill Rise in his Santa Anita triumphs last year before being replaced by Bill Shoemaker, again will pilot the big California-bred horse.

Hill Rise's chief opposition is expected to come from a group that includes Canadian-bred George Royal, 116; Wil Rad, 115; French-bred Or Et Argent, 113 and Duel, 112.

The Strub is by far the richest race on Saturday's national card, which also has the $25,000-added Bougainvillea over 13-16 miles of Hialeah Park's turf course, the $10,000-added Thelma Stakes for 3-year-old fillies at New Orleans' Fair Grounds; the $5,500 Belair Purse at Bowie and two divisions of the $5,000 New England Breeders Purse topping the opening of the New England season at Lincoln Downs.

The Bougainvillea attracted a field of 16 with Parka carrying the top weight of 122 pounds under John Rotz. Salesman Prior picks up 120 and well-regarded Western Warrior and Intercepted 118 each.

There are three highweights in the field of 16 named for the seven furlongs of the Bowie feature. They are Farewell Address, 124, and Bushers Court and Jimmy Miller, 123 each.

Bold Stroke is the choice for the first division of the Lincoln Downs headliner under 123 pounds while Burnt Hills and Deroulade top the second section with each assigned 118 pounds. Both divisions, with eight entries in each, will be raced at five furlongs over a course that as late as last weekend was covered with 12 inches of snow.

The Thelma Stakes also drew a whopping field of 16. It'll be run at six furlongs with Rae-Lynn and Miss Misque packing top weights of 121 pounds each.

Stranahan Gives Up Golf for Study

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Stranahan, a winner of 25 amateur golf championships and a touring pro since 1954, has given up competitive golf for study.

The 42-year-old Stranahan is a graduate student at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. He's trying to promote a new Stranahan image—businessman, not golfer.

Heir to a spark-plug fortune, Stranahan has business interests in oil, real estate, manufacturing and finance. His corporate offices are in Phoenix, Ariz. At one time he thought he could both play golf and run his business interests.

"I realied, however, "that I would have to be better trained to tackle the business problems of the future," he said during some spare time at the university, where he is working for his masters degree in finance.

A graduate of the University of Miami, Stranahan actually resumed his education in 1962, taking a special course at Harvard's graduate school of business. Eventually he decided to return to school full time and chose Penn.

As an amateur, Stranahan won the British Amateur Championship twice, was runner up in the U.S. Amateur, and on several occasions beat the top-ranked professionals in open tournaments. His best showing after he turned professional was a victory in the 1958 Los Angeles Open.

Stranahan lives here in a modern apartment with his wife, the former Ann Williams, and their three sons, Frank Jr., and Jimmy, in the fourth and second grades respectively, and two-year-old Lance.

"I could be doing nine million other things," says the handsome golfer, "from working with my own companies to playing on the tour. But I feel sincerely that two years out of my life study is a small price to pay when you're in business 40-years.

"I'm lucky to be in a position to go back to school and that I don't have to work. Some of the boys at school have a part time job and it's a tough grind."

Kidd Cops Ski Race At Aspen

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — William Kidd of Stowe, Vt., won the Roch Cup downhill ski race over an Aspen Mountain course of about two miles in 2 minutes, 12.2 seconds Friday.

Bill Marolt of Aspen finished second in the run,, representing a drop of about 2,000 feet, in 2:14.3. Spider Sabich, Colorado University, was third in 2:15.4, while a Colorado teammate, Jiminy Heuga, was close behind in 2:16.2.

Dayton's Finkel Is Star Cager

By HAL PARIS

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Big Henry Finkel, Dayton's prolific pointmaker, has blossomed into a genuine basketball star.

The 6-foot-11, 240-pound product of Union City, N.J., has emerged as the latest in a long line of Dayton player who have captured the fancy of ardent Flyer rooters.

"Just look at his records and you can tell how good he is," says Coach Don Donoher.

Donoher may be a bit prejudiced but he claims Finkel is All-America timber right now.

"He has made significant improvement over last year, particularly on defense. And his touch under the basket has improved too."

Finkel ,a junior, played high school ball at Holy Family in Union City and was awkward as a 6-7 gangling kid.

He attended St. Peters, N.J. briefly, dropped out and enrolled at Hunter College in New York City. After three weeks, he dropped out of school again and was ready to call it quits for good.

A friend talked Finkel into coming here and his size alone impressed the coaching staff.

"As a sophomore, he made a lot of mistakes and frequently got mad at himself after committing flagrant and foolish fouls," said a member of the athletic staff.

Then the big change happened. The quick-tempered Finkel learned to curb his emotions.

"He's grown up, matured, and that makes all the difference," Donoher said. "Why he's been carrying an inexperienced club all year."

Finkel, whose best shot is a left-handed hook, is currently leading the nation in field goal shooting with an impressive 64 per cent.

He's also hitting the nets at 27.3 points per game despite some stiff offenses set up specifically to block his movements.

Finkel, with nine games left this season, has 183 field goals, 462 points and 1,638 career points.

Last April, the Los Angeles Lakers drafted Finkel and reportedly offered him $35,000 to sign a two-year contract. But his mother insisted he stay in school.

Boston Games Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Defender Tom O'Riordan of Ireland, Millrose winner George Young and two members of New Zealand's mighty delegation are entered in the two mile run which threatens to steal the show at the 76th Boston AA Games Saturday night.

Sam Perry of Fordham, fresh from matching the indoor 60 yard dash record in New York, races a quartet of Olympians at the 50 yard distance.

John Davies of New Zealand, third in the Olympic, 1,500 meters but a comparative stranger to boards, is pitted in the mile against Jim Grelle of Oregon and Great Britain's Mike Wiggs.

The Boston Garden event lists the crewcut running machine Bill Crothers of Toronto in the 600, where he tackles defender Tom Farrell, among others.

Crothers has his eye set on the 1:09.5 Boston record. Ralph Boston, world record holder in the broad jump who authored a double here two weeks ago, is giving the high jump and the high hurdles a whirl this time.

Irish three mile champion O'Riordan holds the BAA meet two mile record of 8:46.6, which figures to get a severe testing. Olympian Young is from Phoenix, Ariz.

Add to these Bill Baillie and Geoff Pynn from New Zealand, dark horse Malcolm Robinson from England and Southwest Louisiana, and Olympic steeplechasers Maurice Herriott from Great Britain and Jeff Fishback of the Santa Clara Youth Club.

Baillie has run the second fastest indoor two miles ever — 8:31.9.

Perry, clocked in 5.9 seconds for 60 yards at the Millrose, must contend with the likes of Paul Drayton, Mal Pender, Trenton Jackson and Edwin Roberts.

Davies' entry into the Hunter Mile gives that race three men who have broken four minutes. The others are Archie San Romani Jr., and Grelle.

Mel Hein Jr., son of the former New York Giants football center, is in the pole vault, joining 16-foot vaulters John Uelses, Ron Morris, Jeff Chase and Rudolf Tomasek of Czechoslovakia.

AFA Scandal Prompts the Truth: All of Us Cheat

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Do you cheat?

That's a harsh question and it's prompted by the Air Force Academy scandal now going on in Colorado.

The answer apparently is harsher yet because professional surveytakers, whose business it is to unearth such information, claim it's virtually impossible for a human being to go through an entire life-time without ever cheating in some manner or other.

To cheat, according to the dictionary, is to "practice fraud or trickery," and unfortunately that practice is fairly common in many sports, both professional and amateur alike.

The pro football clubs cheat when they sign players or even come to an agreement with them before their college terms are up, and that goes on all the time.

The schools themselves frequently have been found guilty of cheating in their recruiting methods.

They cheat in baseball, too, not only by trying to steal signs from inside the scoreboard, but also in such little things as neglecting to touch second base on double plays and first basemen pulling their feet off the bag too early on infield outs.

Joe Dey, Executive Director of the U.S. Golf Association, says a great number of golfers do not stick completely to the rules.

Maybe those golfers do so in ignorance, and maybe they don't, but no matter how you slice it, that's still cheating.

One cross-country runner of our acquaintance is upset even though he always follows the prescribed route, because he knows others who take a short-cut through the woods and even accept medals at the finish line.

That's cheating, too.

The present Air Force Academy scandal is similar, but not identical to the one in which 90 cadets, including many varsity football players, were dismissed from West Point in 1951.

In the Air Force scandal, test information was sold by a group; in the West Point scandal, the information was passed along from one cadet to another for nothing. It was called "cribbing" then, but the net result was the same.

Both West Point and the Air Force Academy live by the Honor Code.

Simply stated, the Code's basic tenets are that no cadet will lie, cheat or steal, and every cadet is honor bound to report any breach of the code.

TO BATTLE PATTERSON—George Chuvalo, above, Canadian heavyweight, will meet former world heavyweight Floyd Patterson in a 12-round bout at New York's Madison Square Garden Monday night.
(AP Wirephoto)

Sound Off!

To the Editor:

Monday next will see Floyd Patterson rub whiskers with George Chuvalo. Numerous questions that have plaqued fight fans, if there are any remaining fight fans, wi" be answered. Puzzlers such as—"Is Chuvalo the new Marciano?"—will be settled, and the outcome will be, of course, no, he is not.

We'll be saddled with the horrible truth that Patterson, though he is not, never was, and never will be a good fighter, is still lurking around rings through out the country, sad-faced, self-conscious, brooding.

Former pros, Ross, Louis, a present amateur Clay, will be labled prophetic dunces, each one having bellowed their favor for Chuvalo.

Common sense would reveal that Floyd will survive unscathed, for what other earthly reason the phony feud going between he and Cassius?

The fight racket is, after all, simply that — a racket. Since the prehistoric days of Carnera, down through the mediaval times of the second Louis-Conn fiasco, to the present Liston-Stool episode, fans have been looking at fights through a heavy drapery of wool. In the case of Carnera, the money-boys now have the audacity to look back on it and laugh. That one, they say with pride, was an absolute masterpiece of fraud!

There is still a persistent rumor among some fans that Patterson is a prize fighter. Nonsense. He would have been turned inside out by many past fighters. He was, when he was still a mere suckling babe, compared to Rocky Marciano; poppycock of the most nonsensical variety.

They say he is modest; truth — he is in constant fear that he is going to have his block knocked off. They say he lacks confidence; truth — the man has absolutely no confidence and furthermore no reason whatsoever to ever get any confidence.

For years Floyd was faced with the never - ending nightmare of climbing between a couple of ropes to exchange blows with some nobody — either a Brian London, a Rademacher, a Roy Harris, a McNeeley . . . someone of that type. Think for a moment how the man must feel now. His opponents are actually big grown-ups with big fists and bodies. To Floyd, Sonny Liston must surely have appeared to be Goliath himself!

Here were Floyd's ever-faithful followers in the back - ground, making noises like Patterson was an expert meat-cutter. "He'll cut Liston to ribbons" . . . "He'll chop Sonmy to pieces" . . . and here was poor Floyd, actually inside the ring with this hulking monster!

But this time Floyd has it in the bag. The big money boys are after a Clay - Patterson "Battle of the Century."

Still, one must be suspicious; Chuvalo has been compared to Marciano, and that's always a good sign for a upcoming fighter. Perhaps the big boys have decided to throw Floyd to the wolves at long last. Maybe they consider that this Patterson - Mystery has been milked dry. Perhaps they are properly convinced that the fight fans who know Floyd can't fight vastly outnumber those die-hards who still think he can.

If this is true, and it sounds logical, then Floyd faces a hapless situation Monday: for Chuvalo is the bully type, and George enjoys nothing more than a busy evening of pushing, shoving, bumping noggins, and so forth. Still, he can don the role of a coward at the chosen occasion, such as his meetin with old washed - up Zora Folley. The night he stepped off a few rounds with Zora, all Folley had to do was cock the right hand and Chuvalo did an absolutely fantastic imitation of Willie Pastrano, frightened expressions and all.

Undoubtedly Doug Jones will be sulking around somewhere in the background watching the fight Monday. He'll be wondering what, if any, are his chances for a big money match, since he blew his big opportunity by losing his last two contests. Now there, by the way, is a real bona fide mystery. Not that Jones was ever anybody to be alarmed about, but he did put on some fine fights. For some many unexplainable set-backs, though when a fighter loses it is generally always a set-back of sorts.

But here was Doug Jones, just a few months ago, basking in the limelight. No particular fighter poses as a serious threat to his position, and then he blew one to awkward Billy Daniels and bowed out to Chuvalo in a strange listless effort. All of this malady occurred right after he had given Clay a rough tangle a short time before. And Jones had scored knockouts over upcoming Bob Foster and fading Zora Folley. In fact, Folley had Jones down in that one, but Jones stormed gallantly back and looked very impressive in gaining the k.o.

Be that as it may, the moment of truth draws near Monday night. One thing that has always been to Floyd Patterson's credit is the fact that inside and outside the ring, Floyd has always conducted himself as a gentleman. If he will continue to do so, and if he will not participate in this ridiculous cooked-up feud with Clay, Floyd will eventually bow out of the fistic wars still in possession of this quality.

Many fighters have allowed or been robbed of, money, prestige, good name, and so forth. Patterson has this one wonderful quality that has always they never steal it from him.

U.S. Toboggan Captain Suffers Minor Injuries

Race officials said the 25-year-old tobogganist hit a rope cordon when he steered his small sled down a steep ski slope beside the toboggan track.

He was given first aid treatment and taken to a U.S. Army hospital in Garmisch-Partenkirchen,, Germany. Doctors there described his injuries as very minor.

"Feltman has light lacerations on the neck but is in good shape. He'll be back up there for a practice in a few days," a doctor said.

The incident occurred after the course, scene of the 1964 Olympic races in which Feltman placed 13th, had been closed for the day because of thaw. Instead of climbing down, Feltman used a section of a nearby ski run and hit the rope at the bottom of the run.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Good Neighbor

It's refreshing to find athletic groups united and compatible, specifically on the high school level.

All too often, school officials don't stop their feud on the sports field but carry their bitterness into other league functions. Thus, there is less harmony league members.

This uncooperative spirit oftimes causes friction which not only hampers the operation of the league but the youngsters pense this situation on and off the athletic field.

It seems these hard - to - get - along - with "adults" are bent on destorying the purpose of amateur athletics — sportsmanship and character — by their hard - nosed tactics and selfish attitude.

Why can't these hard losers accept the gladiators' effort to bring glory and cash customers to their respective athletic programs and stop this bickering.

This is not to say a competitive spirit should not exist among the league schools, for unquestionably this is the strongest point in continuing athletics in secondary schools. It is my understanding the competitive spirit was designed for the athletes, but not for the supposedly educated and logical adults that are charged with supervising athletics.

This is why it's refreshing to find the newly formed Will Rogers League running smoothly.

At least those men in charge of the five-school league's athletic program have managed to reach decisions and policy without causing ill-feeling. In fact, the entire league has attained unity in just a short period since forming the Triple-A circuit last September.

The WRL conducted its first football season without any grave problems and this must be credited to each school's efforts to cooperate and work for the good of the league.

Talking with these men you can't help but feel they have achieved success in establishing a smooth - running athletic program in the WRL.

Canon City is the newest and fartherest school competing in the WRL along with cheyenne Mountain, Harrison, Widefield and Air Academy. Canon City officials are delighted with the with Canon City's Principal John Griffin, that school's former basketball coach, I came to only one conclusion; that all league members were satisfied with the operational policies and the attitudes displayed towards each other.

Griffin related he found the athletic and academic standards among the WRL schools compatible and more centrally located than the previous leagues — the old South Central League and the Southern League — which Canon City was a member.

In fact, Griffin expressed a desire that Canon City and the other WRL members join the three Colorado Springs schools, including Wasson, Palmer and the newly constructed Billy Mitchell High School, to form a metropolitan league.

Eldon Helm, principal of Cheyenne Mountain High School and former basketball, football and baseball coach at that school, expressed a desire that such a metropolitan league be formed. Helm, president of the WRL, qualified the statement that the all league members were agreeable to joining the three city schools to form a metropolitan.

Even though Helm said there would be problems to work out before such a league could be formed, the Cheyenne principal felt they could be resolved; such as the biggest setback of athletic facilities to accomodate the influx of spectators. But Helm felt that the majority of the WRL schools could resolve this problem.

As far as the larger city schools dominating the league, Helm felt sure the WRL schools could adjust to the competition.

Cozza Is New Yale Grid Coach

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A happy Carmen Cozza, making no effort to conceal his emotions, was promoted Fri- Yale's 32nd head football coach.

The balding 34-year-old Cozza, a former football and baseball star at Miami of Ohio, succeeds his close friend John Pont.

Pont resigned a week ago to become head coach at Indiana University and before leaving highly recommended Cozza for the Yale job.

In making the announcement Friday athletic director DeLaney Kiphuth stressed that it was not an intermediate appointment, and that Cozza "has won the admiration of the Yale Athletic Association family" in his two years at the university.

Kiphuth also said, "The future of Yale football is in very capable hands."

Nothing was said about the financial terms, but Cozza probably signed for some $14 - 000 a year.

Cozza said he hopes to name his assistants by next week. He said he had a long list to choose from when word got out recently that he was a top candidate.

Hill Rise Seeks Sixth Win at Santa Anita Today

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hill Rise, an outstanding exponent of the turf's horses for courses theory, goes after his fifth stakes triumph in six starts at Santa Anita Saturday.

The 4-year-old ace of George Pope's El Peco Ranch picks up top weight of 123 pounds against 10 rivals in the 1¼ miles of the $100,000-added Charles D. Strub Stakes — the first 100 grander of the 1965 season.

Hill Rise, somewhat of a disappointment last year after reeling off the last one-quarter mile in under 24 seconds while dropping a close decision to Northern Dancer in the Kentucky Derby, was three for three at the West Coast track as a 3-year-old. This string included the rich Santa Anita Derby.

After losing the Malibu Stakes early this month in his 4-year-old debut, the son of Swaps came back two weeks ago with an impressive score in the San Fernando Stakes. His next major objective will be the $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 27 in which he'll hook up with Gun Bow and Candy Spots.

If all 11 start, the winner will earn $81,100 of the $126,100 purse. Hill Rise figures to be the outstanding choice even though he'll give seven to 11 pounds to his rivals. "He's grown up, matured, and that makes all the difference," Donoher said. "Why he's been carrying an inexperienced club all year."

Finkel, whose best shot is a left-handed hook, is currently leading the nation in field goal shooting with an impressive 64 per cent.

Finkel, with nine games left this season, has 183 field goals, 482 points and 1,038 career points.

Last April, the Los Angeles Lakers drafted Finkel and reportedly offered him $35,000 to sign a two-year contract. But his mother insisted he stay in school.

Boston Games Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Defender Tom O'Riordan of Ireland, Millrose winner George Young and two members of New Zealand's mighty delegation are entered in the two mile run which threatens to steal the show at the 76th Boston AA Games Saturday night.

Sam Perry of Fordham, fresh from matching the indoor 60 yard dash record in New York, races a quartet of Olympians at the 50 yard distance.

John Davies of New Zealand, third in the Olympic, 1,500 meters but a comparative stranger to boards, is pitted in the mile against Jim Grelle of Oregon and Great Britain's Mike Wiggs.

The Boston Garden event lists the crewcut running machine Bill Crothers of Toronto in the 600, where he tackles defender Tom Farrell, among others.

Crothers has his eye set on the 1:09.5 Boston record. Ralph Boston, world record holder in the broad jump who authored a double here two weeks ago, is giving the high jump and the high hurdles a whirl this time.

Irish three mile champion O'Riordan holds the BAA meet two mile record of 8:46.6, which figures to get a severe testing. Olympian Young is from Phoenix, Ariz.

Add to these Bill Baillie and Geoff Pynn from New Zealand, dark horse Malcolm Robinson from England and Southwest Louisiana, and Olympic steeplechasers Maurice Herriott from Great Britain and Jeff Fishback of the Santa Clara Youth Club.

Baillie has run the second fastest indoor two miles ever — 8:31.9.

Perry, clocked in 5.9 seconds for 60 yards at the Millrose, must contend with the likes of Paul Drayton, Mal Pender, Trenton Jackson and Edwin Roberts.

Davies' entry into the Hunter Mile gives that race three men who have broken four minutes. The others are Archie San Romani Jr., and Grelle.

BASE MARK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees compiled 400 or more total bases in a season five times in his career, a major league mark.

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Do you cheat?

That's a harsh question and it's prompted by the Air Force Academy scandal now going on in Colorado.

The answer apparently is harsher yet because professional surveytakers, whose business it is to unearth such information, claim it's virtually impossible for a human being to go through an entire life-time without ever cheating in some manner or other.

To cheat, according to the dictionary, is to "practice fraud or trickery," and unfortunately that practice is fairly common in many sports, both professional and amateur alike.

The pro football clubs cheat when they sign players or even come to an agreement with them before their college terms are up, and that goes on all the time.

The schools themselves frequently have been found guilty of cheating in their recruiting methods.

They cheat in baseball, too, not only by trying to steal signs from inside the scoreboard, but also in such little things as neglecting to touch second base on double plays and first basemen pulling their feet off the bag too early on infield outs.

Joe Dey, Executive Director of the U.S. Golf Association, says a great number of golfers do not stick completely to the rules.

Maybe those golfers do so in ignorance, and maybe they don't, but no matter how you slice it, that's still cheating.

One cross-country runner of our acquaintance is upset even though he always follows the prescribed route, because he knows others who take a short-cut through the woods and even accept medals at the finish line.

That's cheating, too.

The present Air Force Academy scandal is similar, but not identical to the one in which 90 cadets, including many varsity football players, were dismissed from West Point in 1951.

In the Air Force scandal, test information was sold by a group; in the West Point scandal, the information was passed along from one cadet to another for nothing. It was called "cribbing" then, but the net result was the same.

Both West Point and the Air Force Academy live by the Honor Code.

Simply stated, the Code's basic tenets are that no cadet will lie, cheat or steal, and every cadet is honor bound to report any breach of the code.

'It's Still a Racket'

To the Editor:

Monday next will see Floyd Patterson rub whiskers with George Chuvalo. Numerous questions that have plaqued fight fans, if there are any remaining fight fans, wi" be answered. Puzzlers such as—"Is Chuvalo the new Marciano?"—will be settled, and the outcome will be, of course, no, he is not.

We'll be saddled with the horrible truth that Patterson, though he is not, never was, and never will be a good fighter, is still lurking around rings through out the country, sad-faced, self-conscious, brooding.

Former pros, Ross, Louis, a present amateur Clay, will be labled prophetic dunces, each one having bellowed their favor for Chuvalo.

Common sense would reveal that Floyd will survive unscathed, for what other earthly reason he and Cassius?

The fight racket is, after all, simply that — a racket. Since the prehistoric days of Carnera, down through the mediaval times of the second Louis-Conn fiasco, to the present Liston-Stool episode, fans have been looking at fights through a heavy drapery of wool. In the case of Carnera, the money-boys now have the audacity to look back on it and laugh. That one, they say with pride, was an absolute masterpiece of fraud!

There is still a persistent rumor among some fans that Patterson is a prize fighter. Nonsense. He would have been turned inside out by many past fighters. He was, when he was still a mere suckling babe, compared to Rocky Marciano; poppycock of the most nonsensical variety.

They say he is modest; truth — he is in constant fear that he is going to have his block knocked off. They say he lacks confidence; truth — the man has absolutely no confidence and furthermore no reason whatsoever to ever get any confidence.

For years Floyd was faced with the never - ending nightmare of climbing between a couple of ropes to exchange blows with some nobody — either a Brian London, a Rademacher, a Roy Harris, a McNeeley . . . someone of that type. Think for a moment how the man must feel now. His opponents are actually big grown-ups with big fists and bodies. To Floyd, Sonny Liston must surely have appeared to be Goliath himself!

Here were Floyd's ever-faithful followers in the background, making noises like Patterson was an expert meat-cutter. "He'll cut Liston to ribbons" . . . "He'll chop Sonmy to pieces" . . . and here was poor Floyd, actually inside the ring with this hulking monster!

But this time Floyd has it in the bag. The big money boys are after a Clay - Patterson "Battle of the Century."

Still, one must be suspicious; Chuvalo has been compared to Marciano, and that's always a good sign for a upcoming fighter. Perhaps the big boys have decided to throw Floyd to the wolves at long last. Maybe they consider that this Patterson - Mystery has been milked dry. Perhaps they are properly convinced that the fight fans who know Floyd can't fight vastly outnumber those die-hards who still think he can.

If this is true, and it sounds logical, then Floyd faces a hapless situation Monday: for Chuvalo is the bully type, and George enjoys nothing more than a busy evening of pushing, shoving, bumping noggins, and so forth. Still, he can don the role of a coward at the chosen occasion, such as his meetin with old washed - up Zora Folley. The night he stepped off a few rounds with Zora, all Folley had to do was cock the right hand and Chuvalo did an absolutely fantastic imitation of Willie Pastrano, frightened expressions and all.

Undoubtedly Doug Jones will be sulking around somewhere in the background watching the fight Monday. He'll be wondering what, if any, are his chances for a big money match, since he blew his big opportunity by losing his last two contests. Now there, by the way, is a real bona fide mystery. Not that Jones was ever anybody to be alarmed about, but he did put on some fine fights. For some many unexplainable set-backs, though when a fighter loses it is generally always a set-back of sorts.

But here was Doug Jones, just a few months ago, basking in the limelight. No particular fighter poses as a serious threat to his position, and then he blew one to awkward Billy Daniels and bowed out to Chuvalo in a strange listless effort. All of this malady occurred right after he had given Clay a rough tangle a short time before. And Jones had scored knockouts over upcoming Bob Foster and fading Zora Folley. In fact, Folley had Jones down in that one, but Jones stormed gallantly back and looked very impressive in gaining the k.o.

Be that as it may, the moment of truth draws near Monday night. One thing that has always been to Floyd Patterson's credit is the fact that inside and outside the ring, Floyd has always conducted himself as a gentleman. If he will continue to do so, and if he will not participate in this ridiculous cooked-up feud with Clay, Floyd will eventually bow out of the fistic wars still in possession of this quality.

Many fighters have allowed or been robbed of, money, prestige, good name, and so forth. Patterson has this one wonderful quality that has always they never steal it from him.

U.S. Toboggan Captain Suffers Minor Injuries

Race officials said the 25-year-old tobogganist hit a rope cordon when he steered his small sled down a steep ski slope beside the toboggan-track.

He was given first aid treatment and taken to a U.S. Army hospital in Garmisch-Partenkirchen,, Germany. Doctors there described his injuries as very minor.

"Feltman has light lacerations on the neck but is in good shape. He'll be back up there for a practice in a few days," a doctor said.

The incident occurred after the course, scene of the 1964 Olympic races in which Feltman placed 13th, had been closed for the day because of thaw. Instead of climbing down, Feltman used a section of a nearby ski run and hit the rope at the bottom of the run.

Charges Against Three dismissed In City Court

Charges against three persons were dismissed Friday in Municipal Court, two on the unavailability of the officer to appear, and one on a motion by attorney John Stumbo.

Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt moved for dismissal of a careless driving charge against Reggy Snyder, 17, 3816 N. Nevada Ave., when Patrolman Robert Hapke did not appear in court. Snyder's attorney, Stumbo, then made a motion for discharge against Alex Wilson, 80, 511 E. San Rafael St. Snyder was the complainant against Wilson.

Judge Allan Asher granted both motions. He also dismissed a charge of double parking against Arthur Seaton, 842 E. Willamette St., because of Hapke's failure to appear.

Dion Muse, 52, 812 E. Costilla St., changed his plea to guilty to careless driving and was fined $15.

Virgil Evans, 24, Ft. Carson, failed to appear in court for his trials on speeding and muffler violations. Testimony was taken by the judge from Patrolman Henry Fryer and the soldier was found guilty, with fines totaling $35 levied.

William Valdez, 22, 729 N. Weber St., had a $25 bond ordered forfeited when he did not appear for his hearing on speeding and muffler violations.

Ann Galusha, 17, 2211 W. Bijou St., was fined $10 on her guilty plea to careless driving, and Robert McCrum, 19, Cascade, was fined $25 on his guilty plea to disobeying a stop sign.

Sentences of 10 days each in the county jail were imposed on Betty Magana, 18, Denver, and Sarah Martinez, 19, Monte Vista, who pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Tom Tafoya, 56, 329 E. Fountain St., was given 30 days in city jail on his guilty plea to drunkenness.

MY ANSWER

QUESTION: My husband never reads the Bible yet he insists he is a Christian. How can he be a Christian if he doesn't read God's word? — J. S.

ANSWER: One can be a Christian without reading the Bible, because it is faith in Christ which makes one a Christian, not reading the Bible. But, one cannot be an intelligent and instructed Christian without the constant study of the Scriptures. Furthermore, daily reading of the Bible brings information we can get nowhere else. It warns of sin and shows what sin is, it directs our ways to God's paths, it teaches us the things which are right and it becomes our compass and the light for our pathway.

As I read your question, it occured to me that God has given you an opportunity to show how much the Bible means to you. Does your husband see you enjoying its companionship? Does he see you patterning your life after its teachings? Does he see in you those Christian graces which would commend the faith you profess by the life which you lead? Do not be critical of your husband. Pray for him. Show him that you love him and God can use you to win him to a happy and new understanding of life. Your happiest days can lie ahead of you.

Bench Warrant Issued by Judge

District Judge David W. Enoch said Friday that attorney George Silvola was "misinformed" and "in error," and then forfeited the bond and issued a bench warrant for the arrest of the lawyer's cleint, John C. Denius.

Neither Silvola or Denius were present and bondsman Vern Brook told the court that Silvola had asked him to say that he was out of town and request for a continuance in the Denius case. Silvola had also told Denius that it was unnecessary for him to appear.

Judge Enoch then said "Mr. Silvola was misinformed. He is in error," and ordered Denius' bond forfeited and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

Denius, 46, 1606 W. Kiowa St. has been charged with embezzlement and is alleged to have embezzled a $1,900 car belonging to Charles Gano when he was employed by Gano, May 30. According to the district attorney's office he sold the vehicle and pocketed the money.

The defendant also has an extradition matter pending against him and is wanted in Laramie, Wyo. for investigation of a $40.50 no account check.

Stock Types Explained in New Stock Book

By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

Stocks come in two kinds: preferred and common.

Preferred stocks entitle you to certain preferred treatment. You get your share of the company's profits before the common stockholders get theirs. And should the company have to be liquidated, your claim comes before those of the common stockholders.

But you have disadvantages, too. The preferred stockholders get only a fixed share of the profits. Your dividend may be reduced or even omitted if the company runs into hard times, but it is rarely increased when the company does well. And you don't have any real voice in the affairs of the company unless a certain number of dividends have been skipped.

Your ownership of the company has much more meaning when you own common stocks. You are entitled to the assets of the company after the bondholders and the preferred stockholders have been paid off. There is no limit to the dividends you can get — except that the board of directors decides how much of the company's profits are to be shared.

But you and your fellow common stockholders vote for this board, which also chooses the president and other officers. Because of this right, a majority or even strong minority of common stockholders may replace one board of directors with another should they come to be dissatisfied with the company's management. Thus the common stockholders can really run the company.

The preferred stockholder seems to stand about halfway between the bondholder and the common stockholder. The preferred stockholder does not get any return unless the company earns a profit, whereas the bondholder gets his interest whether or not the company makes a profit. However, the preferred stockholder is like the bondholder in that he gets a fixed return.

The common stockholder, on the other hand, can earn big dividends. Unless you become an owner of common stocks, your chances of substantial profits from corporate securities are limited. What bonds and preferred stocks can give you, though, is what is known as a balanced investment portfolio, adding a greater element of safety to the opportunity for profits.

Damage Suit Dismissed

A $10,000 damage claim brought by Harvey F. and Ruth Poblocki against Dan Van Dyke doing business as the Rocky Mountains Body Rebuilders was dismissed in District Court Friday by Judge John Gallagher.

A request for a permanent injunction to prevent Van Dyke from operating his business at the present location was taken under advisement by the judge.

The Poblockis live at 819 S. Wahsatch Ave. and the defendant has his business at 820 S. Wahsatch Ave.

According to the complaint the rebuilding company has been in operation since 1962 and constitutes a nuisance to the plaintiffs because of "dust, noxious vapors and offensive effluvia, gases, odors and stenches" from the paint used, and also because of the noise.

It is further alleged that the business constitutes a menace to the plaintiffs' health.

Plate Glass Windows Broken by Vandals

Three plate glass windows, with a total value of $525, and a cardboard and plastic letter sign, worth $20, were reported broken to Colorado Springs Police. Vandals broke the windows and signs, at 1313 Fountain Creek Blvd., on two different occasions.

Two windows and the sign were broken nearly a week ago, evidently as a result of pistol shots. In the second incident, which occurred either Thursday evening or Friday morning, the third window was broken with a ball bearing.

The Smartt Development Corp. was listed as the victim.

Fifty Mothers Hear Lecture At Session

Capt. Lawrence Smith of the adolescent clinic of the Academy lectured, showed a film and answered questions during the fourth in a series of six child rearing programs.

The series is sponsored by three United Fund agencies: Family Counseling Service, Mental Health Association and the YWCA. It will be followed by a series on marriage and family problems beginning in late February.

Capt. Smith criticized the trend in advertising and in magazines and other media which glamorizes the adolescent.

"This is a period in life to be gone through and not a privileged time to be extended forever," he said. He pointed out that many adults try to look and act like teenagers.

"An adolescent is a person who is changing, not only physically but emotionally and psychologically as well," he said.

He emphasized that the teenager feels eager for responsibility and if he is denied it he feels "like a six foot man trying to stand up in a three foot room."

He explained that tension is often a cause of acne, headaches and stomach aches.

"Understanding the problems of adolescence helps parents to find the solution," he said.

Some of the advice he gave to the parents of adolescents were: help them to face the stresses and tensions; back them up with understanding and affection; don't expect too much or push too hard.

Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt moved for dismissal of a careless driving charge against Reggy Snyder, 17, 3816 N. Nevada Ave., when Patrolman Robert Hapke did not appear in court. Snyder's attorney, Stumbo, then made a motion for discharge against Alex Wilson, 80, 511 E. San Rafael St. Snyder was the complainant against Wilson.

Judge Allan Asher granted both motions. He also dismissed a charge of double parking against Arthur Seaton, 842 E. Willamette St., because of Hapke's failure to appear.

Dion Muse, 52, 812 E. Costilla St., changed his plea to guilty to careless driving and was fined $15.

Virgil Evans, 24, Ft. Carson, failed to appear in court for his trials on speeding and muffler violations. Testimony was taken by the judge from Patrolman Henry Fryer and the soldier was found guilty, with fines totaling $35 levied.

William Valdez, 22, 729 N. Weber St., had a $25 bond ordered forfeited when he did not appear for his hearing on speeding and muffler violations.

Ann Galusha, 17, 2211 W. Bijou St., was fined $10 on her guilty plea to careless driving, and Robert McCrum, 19, Cascade, was fined $25 on his guilty plea to disobeying a stop sign.

Sentences of 10 days each in the county jail were imposed on Betty Magana, 18, Denver, and Sarah Martinez, 19, Monte Vista, who pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Tom Tafoya, 56, 329 E. Fountain St., was given 30 days in city jail on his guilty plea to drunkenness.

MY ANSWER
by Billy Graham

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: My husband never reads the Bible yet he insists he is a Christian. How can he be a Christian if he doesn't read God's word? — J. S.

ANSWER: One can be a Christian without reading the Bible, because it is faith in Christ which makes one a Christian, not reading the Bible. But, one cannot be an intelligent and instructed Christian without the constant study of the Scriptures. Furthermore, daily reading of the Bible brings information we can get nowhere else. It warns of sin and shows what sin is, it directs our ways to God's paths, it teaches us the things which are right and it becomes our compass and the light for our pathway.

As I read your question, it occured to me that God has given you an opportunity to show how much the Bible means to you. Does your husband see you enjoying its companionship? Does he see you patterning your life after its teachings? Does he see in you those Christian graces which would commend the faith you profess by the life which you lead? Do not be critical of your husband. Pray for him. Show him that you love him and God can use you to win him to a happy and new understanding of life. Your happiest days can lie ahead of you.

Tacoma Youth Pleads Guilty

Michael Rainier Durham, 19, Tacoma Wash. pleaded guilty in District court Friday to accessory-after-the-fact of aggravated robery, and sentencing will be Feb. 19.

Originally the defendant was charged with aggravated robbery and conspiracy. He was accused of the Oct. 28 holdup at Bateman's Hancock Market when $62 were taken. Count two alleged he conspired with Daniel Jones Jr.

On Jan. 12 he pleaded innocent to both charges and trial had been set for Feb. 2. On Friday the district attorney's office dismissed the two charges and Durham pleaded guilty to the lesser offense.

Earnings per share in 1964 were $1.65 compared with $1.56 in 1963. The December earnings were 13 cents per share in 1946 and 11 cents in 1963.

Operating revenues last December were $6,375,810, up $195,713 from December 1963. For 1964, revenues totaled $79-137,985, a gain of $3,289,640 from 1963.

The company said the higher earnings were achieved despite a rise in operating expenses from $51,926,116 in 1963 to $55,-318,152 last year.

Bench Warrant Issued by Judge

District Judge David W. Enoch said Friday that attorney George Silvola was "misinformed" and "in error," and then forfeited the bond and issued a bench warrant for the arrest of the lawyer's cleint, John C. Denius.

Neither Silvola or Denius were present and bondsman Vern Brook told the court that Silvola had asked him to say that he was out of town and request for a continuance in the Denius case. Silvola had also told Denius that it was unnecessary for him to appear.

Judge Enoch then said "Mr. Silvola was misinformed. He is in error," and ordered Denius' bond forfeited and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

Denius, 46, 1606 W. Kiowa St. has been charged with embezzlement and is alleged to have embezzled a $1,900 car belonging to Charles Gano when he was employed by Gano, May 30. According to the district attorney's office he sold the vehicle and pocketed the money.

The defendant also has an extradition matter pending against him and is wanted in Laramie, Wyo. for investigation of a $40.50 no account check.

Stock Types Explained in New Stock Book

By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

Stocks come in two kinds: preferred and common.

Preferred stocks entitle you to certain preferred treatment. You get your share of the company's profits before the common stockholders get theirs. And should the company have to be liquidated, your claim comes before those of the common stockholders.

But you have disadvantages, too. The preferred stockholders get only a fixed share of the profits. Your dividend may be reduced or even omitted if the company runs into hard times, but it is rarely increased when the company does well. And you don't have any real voice in the affairs of the company unless a certain number of dividends have been skipped.

Your ownership of the company has much more meaning when you own common stocks. You are entitled to the assets of the company after the bondholders and the preferred stockholders have been paid off. There is no limit to the dividends you can get — except that the board of directors decides how much of the company's profits are to be shared.

But you and your fellow common stockholders vote for this board, which also chooses the president and other officers. Because of this right, a majority or even strong minority of common stockholders may replace one board of directors with another should they come to be dissatisfied with the company's management. Thus the common stockholders can really run the company.

The preferred stockholder seems to stand about halfway between the bondholder and the common stockholder. The preferred stockholder does not get any return unless the company earns a profit, whereas the bondholder gets his interest whether or not the company makes a profit. However, the preferred stockholder is like the bondholder in that he gets a fixed return.

The common stockholder, on the other hand, can earn big dividends. Unless you become an owner of common stocks, your chances of substantial profits from corporate securities are limited. What bonds and preferred stocks can give you, though, is what is known as a balanced investment portfolio, adding a greater element of safety to the opportunity for profits.

Damage Suit Dismissed

A $10,000 damage claim brought by Harvey F. and Ruth Poblocki against Dan Van Dyke doing business as the Rocky Mountains Body Rebuilders was dismissed in District Court Friday by Judge John Gallagher.

A request for a permanent injunction to prevent Van Dyke from operating his business at the present location was taken under advisement by the judge.

The Poblockis live at 819 S. Wahsatch Ave. and the defendant has his business at 820 S. Wahsatch Ave.

According to the complaint the rebuilding company has been in operation since 1962 and constitutes a nuisance to the plaintiffs because of "dust, noxious vapors and offensive effluvia, gases, odors and stenches" from the paint used, and also because of the noise.

It is further alleged that the business constitutes a menace to the plaintiffs' health.

Plate Glass Windows Broken by Vandals

Three plate glass windows, with a total value of $525, and a cardboard and plastic letter sign, worth $20, were reported broken to Colorado Springs Police. Vandals broke the windows and signs, at 1313 Fountain Creek Blvd., on two different occasions.

Two windows and the sign were broken nearly a week ago, evidently as a result of pistol shots. In the second incident, which occurred either Thursday evening or Friday morning, the third window was broken with a ball bearing.

The Smartt Development Corp. was listed as the victim.

Fifty Mothers Hear Lecture At Session

Capt. Lawrence Smith of the adolescent clinic of the Academy lectured, showed a film and answered questions during the fourth in a series of six child rearing programs.

The series is sponsored by three United Fund agencies: Family Counseling Service, Mental Health Association and the YWCA. It will be followed by a series on marriage and family problems beginning in late February.

Capt. Smith criticized the trend in advertising and in magazines and other media which glamorizes the adolescent.

"This is a period in life to be gone through and not a privileged time to be extended forever," he said. He pointed out that many adults try to look and act like teenagers.

"An adolescent is a person who is changing, not only physically but emotionally and psychologically as well," he said.

He emphasized that the teenager feels eager for responsibility and if he is denied it he feels "like a six foot man trying to stand up in a three foot room."

He explained that tension is often a cause of acne, headaches and stomach aches.

"Understanding the problems of adolescence helps parents to find the solution," he said.

Some of the advice he gave to the parents of adolescents were: help them to face the stresses and tensions; back them up with understanding and affection; don't expect too much or push too hard.

Republicans in House Unveil Medicare Plan

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee have unveiled a sweeping alternative to President Johnson's health care proposal.

The GOP plan, announced Thursday, would provide more comprehensive care to those 65 and older and would cost more money, most of it coming out of the Treasury.

The administration bill includes a pay roll tax hike that would cover most of the cost of hospitalization and similar benefits it proposes.

Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the tax-writing committee, said he has no doubt the health legislation, under continued committee examination today, will be brought before the House under procedures that will permit a vote on the Republican version.

And Byrnes said the GOP version has a chance, despite the heavy Democratic majority in the House. The GOP leader, Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, said he is for it.

The Byrnes plan, estimated to cost up to $3.4 billion annually, or at least $1 billion more than the administration proposal, would be available to everyone 65 and older, like the Johnson version, but no one would be required to join.

It would provide full coverage up to $1,000 of hospital and similar services and 80 per cent coverage of additional expenses, including doctors' services and drugs, with $50 deductible.

By contrast, the administration plan would provide hospitalization for 60 days at a time, with the patient paying for the first day; nursing home care for 60 days and some outpatient services, not including general treatment by doctors.

To participate in the Republican plan, aged persons would have to pay premiums — or have welfare departments pay them on their behalf. The premiums, geared to the Social Security payments they received or would receive if eligible, were estimated to average $6 a month a person.

These premiums were estimated to yield $1 billion a year. The remainder of the cost would be met by appropriations out of the Treasury.

By contrast, the administration plan would provide hospitalization for 60 days at a time, with the patient paying for the first day; nursing home care for 60 days and some outpatient services, not including general treatment by doctors.

To participate in the Republican plan, aged persons would have to pay premiums — or have welfare departments pay them on their behalf. The premiums, geared to the Social Security payments they received or would receive if eligible, were estimated to average $6 a month a person.

These premiums were estimated to yield $1 billion a year. The remainder of the cost would be met byappropriationsoutof be met by appropriations out of the Treasury.

Wheelers Capture Caller And 'Bring Him Back Alive'

Ten couples of Waggin Wheelers journeyed to Westminster last Saturday night and captured their caller, Harold Palmer and wife Ila, and brought them back home. Also, stole the Heels and Toes banner. Harold called to a packed house and really, we're proud that other clubs like our caller as well as we do.

Eagle 8's are very happy at the turnout they had at their first lesson last Thursday. There were three sets to begin with, and one set of experienced dancers showed up to help them through their first uncertain steps, for which the club is very grateful. It's not too late to join, but this is the last Thursday that brand new would-be dancers may register. Anyone who has danced in the past and would like a refresher course may come any time.

Tickets are going fast for the Frank Lane dance to be held at the Shrine Club on Feb. 26.

All dancers are reminded again of the party and dance the Pikes Peak Promenaders will have this Sunday afternoon at the Carriage Stop at 2:30. Lee and Geri Barnes and all the youngsters are anxious to see you there. Refreshments will be served.

Several couples from Colorado Springs attended the State meeting in Pueblo last Sunday. Publicity is under way for the State Festival to be held at the Municipal Auditorium in Denver on June 4 and 5, and registrations are already being received.

Kim Novak Draws Looks And Comment

Photographed at Miss Novak's home in Big Sur, Calif., the photo-essay says that the star's "unflagging box-office appeal long has been acknowledged."

Kim Novak plays the title role in "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," based on the classic novel by Daniel Defoe. Richard Johnson, Lilli Palmer, Anglea Lansbury, George Sanders, Vittorio De Sica, Leo McKern and Hugh Griffith co-star in the Panavision-Technicolor romantic comedy, which was produced by Marcel Hellman and directed by Terence Young.

TODAY'S COVER

Passing up a chance to go skiing last weekend, STEVE WILLIAMS went out to watch the new breed of motorcycle riders, and he took JOE NAVARRO along with him. The results of a day well-spent can be seen in today's issue on pages 16 and 17. They found out that not only is the new breed really new, but also vastly interesting. The occasion was a motorcycle competition, and while JOE snapped pictures, STEVE went around collecting information to use for the text of the story. Some other interesting tidbits in this week's issue are the story about the FLICK'S new series of classic films, something the community at large has needed for a long time, and also a story about the contribution a local art instructor and his students make to the success of the local opera society. All this and much more will be found in today's LEISURETIME, the magazine for you and fun.

'West' at Ute Through Wednesday

With the passing of the gold-carrying stage coaches and their replacement by railraod trains, the western outlaws developed a new tactic—the train robbery.

These bold holdups, usually staged near the top of a grade when the train was moving at little more than a crawl, became such a serious national problem that even the federal government was called in to try to stop them. The train robberies, and the stagecoach holdups before them, led to the most famous private detective organization of its time, the Pinkerton Agency, forerunner of the "private eyes" of today's television.

In Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cinerama's epic production, "How the West Was Won," at the Ute Theatre through Wednesday, a train robbery was staged with a real steam locomotive in the colorful canyon country of Arizona. Lee J. Cobb and George Peppard, two of the many stars in the Metrocolor film, break up the train robbery and kill off the last of the Southwest's outlaw gangs.

This represents the "winning of the West," both in historical fact and in the motion picture. For with the dominance of law and order, the West had truly been won.

"How the West Was Won," one of the most spectacular pictures ever made, is now being shown for the first time at popular prices, uncut, direct from its triumphant roadshow engagements.

The first train robbery on record in the United States, and presumably the first in the world, was staged by the infamous Reno Gang, led by John Reno, on Oct. 6, 1866, a few miles from Seymour, Indiana. Their foray was against the wood-burning Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, and the specfic target was the Adams Express car which yielded $10,000. All members of the Reno Gang, including the five Reno brothers, Frank, John, Simeon, Clinton and William, were eventually imprisoned, slain or lynched. But not until after many more train robberies and bank holdups.

Two brothers, Levi, and Hilary Farrington, who idolized their fellow Missourians, the James-Younger Gang, formed their own outlaw group—and a vicious one it was. Expert riders and revolver shots, they had taken part in the Lawrence, Kansas, massacre with Quantrill and later fought under the Black Flag with George Todd. In 1870, they set a train robbery record with a $20,000 haul at Union City, Tenn., from a Southern Express Company car on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Hilary Farrington was killed in a fight with William Pinkerton, and Levi was captured by the Pinkertons but was lynched before he could stand trial.

In 1877, a Union Pacific Express was robbed while taking on water at Big Spring, Texas, by a gang which included young Sam Bass, an outlaw destined to become storied in legend and song. The haul, a consignment to Wells Fargo, netted $60,000 in $20 gold pieces.

The holdup in "How the West Was Won" is staged as a sort of composite of the many train robberies which plagued the early West. The loot is $100,000 in gold, carried in the baggage car of the train. The robbers place a barricade on the tracks near the top of a grade, expecting the train to grind to a halt. However, the train makes an effort to crash through and almost gets clear, but it is slowed enough for the outlaws to get aboard. The crash of the barricade and the ensuing gun battle between lawmen and outlaws provide some of the fastest action in motion picture history.

And speaking of motion picture history, a film called "The Great Train Robbery," made in 1903, is credited with pioneering the way for feature-length motion pictures to become America's favorite family entertainment.

Guillotine Now Playing At Peak

Fast - moving, exciting, and suspenseful, "Two On a Guillotine" Warner Bros.' new shocker in Panavision could be fact, fiction or plain fantasy — but, whatever else, it is compelling entertainment. The film, produced and directed by William Conrad ,and starring Connie Stevens, Dean oJnes and Cesar Romero, is now playing at the Peak Theatre.

Though crammed with terror, "Two on a Guillotine is not a horror picture. The story concerns the strange legacy of Duquesne ,The World's Greatest Illusionist, to his daughter, Cassie. When the girl sees him for the first time since her childhood, he lies in a glasspaned, locked - and - chained coffin, while his publicity - man hands out a press-release announcing that Duquesne is going to "return from the deal" Cassie's shock at such theatricality durin ing a funeral is surpassed when she hears his will read in no place less than the stage of the Hollywood Bowl. She learns she is to receive his entire state, $300,000, providing she goes to his macabre castle and spends seven consecutive nights during which Duquesne is due to "reveal" himself to her. The girl manages to meet the requirements of the will through the aid of a newspaper reporter.

'Surf Party' At Ute This Morning

A special morning showing of "Surf Party" will be given for the final time this morning at 10 a.m. Bobby Vinton, the latest of the teen-age recording favorites, makes his motion picture debut in the film which co-stars Patricia Morrow, Jackie De Shannon, Kenny Miller, The Astronauts and The Routers.

Chief Plays 'Tomb' at Midnight

The dual role of Ligeia and Rowena played by English actress Elizabeth Shepherd in American International's 'The Tomb of Ligeia' has been described by her as the chance of a life time for which she spent a life time in preparation.

She was discovered for the role by Director Roger Corman who has made seven previous AIP terror films based upon the classic works of Edgar Allan Poe and she brings to the part a long and impressive list of credits in classic stage plays.

Born 27 years ago in London, Elizabeth began her stage career while attending Bristol University when she joined a small group of dedicated people who wanted to interpret Shakespeare more imaginatively to the young.

She made three recordings of 'Twelfth Night,' 'Macbeth, and 'Julius Caesar' with the Globe Shakespeare Company for a publisher of educational recordings.

Then after graduation, she played Juliet in a Bristol production of 'Romeo and Juliet,' essayed the role of a middle-aged woman in Ugo Betti's 'The Investigator' in a London Sunday Times drama festival during which she was introduced to theatrical agent Peter Eade.

Eade recruited her for the Manchester Library Theatre, a breeding ground of stars. She stayed with them a year, playing in works as varied as those of Shakespeare and Lorca, and then joined a touring company sponsored by the Arts Council of Great Britain.

With the Council, Elizabeth played 'Romeo and Juliet' and in Peter Ustinov's contemporary 'Romanoff and Juliette' after which she joined the Nottingham Playhouse for plays as widely different as 'Hamlet,' in which she played Ophelia, and 'The Man With the Golden Arm,' in which she essayed the role originated by Kim Novak.

Thus finely backgrounded in the theatre, she made her West End stage debut in Tennessee Williams' 'Period of Adjustment' and molded a fine television career in adaptations of Wolpole's 'The Cathedral,' Dickens' 'Bleak House,' Cronin's 'The Citadel' and many other plays.

Her role in American International's 'Tomb of Ligeia' is a virtual tour de force for the 120-pound blonde, blue-eyed Elizabeth.

The Pleasure Seekers Next At Cooper

Ann-Margret, Carol Lynley and Pamela Tiffin play opposite Tony Franciosa, Gardner Mc - Kay and Andre Lawrence in the 20th Century - Fox romantic-drama, "The Pleasure Seekers" which opens Friday at the Cooper Theatre. Filmed in CinemaScope and De Luxe Color on location in Madrid and its environs, the cast also includes Gene Tierney and Brian Keith.

"The Pleasure Seekers" is the story of three American girls who live in Madrid. Each has her own preconceived notions about love, and these undergo a radical change as each girl has the romance of her life. The romantic lineup goes like this: Ann-Margret, a singer - dancer living and working in Madrid, falls in love with Andre Lawrence, a poor but proud Spanish Doctor. Tony Franciosa, a cynical Spanish nobleman captures the heart of Pamela Tiffin, an art student vacationing in Madrid. And Carol Lynley, secretary in an American news agency, falls in love with Gardner McKay, a journalist employed by Brian Keith, husband of Gene Tierney and clandestine lover of Miss Lynley.

"The Pleasure Seekers" is unique in that it is one of the few major motion pictures in which the leading roles are all played by relatively young, fresh talent. Ann-Margret, who has the top starring role, first came to the attention of film audiences in "Bye-Bye Birdie," released just over one year ago. She followed this success with "Viva Las Vegas" opposite Elvis Presley, and recently demonstrated her talent for dramatic acting in "Kitten With a Whip."

Of the starring actors, Tony Franciosa is perhaps the best known, due to his long string of stage and screen successes, his most recent effort being star of the TV series, "Valentine's Day." Carol Lynley was an actress during her teens in numerous adolescent dramas, but really came into adult stardom in 1963 with "The Cardinal" and "Under The Yum-Yum Tree." Gardner McKay, of TV's "Adventures in Paradise" series, Pamela Tiffin in her sixth starring role and Andre Lawrence are also typical of the bright, new Hollywood stars who add glamor and excitement to "The Pleasure Seekers." Gene Tierney, a star for twenty-five years, and Brian Keith, seen frequently in Disney pictures, round out the cast.

"The Pleasure Seekers" was directed by Jean Negulesco, of "Three Coins in the Fountain" fame. David Weisbart produced and the screenplay was by Edith Sommer.

Golfinger Is Now at Broadmoor

In "Goldfinger" the latest James Bond movie, the villain is a greedy millionaire with an insatiable lust for gold and a heartless murderer. He is the most spectacular of all the villains created by Ian Fleming and the role was on of the parts most sought after by every "heavy" in the entertain - ment industry. It was finally won by German - born Gert Frobe. A star of the continental stage, screen and concert halls for more than twenty years, Frobe appears opposite Sean Connery in the Technicolor thriller now at the Broadmoor Theatre.

"It is the sort of villain's role which could become a screen classic," says Mr. Frobe, who has made a specialty of playing criminal and horror types. Altogether he has appeared in more than seventy films and has been named by critics as the natural successor to the great Emil Jannings.

He first became a screen actor in 1949 after asuccessful career on the stage, playing the leading role in a film entitled "Berlin Ballad." But his most famous early film was "Les Heros Sont Fatigues," in which he co-starred with Yves Montand. His most recent U. S. release is the English language version of "The Threepenny Opera." In "Goldfinger," the third James Bond film, he co-stars with Honor Blackman, playing Pussy Galore, and lovely Shirley Eaton.

Chief Plays 'Tomb' at Midnight

The dual role of Ligeia and Rowena played by English actress Elizabeth Shepherd in American International's 'The Tomb of Ligeia' has been described by her as the chance of a life time for which she spent a life time in preparation.

She was discovered for the role by Director Roger Corman who has made seven previous AIP terror films based upon the classic works of Edgar Allan Poe and she brings to the part a long and impressive list of credits in classic stage plays.

Born 27 years ago in London, Elizabeth began her stage career while attending Bristol University when she joined a small group of dedicated people who wanted to interpret Shakespeare more imaginatively to the young.

She made three recordings of 'Twelfth Night,' 'Macbeth, and 'Julius Caesar' with the Globe Shakespeare Company for a publisher of educational recordings.

Then after graduation, she played Juliet in a Bristol production of 'Romeo and Juliet,' essayed the role of a middle-aged woman in Ugo Betti's 'The Investigator' in a London Sunday Times drama festival during which she was introduced to theatrical agent Peter Eade.

Eade recruited her for the Manchester Library Theatre, a breeding ground of stars. She stayed with them a year, playing in works as varied as those of Shakespeare and Lorca, and then joined a touring company sponsored by the Arts Council of Great Britain.

THE BOY LISTENS—Edward G. Robinson explains the way of the jungle in this scene from "A Boy Ten Feet Tall," Paramount's exciting adventure which opens Thursday at the Ute Theatre. This Seven Arts-Bryanston production, in color, tells of a young boy's incredible five thousand mile journey across the African continent.

Boy Ten Feet Tall at Ute Thursday

One the banks of the Blue Nile, at the little riverside port of Namasagali, director Sandy Mackendrick was toiling beneath a sweltering equatorial sun. Five thousand miles he had come for this. After months of planning, the cameras were about to turn for the first time on his latest large scale adventure story, "A Boy Ten Feet Tall," which opens Thursday at the Ute Theatre. Based on the novel "Sammy Going South," by W. H. Canaway, this Paramount release stars Edward G. Robinson and co-stars Fergus McClelland, Constance Cummings, Harry H. Corbett and Paul Stassino.

The story is about ten-year-old Sammy Hartland (Fergus McClelland), a boy who makes an incredible journey from Suez in Egypt to Durban in South Africa — a trip of 5,000 miles. Sammy, alone in Suez after his parents are killed in a surprise air raid, remembers what his mother once told him. "If you are ever left alone Sammy, go south to your aunt Jane in Durban." Now, with Sammy in this unenviable position, he heeds his mother's advice, heads south, and his journey begins.

In the desert, tired and hungry, Sammy meets a peddler and agrees to trek with him to Luxor. On the way, an accident in the camp blinds the peddler, and in anger, he shackles himself to Sammy. The next day, the peddler is dead. Sammy frees himself and heads on.

Traveling on the back roads to avoid meeting other traveling companions, Sammy meets Cocky Wainwright (Edward G. robinson). First with astonishment and then with admiration,, this battered old diamond smuggler and hunter of big game hears Sammy's story. After traveling to Cocky's camp Sammy listens in awe as the old man recounts his remarkable past. Delighted with Sammy's response, Cocky invites the boy to stay for as long as he wishes. Suddenly, the camp is raided, and Cocky is captured by the police, who have been after him ever since they learned of his diamond smuggling operation. In the havoc created by the raid, Sammy is able to escape. Alone again, Sammy bravely continues his trek to Durban.

"A Boy Ten Feet Tall" is a Seven Arts - Bryanston production. It was filmed, in color, on location in Africa's dense jungles. The producer on the film was Hal Mason.

Father Goose Held Over At Cooper

Romantic adventure comedy at its scintillating best is served up in Universal's "Father Goose," starring Cary Grant, Leslie Caron and Trevor Howard, now animating the Technicolor screen at the Cooper Theatre where it offers one of the season's most rewarding cinematic treats.

The superb production is a bon-bon of celluloid entertainment, one of the most delectable merriments of recent vintage, and small fry as well as ultra-sophisticates, plus just about everyone in between, should find it a rich feast of infectious fun.

Never before in his truly remarkable screen career has Cary appeared before the cameras in anything like the off-beat characterization provided for him in "Father Goose," written for the screen by the same scrivener, Peter Stone, who authored the star's last previous film hit, "Charade," and directed by Ralph Nelson, of "Lilies of the Field" acclaim.

Vanished into limbo is the suavely debonair, elegantly groomed, meticulously tonsured Cary of so many memorable performances. Prince Charming has been supplanted by an unshaved, bibulous beachcomber clad in old work pants, tattered shirt and tired sneakers, sans socks.

The film marks a first-time teaming of Cary and Miss Caron, and so felicitous is the combination, so productive of pyrotechnical interplay of talents, that a re-match — at the earliest possible moment — should be on Hollywood's agenda.

Cary's role is that of an ex-professor of history who has rebelled against the strictures of society and escaped to the South Pacific where, in a one-man-operated launch, he roves the tropical waters, errant as the sea zephyrs.

His idyll comes to an abrupt end when he is pressed into service as a coast watcher to report movement of enemy planes and ships. In the course of his duties his lonely island outpost is "invaded" by Miss Caron, portraying the war - displaced daughter of a French consular official, and her seven schoolgirl charges.

Cary is such a crusty, cantankerous, ingrained - habit creature, so accustomed to bachelor life, that he has no intention of abandoning any of his rugged individualism as a concession to his unasked - for female guests.

They, in turn, openly label him a "filthy beast," and Cary does everything he can to justify such a description, up to and including a mock - ferocious snarl. Not that he doesn't have ample justification, especially after one of the youngsters bites him on the hand twice, to say nothing of other juvenile-inflicted cruelties such as a hammer-blow on the toe.

Dependable Trevor Howard contributes in large measure to the fun fest, adding precisely the proper touch to his protrayal of an Australian Navy Commander who prevails upon Cary to "volunteer" for the coast watching service.

"Father Goose" is a lustrous credit to all the behind-scenes staff responsible for its making. Producer Robert Arthur has proved anew, in this entry, the perspicacity and guiding genius which earlier brought to fruition such successes as "Operation Petticoat," "Come September" and "That Touch of Mink."

Oscar - winning cinemato - grapher Charles Lang, Jr., handled the camera work on this picture, a contribution which well might put him in line for still another statuette. The spar still another statuette. The sparkling score was composed by Broadway's noted Cy Coleman.

This Computes

In 1952 there were fewer than 40 computers in the United States. Today there are more than 16,000. Computers have been developed that can talk, write poetry and chart the human brain. In this race toward automation they have even developed a computer to do away with other computers in the design field. These and other fascinating subjects will be probed in "The Way Out Men," a 3M Special to be seen on ABC-TV, February 13.

Father Goose Held Over At Cooper

Romantic adventure comedy at its scintillating best is served up in Universal's "Father Goose," starring Cary Grant, Leslie Caron and Trevor Howard, now animating the Technicolor screen at the Cooper Theatre where it offers one of the season's most rewarding cinematic treats.

The superb production is a bon-bon of celluloid entertainment, one of the most delectable merriments of recent vintage, and small fry as well as ultra-sophisticates, plus just about everyone in between, should find it a rich feast of infectious fun.

Never before in his truly remarkable screen career has Cary appeared before the cameras in anything like the off-beat characterization provided for him in "Father Goose," written for the screen by the same scrivener, Peter Stone, who authored the star's last previous film hit, "Charade," and directed by Ralph Nelson, of "Lilies of the Field" acclaim.

Vanished into limbo is the suavely debonair, elegantly groomed, meticulously tonsured Cary of so many memorable performances. Prince Charming has been supplanted by an unshaved, bibulous beachcomber clad in old work pants, tattered shirt and tired sneakers, sans socks.

The film marks a first-time teaming of Cary and Miss Caron, and so felicitous is the combination, so productive of pyrotechnical interplay of talents, that a re-match — at the earliest possible moment — should be on Hollywood's agenda.

Cary's role is that of an ex-professor of history who has rebelled against the strictures of society and escaped to the South Pacific where, in a one-man-operated launch, he roves the tropical waters, errant as the sea zephyrs.

His idyll comes to an abrupt end when he is pressed into service as a coast watcher to report movement of enemy planes and ships. In the course of his duties his lonely island outpost is "invaded" by Miss Caron, portraying the war - displaced daughter of a French consular official, and her seven schoolgirl charges.

Cary is such a crusty, cantankerous, ingrained - habit creature, so accustomed to bachelor life, that he has no intention of abandoning any of his rugged individualism as a concession to his unasked - for female guests.

They, in turn, openly label him a "filthy beast," and Cary does everything he can to justify such a description, up to and including a mock - ferocious snarl. Not that he doesn't have ample justification, especially after one of the youngsters bites him on the hand twice, to say nothing of other juvenile-inflicted cruelties such as a hammer-blow on the toe.

Dependable Trevor Howard contributes in large measure to the fun fest, adding precisely the proper touch to his protrayal of an Australian Navy Commander who prevails upon Cary to "volunteer" for the coast watching service.

"Father Goose" is a lustrous credit to all the behind-scenes staff responsible for its making. Producer Robert Arthur has proved anew, in this entry, the perspicacity and guiding genius which earlier brought to fruition such successes as "Operation Petticoat," "Come September" and "That Touch of Mink."

Oscar - winning cinemato - grapher Charles Lang, Jr., handled the camera work on this picture, a contribution which well might put him in line for still another statuette. The spar still another statuette. The sparkling score was composed by Broadway's noted Cy Coleman.

Niven Stars In Next Peak Attraction

When motion picture producers come across a starring role calling for a cool, suave, debonair officer who is constantly in tense wartime "under fire" situations, they immediately think of David Niven and, failing to get him, call for a "David Niven type."

While the Scottish - born actor also has a considerable reputation as a fine comedy actor, he is most famous for military dramatic portrayals like his latest in American Internation's "Conquered City," a role similar to his guerilla leader in "Guns of Navarone."

The exciting action drama, with the same kind of suspense terror and heroics which made "Guns of Navarone" a classic, opens next at the Peak Theatre. also starring in the "Conquered City" are Martin Balsam, Lea Massari and Michael Craig.

Niven, whose portrayal of a British guerilla leader highlighted "Guns of Navarone," again plays a British officer, while Gazzara portrays a mysterious American officer. Both head of a group of refugees who, in the story ,are besieged in a hotel during the Italian campaign of World War II.

The story of "Conquered City" revolves around the efforts of the group to hold their outpost against the attackers despite the sabotage efforts of a spy in their midst. What happens when one after another of the group is suspected and the events leading to the surprise climax make for an adventure tale which guarantees edge-of-seat suspense and thrills.

'Atragon' Is Wierd SF Machine

They scoffed when Jules Verne and other science fiction writers down through the years conjured up visions of super weapons and ships that flew in the skies and sped under water.

Today, we tend to forget the coming to reality of yesterday's science fiction fantasies as today's masters of imagination bring new and even more fantastic visions of the future to our attention via our many and varied means of entertainment.

As the art of the motion picture allows for the presentation of the most vivid of such visions so what must surely be one of the amazing warships of all time is introduced in American International's "Atragon". The color and scope science fiction thriller is playing at the Chief Theatre.

Through the magic of cinematic special effects the fantastic Atragon, which lends its name to the film's title is introduced to film audiences to save the world from destruction in a pulse-throbbing action adventure tale.

What is Atragon? Almost defying description it is a faster-than-the-speed-of-sound warship of the sky. It also is a super battleship of the high seas and an all-powerful super-submarine.

In addition Atragon is a speedy land tank fortress plus an unstoppable barrier - defying mechanical mole which can hurtle underground through earth and rock!

Added all up, Atragon becomes a terrifying and unique quintuple - threat battleship of land, sea and air — a virtually unconquerable weapon that produces never-before-seen motion picture thrills and excitement.

Let your imagination feast upon the remarkable facts and figures of Atragon's specifications

Length—five hundred feet
Tonnage weight—10,000 tons
Speed —
In the air: MACH 2 (twice the speed of sound)
Underwater: 50 knots
Underground: 12½ miles per hour
Surface of sea: 80 knots
On the land: 186 miles per hour

Atragon's airspeed is faster than any modern aircraft while its underwater capabilities exceed that of the fastest deep sea atomic submarine.

Underground, Atragon is an atomic rock-crushing battleship with hammers, drills and caterpillars. On the surface of the sea, it is faster than any known high speed atomic battleship.

On land, Atragon is a high speed atomic tank with caterpillars and jet engines.

Wherever it may be, Atragon's armament is overpowering and ranges from atomic cannons which fire missile bombs, to novel refrigerating cannons and small arms which freeze everything hit with cold vapors of 273 degrees below zero. Underwater, Atragon also can fire anti-submarine torpedo missiles.

As part of its versatility, the wings, the bridge and the caterpillars of Atragon can be contained inside the ship automatically making for virtual impregnability.

High Diver Will Appear On Television

To the uninitiated, when you're a high diver and you're standing on a small perch over 100 feet up, looking down on 18 feet of water, a dive is just a dive.

To rugged Raul Garcia, each dive is different, each one is dangerous, each one means his life is once more on the line.

For more than 15 years the chief diver at Acapulco's famed Mirador Hotel cliffs, Garcia executes a breath-taking 135-foot swan dive into the pool at Miami Beach, Florida's Fontainebleau Hotel for ABC-TV's hour-long spectacular, "Aqua Varieties," with Gordon and Shela McRae, at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 7.

Garcia was asked if it wasn't easier diving into the hotel pool under "perfect" conditions than making that awe-inspiring leap into the rocks and ocean waves off Acapulco.

"I can see why many people would think that way," Garcia said with his soft Spanish accent, "but it just isn't true.

"When I dive from the cliff, I dive into soft water and when I dive here at the hotel, the water is like concrete."

He explained that the water in the "perfect" pool is compressed liquid, while the Acapulco water "is always moving; it has current, it has salt and oxygen and believe me, it is soft." Garcia shold know!

A daredevil diver for more than 28 years, the 36-year-old father of two started diving from the Mexican cliffs when he was eight. Six months later he made his first 135-foot dive from the very top. He's never been injured and is in charge of some 20 young divers who nightly entertain the customers at the world - renowned hotel. His divers are part of the only divers' union in the world.

"We had to band together," Garcia said, "since no one would insure us against death or injury.

"But we have been very fortunate. We have had a few minor injuries, but we have never lost a diver."

Garcia is currently back diving at El Mirador and his future plans of course center about this dangerous business of diving.

He has asked — and been positively refused — permission to dive from two of the nation's most famous bridges: the Brooklyn Bridge and San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge.

"Permission or no," says Garcia, "when the warm weather comes, I dive!"

See these two great classics!!

To honor the "International Quiet Sun Year" Togo has issued an interesting new set of six stamps featuring space satellites. The 10 franc purple, blue and yellow depicts satellites OGO and Mariner. The 15 franc brown, yellow, purple and blue shows Tiros, Telstar and OSO. The 20 franc yellow, violet and green illustrates Nimbus weather satellite, Syncom and Relay. The government of Ajman on the Arabian Gulf has issued a special commemorative series honoring the late President John F. Kennedy. The stamps show scenes of Kennedy's life from childhood to the presidency. The scenes illustrated are: Kennedy as a young football player, as a swimmer, receiving a citation in his naval uniform during World War II, John and Jacqueline Kennedy boating, Kennedy and Eleanor Roosevelt, the Kennedys holding baby Caroline, Kennedy with Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey, a head portrait shot of the late President.

Norway has issued two new stamps in its regular series, reports the Norwegian Post Office Department in Oslo. The 30 ore green depicts fish and an ear of corn. The 60 ore red shows a boatswain's knot. The designer was Prof. Arne E. Holm.

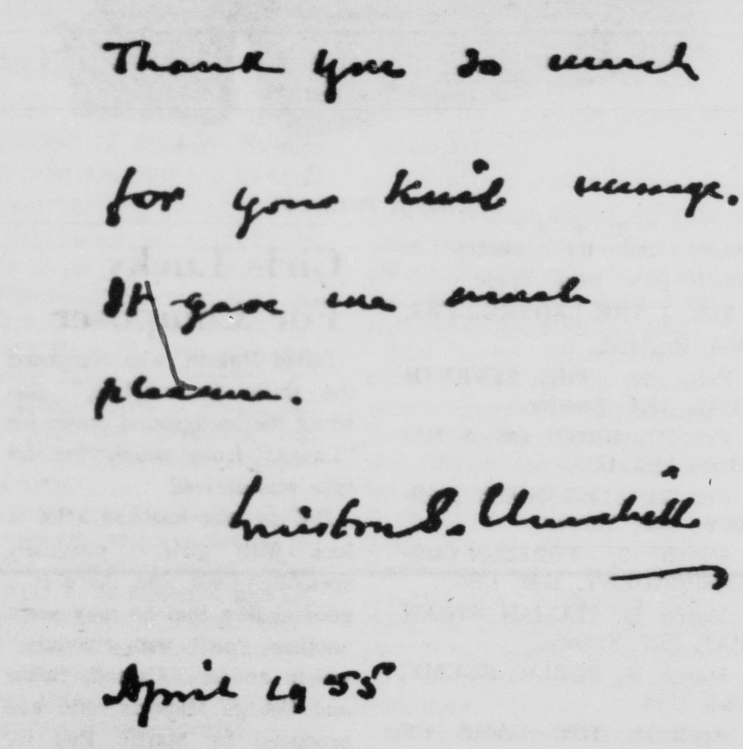
ZORACH WATERCOLORS — A Group of watercolors by the prominent artist William Zorach are on view at the Fine Arts Center through Monday. This watercolor, "Reed State Park, Georgetown, Maine," is typical of the warm, simple style used by Zorach in his painting. Zorach is known world-wide for his sculpture which graces public and private buildings and collections, but now is also recognized as an equally fine painter. This group of Watercolors, mostly of the New England countryside, show a deep love for nature and for the delicate craft. (Photo by W. L. Bowers)



CHURCHILL'S NOTE — This is the note from Winston Churchill, sent to Woodson Tyree of Colorado College, after Tyree sent him two poems. Tyree, director of Colorado College's radio station KRCC will feature a two-hour long special program on Churchill supplied by the British Broadcasting System at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Two Churchill Programs to Be Heard on KRCC Sunday

Two taped programs on Winston Churchill have just been received by Colorado College's radio station KRCC, and will be broadcast at 1 p.m. Sunday, it was announced by Woodson Tyree, head of the speech and drama department at the college, and director of the radio station. The program will last for two hours.

Tyree will introduce the Churchill program with the reading of two of his poems, which he sent to Churchill in 1955, and which brought back from the British statesman and war leader a note of appreciation.

Tyree dedicated the poems "To Winston Churchill" with the inscriptions: "Who walked with kings nor lost the common touch," and "now. . .painting on a tin league canvas with brushes of comets' hair."

The note from Churchill to Woodson Tyree reads: "Thank you so much for your kind message. It gave me much pleasure. Winston Churchill. April 19, '55."

The first poem, which elicited Churchill's note, entitled "The London Blitz," reads:

God crushed the world. . . With the frightful pain of. . . Universal terror! Let the piles of inanimate rock . . .The monstrous maw of Grand Canyons . . .And the sweep of limitless plains,. . .The infinite depths of the sky. . .The inane multitudes of stars. . .The mountainous crests of. . .The eternal oceans pound. . .Their watery avalanches against. . .The granite cliffs of a . .Million continents, let all. . .This display of God's inanimate. . .Nature cease its puny, insignificant. . .Storring, against the anguished cry. . . Of one human heart. . .Broken in its sense. . .of lost, anchorless, aimlessness. . .What there is of greatness is not in mountains. . .It is in human hope; . . .What there is of magnificence is not in the boundless sky; . .It is in human courage;. . .What there is of awful beauty is not in constellations, . . .And worlds without end;. . . It is in the single heart. . .Enduring pain, No God, no stars, no endless sky,. . .No pulsing sea, no granite cliff can know.

One of the difficult things about writing a ski column when you live in Colorado Springs is that there is always so much sunshine you sometimes wonder if there really is any skiing in the state. From the mail I receive from ski areas, however, let me assure you that not only is there skiing, but it seems to be getting better every weekend. As a matter of fact, one of the snow reports I received from one of the larger areas began with the sentence, "it's snowing right now and we've received four inches so far today."

Much to my chagrin, I couldn't make it out to an area last weekend, mostly because of prior commitments that were arranged for me. . .I plead guilty to not having a more flexible schedule.

However, I talked to quite a few people who went, and from their reports it was typical Colorado Skiing . . . great. The latest comment about skiing making the rounds in Colorado, by the way, is "help stamp out summer."

To get down to something a bit more serious, Steamboat Springs is holding their 52nd annual Winter Carnival Feb. 13 and 14, and Bob Beattie, the outstanding coach of the United States Olympic Ski Team, will dedicate Mt. Werner in honor of this country's greatest skier and goodwill ambassador. Storm Mountain, a 10,000 foot peak near Steamboat Springs, will receive the honor of becoming a monument to Buddy.

I met Buddy Werner only once, and talked to him for probably 15 minutes. I don't know exactly how the people of Colorado felt about him, but I do know that you could go anywhere in Michigan and the name "Buddy Werner" made skiers eyes light up with a gleam that said "he's our best, and he's as good as they come." He was a magnificent skier, and he was the first American who could hold his own against the Europeans. I remember that when he broke his leg while training for the '60 Olympics, I felt like at least two gold medals had been denied the U.S. Ski Team.

More than just being a skier, of course, Buddy Werner was a man who not only the United States, but Europe as well, took to their hearts. He was fearless on skis, and when he came down the hill spectators and competitors alike would stand rooted, while he did the things on skis that only the really great ones can do. I remember reading once in one of the national magazines that "when Buddy Werner races, he only touches the ground to change directions." After I saw him ski for the first time, I realized it was just barely an exaggeration.

Steamboat Springs is justifiably proud of their favorite son, and a Werner Memorial building has been proposed, to be constructed in that city. They have mailed letters and made a plea for funds so that construction could start this year. Knowing the little I do about Bud Werner and what he has done for both skiing and America's reputation abroad, I'm mailing my contribution today . . .and I'm not even from Colorado.

For those of you who are, mail your contribution to Bud Werner Memorial, Town of Steamboat Springs, Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Jerry Lewis Having a Ball With "Jewels"

Jerry Lewis explained why he's doing a scene in a transatlantic jet for a sequence in his new Paramount release, "The Family Jewels."

"We did it so the musical score boys can get some sky music in there. You know, the kind of high-pitched chords that sound as though they're coming through the clouds. All musicians love to add sky music to a score. Other 'stock' delights are ocean music (the breeze through the wind-jammers' sails) and desert music (low and mysterious. We've got a little of all three in our picture and the arrangers are having a musical ball!"

The government of Ajman on the Arabian Gulf has issued a special commemorative series honoring the late President John F. Kennedy. The stamps show scenes of Kennedy's life from childhood to the presidency. The scenes illustrated are: Kennedy as a young football player, as a swimmer, receiving a citation in his naval uniform during World War II, John and Jacqueline Kennedy boating, Kennedy and Eleanor Roosevelt, the Kennedys holding baby Caroline, Kennedy with Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey, a head portrait shot of the late President.

Norway has issued two new stamps in its regular series, reports the Norwegian Post Office Department in Oslo. The 30 ore green depicts fish and an ear of corn. The 60 ore red shows a boatswain's knot. The designer was Prof. Arne E. Holm.

The Falkland Islands has issued a special set of four stamps commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Battle of the Falkland Island, an important naval victory for the British in World War I. The First Lord of the Admiralty at that time was Winston Churchill. The 2½ pence shows HMS Glasgow, 6 pence HMS Kent, 1 shilling HMS Invincible, 2 shilling Falkland Islands Battle Memorial. Each stamp bears a vignette portrait of Queen Elizabeth.

ZORACH WATERCOLORS — A Group of watercolors by the prominent artist William Zorach are on view at the Fine Arts Center through Monday. This watercolor, "Reed State Park, Georgetown, Maine," is typical of the warm, simple style used by Zorach in his painting. Zorach is known world-wide for his sculpture which graces public and private buildings and collections, but now is also recognized as an equally fine painter. This group of Watercolors, mostly of the New England countryside, show a deep love for nature and for the delicate craft. (Photo by W. L. Bowers)

CHURCHILL'S NOTE — This is the note from Winston Churchill, sent to Woodson Tyree of Colorado College, after Tyree sent him two poems. Tyree, director of Colorado College's radio station KRCC will feature a two-hour long special program on Churchill supplied by the British Broadcasting System at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Two Churchill Programs to Be Heard on KRCC Sunday

Two taped programs on Winston Churchill have just been received by Colorado College's radio station KRCC, and will be broadcast at 1 p.m. Sunday, it was announced by Woodson Tyree, head of the speech and drama department at the college, and director of the radio station. The program will last for two hours.

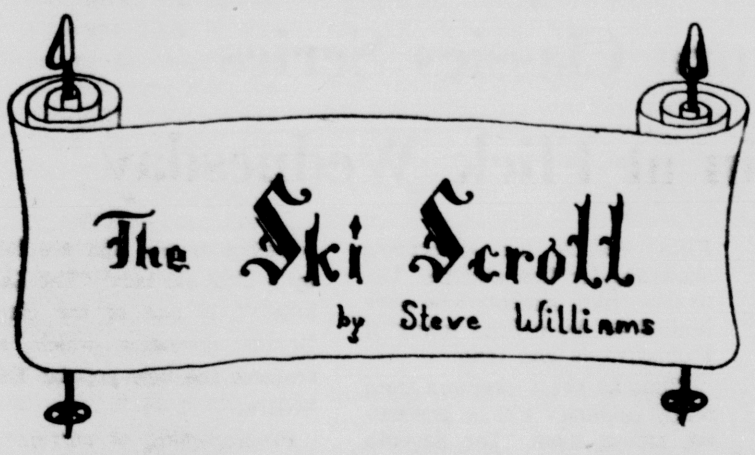
Tyree will introduce the Churchill program with the reading of two of his poems, which he sent to Churchill in 1955, and which brought back from the British statesman and war leader a note of appreciation.

Tyree dedicated the poems "To Winston Churchill" with the inscriptions: "Who walked with kings nor lost the common touch," and "now. . guiding on a fan league canvas with brushes of camels' hair."

The note from Churchill to Woodson Tyree reads: "Thank you so much for your kind message. It gave me much pleasure. Winston Churchill. April 19, '55."

The first poem, which elicited Churchill's note, entitled "The London Blitz," reads:

God crushed the world. . . With the frightful pain of. . . Universal terror! Let the piles of inanimate rock . . .The monstrous maw of Grand Canyons . . .And the sweep of limitless plains. . .The infinite depths of the sky. . .The insane multitudes of stars. . .The mountainous crests of. . .The eternal oceans pound. . .Their watery avalanches against. . The granite cliffs of a . .Million continents, let all. . .This display of God's inanimate. . .Nature cease its prey, insignificant. . .Sterring, against the anguished cry. . . Of one human heart. . .Broken in its cause. . .of lust, sadness, slaveness. . .What there is of greatness is not in mountains. . .It is in human hope; . . .What there is of magnificence is not in the boundless sky; . .It is in human courage. . .What there is of awful beauty is not in constellations, . . .And worlds without end; . . . It is in the single heart. . .Enduring pain, No God, no stars, no endless sky, . . .No pulsing sea, no granite cliff can know.



One of the difficult things about writing a ski column when you live in Colorado Springs is that there is always so much sunshine you sometimes wonder if there really is any skiing in the state. From the mail I receive from ski areas, however, let me assure you that not only is there skiing, but it seems to be getting better every weekend. As a matter of fact, one of the snow reports I received from one of the larger areas began with the sentence, "it's snowing right now and we've received four inches so far today."

Much to my chagrin, I couldn't make it out to an area last weekend, mostly because of prior commitments that were arranged for me. . .I plead guilty to not having a more flexible schedule.

However, I talked to quite a few people who went, and from their reports it was typical Colorado Skiing . . . great. The latest comment about skiing making the rounds in Colorado, by the way, is "help stamp out summer."

To get down to something a bit more serious, Steamboat Springs is holding their 33rd annual Winter Carnival Feb. 13 and 14, and Bob Beattie, the outstanding coach of the United States Olympic Ski Team, will dedicate Mt. Werner in honor of this country's greatest skier and goodwill ambassador. Storm Mountain, a 10,000 foot peak near Steamboat Springs, will receive the honor of becoming a monument to Buddy.

I met Buddy Werner only once, and talked to him for probably 15 minutes. I don't know exactly how the people of Colorado felt about him, but I do know that you could go anywhere in Michigan and the name "Buddy Werner" made skiers eyes light up with a gleam that said "he's our best, and he's as good as they come." He was a magnificent skier, and he was the first American who could hold his own against the Europeans. I remember that when he broke his leg while training for the '60 Olympics, I felt like at least two gold medals had been denied the U.S. Ski Team.

More than just being a skier, of course, Buddy Werner was a man who not only the United States, but Europe as well, took to their hearts. He was fearless on skis, and when he came down the hill spectators and competitors alike would stand rooted, while he did the things on skis that only the really great ones can do. I remember reading once in one of the national magazines that "when Buddy Werner races, he only touches the ground to change directions." After I saw him ski for the first time, I realized it was just barely an exaggeration.

Steamboat Springs is justifiably proud of their favorite son, and a Werner Memorial building has been proposed, to be constructed in that city. They have mailed letters and made a plea for funds so that construction could start this year. Knowing the little I do about Bud Werner and what he has done for both skiing and America's reputation abroad, I'm mailing my contribution today . . .and I'm not even from Colorado.

For those of you who are, mail your contribution to Bud Werner Memorial, Town of Steamboat Springs, Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Jerry Lewis Having a Ball With "Jewels"

Jerry Lewis explained why he's doing a scene in a transatlantic jet for a sequence in his new Paramount release, "The Family Jewels."

"We did it so the musical score boys can get some sky music in there. You know, the kind of high-pitched chords that sound as though they're coming through the clouds. All musicians love to add sky music to a score. Other 'stock' delights are ocean music (the breeze through the wind-jammers' sails) and desert music (low and mysterious. We've got a little of all three in our picture and the arrangers are having a musical ball!"

REBIRTH—More than any other motion picture, "Birth of a Nation" stands as the forerunner of the movies as we know them today. D. W. Griffith's masterpiece, made in 1915, pictures the epic struggle of the Civil War, followed by the South's reconstruction period. The film will be shown during the Flick Theatre's Film Arts Society Series Feb. 17.

Motion Picture Classics Series

Due to Begin at Flick Wednesday

In what must surely be one of the outstanding events of this or any year at a movie house, the Flick Theatre will begin on Feb. 3 and continue for eleven Wednesdays thereafter, an unprecedented series of some of the greatest classics of the motion picture art.

Called the "Film Arts Society," and presented jointly by the Flick and Film Arts Enterprises, the series will include twelve of the most praised, most discussed, and most sought-after films ever exhibited in one program. Conceived as a practical answer to the great demand among college and selective audiences for repertory cinema as art, Film Arts Enterprises has chosen the Flick theatre as Colorado's showcase for film classics. Until now, such presentations were limited to the college towns of Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Films by great directors from many countries will be presented, among them "The Seventh Seal," directed by Ingmar Bergman of Sweden; "Alexander Nevsky," by Russia's Sergei Eisenstein; Jean Renoir's "Grande Illusion," from France; and Roberto Rosselini's "Open City," from Italy. "Birth of a Nation," will be the contribution of America's master director, D. W. Griffith.

Rarely seen classics that are collector's items today will also be screened in the Wednesday series. Alfred Hitchcock's delightful chase mystery, "Foreign Correspondent," will be shown publicly for the first time in many years. Charlie Chaplin's comedy masterpiece "The Gold Rush," will be shown in its original 1925 version — complete with silent titles and musical accompaniment. One of Jean Harlow's first starring films, "Public Enemy" stands as a clear example of the notoriety gained by the screen's platinum love goddess — and it will be shown in its entirety.

Also programmed in this exceptional series are "Citizen Kane," "Italian Straw Hat," and "The Game of Love."

The Film Arts Society will commence its series this Wednesday with the noted British color comedy, "The Lady Killers." Alec Guinness stars as the ring leader of a gang of bungling crooks who are foiled by a little old lady. "The Ladykillers" is one of the classic British comedies which also features the now popular Peter Sellers.

Programming of current art pictures at the Flick will now be from Thursday through Tuesday — Wednesday being set aside for Film Arts Society. Complete programs and further information for membership are available at the Flick Theatre.

"The Gold Rush," which was voted by a poll of 110 film critics as the "finest comedy ever made," is the only movie for which a single ticket cannot be purchased. In order to see this picture, the entire series membership ticket must be purchased. For the rest of the series, single night tickets are obtainable.

Following is a list of the movies, when they will be shown, the year they were released, and the country in which they were made.

Arlie Moore Re-Elected To Position

Arlie Moore was re-elected President of Security Savings and Loan Association at its ninth annual meeting recently. Earl H. Schwab was re-elected Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Also re-elected were Mark W. Baker, vice president and secretary, Roger B. Lane, vice president, John B. Brandt, Jr., treasurer, Walter S. Masel, Jr., assistant vice president and Mary V. Campbell, assistant secretary.

Members of the Board of Directors who were re-elected included Everett Conover, Guss D. Hill, W. S. Marshall and Dr. Roy J. Wasson. Schwab, Moore and Baker also are directors of the association. All of the officers and directors are residents of Colorado Springs.

Security Savings opened its doors for business in January 1956, by local businessmen on the theory that the community could better be served with the home office in Colorado Springs.

Arlie Moore, president of the firm, announced to the Stockholders at its annual meeting that the association had enjoyed another year of progress and growth. The firm had reached an all time high in assets of $24,663,383.

The annual report reflects a gain in savings during the past year reaching new heights of $20,867,157. The report also said the association had granted 406 real estate loans during 1964.

Now under construction at Platte Avenue and Union Boulevard is the new Security Savings East. Security Savings East will contain approximately 20,000 square feet of floor space on three levels and will have an abundance of surface parking surrounding the new building. The new office building is scheduled for completion this summer. It will enable the Association to better serve its many customers.

Moore foresaw the possibility of a continued housing boom and commercial building in the local area. During the past year, Colorado Springs has been the bright spot in the State's economy. "A continuation of the present building boom, the prospects of another Federal Tax cut, ample mortgage credit . . . . .these factors suggest strong demand for single family homes," said Moore.

CITIZEN'S CITIZEN—Orson Welles' famed biography of a newspaper tycoon, "Citizen Kane," will be shown early in the spring during the Flick Theatre's Film Arts Society Series. The film is famous for the advanced photographic and sound techniques it utilized in 1940.

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

The Colorado Springs Kennel Club held its monthly meeting last Monday as usual at the Alamo Hotel. Many things of importance were discussed, including plans for the combined shows to be held this summer. Pueblo, at the Agriculture Building at the State Fairgrounds on June 12. This one of course is put on by the Southern Colorado Kennel Club. Our show is June 13 at the Ft. Carson Fieldhouse, Ft. Carson. This is the first time the two clubs have worked together on their shows. We have decided to call this combined effort The Foothills of the Rockies dog shows.

The trophy committee and the advertising committee are already hard at work completing plans. There will also be a judges dinner which will be held at the Minnequa Club in Pueblo. Everyone is welcome to the dinner. Next year, 1966, the show dates will be reversed and we will have the judges' dinner in Colorado Springs. It's fun putting these shows together because everyone works and cooperates beautifully. The last two years have seen record entries at our shows, greater cooperation among members and more money in the treasury than at any time in the long history of our local club. It is gratifying to all the club members to have things turn out as expected.

The program for the meeting Monday night was actually an open forum or discussion on the problem of dogs running at large in the county. Several members of the Stratton Meadows PTA and other interested persons expressed their views, pro and con on the subject.

One of the biggest problems has been the dogs who run in small packs on the school grounds. There have been 84 dog bites in Stratton Meadows alone. Most of these dogs have homes and are allowed to run at will. Only a few of them are actually strays.

It all boils down to one thing, in my humble opinion, and I will be called wrong by some. This is a case of people who simply DO NOT CARE!

It is hard to see where the blame can be placed on the dog. After all, a dog cannot read, has no set of rules to follow, has no built-in sense of obligation or discipline. The fault lies with the owner. Now, as I well know, educating the public is almost impossible. The ones who read this column are interested in dogs, in their welfare, in their health and wouldn't dream of turning them loose to frighten children, destroy property or make a nuisance of themselves. If I could only reach the careless dog owner — the one who abuses his dog, does not feed him properly, lets him roam in packs to make a pest of himself.

A dog that is allowed complete freedom to run is NOT a happy dog. He is smart enough to know that no one really cares what happens to him. He is just like a child that is given free reign — he often reacts badly.

It was suggested at the meeting that the OWNERS be licensed, not the dog. The owner should be made to sign a statement to the effect that he will be responsible for his dog, for his humane treatment, his conduct, his welfare and that he would be liable for the actions of his dog. I think that this is an excellent idea. There are many families that should never be allowed to have a dog or any pet.

There should be some way to control the indiscriminate breeding of all dogs, purebred and mixed breeds as well. I wish I knew the answer to this one, but I don't.

There should be a law to protect the dog from the owner because he and he alone makes a mean dog. No dog properly treated is going to bite a child unless he is provoked beyond endurance. The answer to this is educating the child.

The child should be taught that he must never pull a dog's tail or his ears, never poke a stick at a dog or hit him or yank his collar. I have seen parents who are meaner to a dog than their own children so how do you get through to them. I wish I knew.

It was also pointed out at the meeting that there are already two laws in El Paso county on dogs and they are the rabies inoculation law and the nuisance law but the problem is enforcement. The Humane Society of this area does a fine job with what they have to work with but they are understaffed for the extremely large area they must cover and the police department is too busy trying to keep the humans in line to help enforce these laws.

It was recommended that all dogs wear rabies tags as one means of identification or be classed as strays and be picked up by the Humane society.

It was also suggested that private citizens in these troubled areas be deputized to help pick up these strays and try to get people to keep their dogs at home. Now, whether this can be done is another matter but it may be one step in the right direction.

This is a summation of some of the ideas that were brought up at the meeting and there were no decisions reached and the problem was not actually solved in any way but a few new ideas were passed around and a few people got some gripes off their chests.

I recognize that this is a serious problem and my sympathies are with the people involved. I'm sure that if we keep working toward a solution that one will be found.

Questions about dogs may be directed to Mrs. Mary Urban 495-2143.

Actress Gets Through a Movie Alive

It's great to be alive—at the end of a drama! That's the reaction of beautiful Jill Haworth, who for the first time lives through a motion picture or TV drama in the "To Heinie, With Love" segment of 20th Century-Fox Television's "12 O'Clock High" starring Robert Lansing. In it she guest-stars as an English girl who has a tender romance with a lonely and confused American flyer, played by Keir Dullea.

Miss Haworth has been heralded as an outstanding young actress who could die convincingly. She was murdered in her film debut in "Exodus" and committed suicide in her latest motion picture, "In Harm's Way." She won acclaim several months ago for her sensitive performance with Peter Fonda in the "Sound of Distant Thunder" episode of "12 O'Clock High" but she was killed during a bombing of London.

If I could only reach the careless dog owner — the one who abuses his dog, does not feed him properly, lets him roam in packs to make a pest of himself.

A dog that is allowed complete freedom to run is NOT a happy dog. He is smart enough to know that no one really cares what happens to him. He is just like a child that is given free reign — he often reacts badly.

It was suggested at the meeting that the OWNERS be licensed, not the dog. The owner should be made to sign a statement to the effect that he will be responsible for his dog, for his humane treatment, his conduct, his welfare and that he would be liable for the actions of his dog. I think that this is an excellent idea. There are many families that should never be allowed to have a dog or any pet.

There should be some way to control the indiscriminate breeding of all dogs, purebred and mixed breeds as well. I wish I knew the answer to this one, but I don't.

There should be a law to protect the dog from the owner because he and he alone makes a mean dog. No dog properly treated is going to bite a child unless he is provoked beyond endurance. The answer to this is educating the child.

The child should be taught that he must never pull a dog's tail or his ears, never poke a stick at a dog or hit him or yank his collar. I have seen parents who are meaner to a dog than their own children so how do you get through to them. I wish I knew.

It was also pointed out at the meeting that there are already two laws in El Paso county on dogs and they are the rabies inoculation law and the nuisance law but the problem is enforcement. The Humane Society of this area does a fine job with what they have to work with but they are understaffed for the extremely large area they must cover and the police department is too busy trying to keep the humans in line to help enforce these laws.

It was recommended that all dogs wear rabies tags as one means of identification or be classed as strays and be picked up by the Humane society.

It was also suggested that private citizens in these troubled areas be deputized to help pick up these strays and try to get people to keep their dogs at home. Now, whether this can be done is another matter but it may be one step in the right direction.

This is a summation of some of the ideas that were brought up at the meeting and there were no decisions reached and the problem was not actually solved in any way but a few new ideas were passed around and a few people got some gripes off their chests.

I recognize that this is a serious problem and my sympathies are with the people involved. I'm sure that if we keep working toward a solution that one will be found.

Questions about dogs may be directed to Mrs. Mary Urban 495-2143.

Actress Gets Through a Movie Alive

It's great to be alive—at the end of a drama! That's the reaction of beautiful Jill Haworth, who for the first time lives through a motion picture or TV drama in the "To Heinie, With Love" segment of 20th Century-Fox Television's "12 O'Clock High" starring Robert Lansing. In it she guest-stars as an English girl who has a tender romance with a lonely and confused American flyer, played by Keir Dullea.

Miss Haworth has been heralded as an outstanding young actress who could die convincingly. She was murdered in her film debut in "Exodus" and committed suicide in her latest motion picture, "In Harm's Way." She won acclaim several months ago for her sensitive performance with Peter Fonda in the "Sound of Distant Thunder" episode of "12 O'Clock High" but she was killed during a bombing of London.

Max Morath, Rag Quartet To Appear on National TV

Max Morath and the Original Rag Quartet will be featured on Bell Telephone Hour's salute to American music — popular, folk, jazz, ragtime and western — at 8 p.m. Tuesday on channel 5. Jane Powell will be hostess to the all-star cast which includes Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars, Jack Haskell, and Donald Voorhees conducting the orchestra.

The Original Rag Quartet is a new group which was organized last spring. Morath felt need for a banjo, an accoustical guitar and a bass instrument. He found them all in New York.

James Tyler, answering to tenor banjo, is schooled in a variety of stringed instruments and is lutenist for the Pro Musica Antiqua. He is familiar to Greenwich Village coffee houses.

Felix Pappalardi, bass guitarist, is also a cornetist, a percussionist, conductor of the New York Baroque Brass Ensemble, and music director for rhythm and blues and rock 'n' roll groups.

Barry Kornfeld, whose interests stem from the folk music of the 1920's and '30's, plays guitar, five - string banjo and harmonica. He has a guitar accompaniest and jug background and is the only man in the group with a somewhat contemporary background. He once served as guitar accompanist to the Gary Davis, a blind gospel and blues singer.

Morath and the Original Rag Quartet will portray music from the happy and exciting years of the Gay 90's to the Roaring 20's. One of the country's leading proponents of ragtime piano, Morath earned his living for several years in radio and television as an announcer, actor and director. Ragtime, with its drawing magnetism, intruded, and he began to specialize.

Young, fast - talking and apparently familiar with every song written during the ragtime era, Morath matches his delightful playing and singing with a thorough knowledge of social influences on America's songs. His piano style recalls the days of beer buckets and buggy whips.

Ragtime, sometimes referred to as the city folk music of the 1890's, is the missing link in the folk music revival. It entered the scene as a folk style and departed 20 years later degenerated into a jangling artificial style suited for beer parlors. Itinerant players and singers, composers in the true folk sense, took melodies and words all around them then added their own, and strung them together in march and quadrille style to make the composite pieces called rags. Syncopation made these new pieces "rags."

Years have passed and now the best of the forgotten ragtime is emerging into its rightful place in the pedigree of American music, both jazz and folk. The years that produced it were known as the "good years" and an emerging First War seems to have left it behind.

Morath, author of "Max Morath's Guide to Ragtime," a collection of ragtime songs and piano solos, was born in 1926 in Colorado Springs after the death of ragtime. He soaked up ragtime from his mother, a first rate silent movie pianist. He graduated from Colorado College with a BA in English and attended Stanford University for graduate work in television and theater. Later, after much work in both fields, he became consumed with ragtime until he gained his present status as one of the best entertainers in the field of ragtime music, as well as being a husband and father of three children.

On Tuesday's program, Miss Powell will be joined by Broadway baritone Jack Haskell in portraying the popular American songs of today. Louis Armstrong and his All - Stars will offer a special brand of jazz to portray this authentic American musical expression. Country and Western music will be represented by Roy Rogers and his wife Dale Evans.

FOUR PLUS ONE — Max Morath (above), a well known personality in the Colorado Springs area, will bring his Original Rag Quartet to nationwide television when he appears on the Bell Telephone Hour's salute to American music Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Omega-Minus

Four months of testing was required to prove the "eightfold way," theory at Brookhaven Laboratories. This high energy physics theory, developed simultaneously on different sides of the earth by theoretical physicists Drs. Murray Gell-Mann and Yuval Ne'eman, deals with the basic family relationship among particles in the nucleus of the atom. The missing particle, which they theorized had to be there, was found and has been named Omega-Minus.

Welk's Show Draws Praise In Congress

A tribute to Lawrence Welk and ABC-TV's "The Lawrence Welk Show," for " a decade of wholesome, splendid and unique musical entertainment," has been read into the Congressional Record by Senator Thomas H. Kuchel of California.

"The Lawrence Welk Show," now in its tenth year on ABC-TV, recently presented its 500th telecast.

Senator Kuchel's remarks, in part:

"It is well known that (television) features which have endured for a substantial length of time are very few. Those which do continue from season to season possess a unique appeal and sometimes an indefinable quality which sustains their popularity. One such program approaches a significant milestone.

"On Saturday, Jan. 23, Lawrence Welk and his Champagne Music 'family' celebrate their 500th national performance on the ABC Television Network. This marks the completion of nearly a decade of wholesome, splendid and unique musical entertainment, emanating from my native State of California and the establishment of a tradition which engages the attention of an estimated 20 to 25 million viewers every week.

"I salute Lawrence Welk, a farm boy from a German immigrant community in North Dakota, who made his debut on national broadcasts as what the trade calls, 'a temporary summer replacement.' Within four weeks after the initial performance in July 1955, this program shot to the top of the ratings and in the intervening years has maintained a popularity rivaled by few television features.

Leisuretime Viewing

Colorado Springs' own MAX MORATH will be among the steller all-star cast NBC has lined up for TUESDAY'S "Bell Telephone Hour." MAX will present the ragtime segment in this salute to American music. Joining him will be banjoist James Tyler, guitarist Barry Kornfeld, and Felix, bass guitarist. The jazz side will be in the capable hands of Louis Armstrong, with Roy Rogers and wife Dale going country Western. Hostess Jane Powell blends her lilting voice with Jack Haskell's baritone in a medley of pop songs.

Second on the recommended viewing list this up-coming week is a CBS special MONDAY, "The Mystery of Stonehenge." The massive stone ruins, standing on the Salisbury plain 90 miles south of London and dating back to the second millenium B. C., have been the subject of scientific and popular speculation for centuries. The latest theory was propounded last June by Dr. Gerald Hawkins, an astronomer at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, who says Stonehenge was an astronomical observatory and a crude computer. This is the controversial theory to be examined and tested in the CBS special with Charles Collingwood as narrator.

Three shows make their debuts this week, beginning SUNDAY when CBS premieres "For the People," which stars William Shatner as an assistant DA. Regulars will be Howard da Sliva who plays Shatner's superior; Lonny Chapman as an investigator assigned to the DA's office, and Jessica Walter as Shatner's wife who is also a professional musician. The show uses the "active camera," a concept new to TV - a technique that brings the effect of immediacy with the camera taking part in the action rather than just recording it.

"The American Sportsman" debuts SUNDAY on ABC with Robert Stack (Elliot Ness on the old "Untouchables") and Joe Foss (Commissioner of the American Football League, former governor of S. D., and a World War II Medal of Honor winner) doing some tricky bird shooting on an African safari. Stack, one-time All-American skeet-shooting champ, stalks a rogue lion in Kenya. This is the first of four specials to be presented once a month through April.

On THURSDAY, ABC will start its "Alcoa Preview," a series which will preview outstanding events in the world of entertainment. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. will be host-narrator for this first of a four-part series. For openers, he'll tell the story behind "Roar of the Greasepaint," the new Anthony Newley musical coming up on Broadway and show behind scenes action on the set of "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," starring Kim Novak.

Peter Sellers will discuss his near fatal heart attack WEDNESDAY on ABC Scope which probes the number one killer. Also featured will be the Duke of Windsor, Dr. Michael DeBakey, the surgeon who operated on him for an aneurysm recently in Houston, and Dr. Don Chapman, president of the American Heart Association. Dr. DeBakey, who was also the late Jeanette MacDonald's physician, will outline his plan for the establishment of regional medical conters to combat heart disease. He is chairman of the President's Commission on Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke.

Now for some capsules on some of the regular shows.

TONIGHT over CBS's Gunsmoke, Victor Jory portrays Chief Joseph, a powerful Indian war leader, who becomes ill in Dodge City while en route to the White House to discuss peace as thousands of his tribe, secretly armed, await the outcome of his mission. The Dodge House doesn't accept Indians as guests.

Dick Shawn, comedian-star of Broadway's top hit "Peterpat," is a guest TONIGHT on CBS's "The Entertainers."

Tony Lema and Bobby Nichols face the Herbert brothers, Jay and Lionel, in the quarter-finals match TODAY on CBS's Golf Classic.

Look Up and Live SUNDAY (and the following SUNDAY) examines the philosophy of the playboy in America. The Rev. Harvey Cox, visiting lecturer at Andover - Newton Theological School, hosts the CBS show. The show's writer, William Hamilton, defines the playboy as "a youngish urban male, unmarried, with a rather highly developed sex life."

Darren McGavin is guided on a big-game hunting safari SUNDAY by Tony who poses as an African hunter on "The Rouges" over NBC.

Earl Holliman stars as a killer SUNDAY on NBC's Bonanza, when the Cartwrights' neighbors hire him to protect their herds from rustlers.

The story of a fugitive slave who chose between secure private life and publicly crusading against slavery will be told SUNDAY on NBC's Profiles in Courage segment. Robert Hooks takes the title role of Frederick Douglass. Claudia McNeil also stars, portraying the wife of a fugitive slave living in New Bedford, Mass.

"The Nisei: The Pride and the Shame" is the subject SUNDAY on CBS's 20th Century. Sen. Daniel K. Inouye (D., Hawaii), Distinguished Service Cross holder who lost an arm fighting in Italy, tells how he was treated when anti-Japanese hysteria gripped the country.

Tony Lema (he gets around, doesn't he?) travels to the Rungsted (Denmark) Golf Club SUNDAY on ABC's Shell's Wonderful World of Golf for an 18-hole match with Danish pro Carl Poulsen.

The economic state of the nation will be discussed on Issues and Answers SUNDAY over ABC. Guests are Secretary of the Treasury Dillon and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Michael Bentine, who got his start with an unknown Peter Sellers on a noted Britain radio series called "Goon Show," will be Jonathan Winters' guest MONDAY over NBC. Now one of England's leading comedians, he will display his off-beat approach to humor.

Maurice Chevalier will host the Red Skelton Hour Tuesday over CBS when Red and France's top mime Marcel Marceau put on a pantomime concert. Not a word will be spoken.

That excellent actress, Eileen Heckart, takes on The Doctors and the Nurses TUESDAY over CBS. Miss Heckart plays a distraught mother who blames Alden personnel for the death of her only child.

Stage mothers of the worst kind - that's Laura and Millie WEDNESDAY on the Dick Van Dyke Show over CBS - when their sons are cast in a TV commercial.

Endora wants Sam to pop off to Egypt for a wedding THURSDAY on "Bewitched" over ABC. Darrin refuses, and you know what this means.

The first airplane ever designed for warfare, the legendary Nieuport Scout, is the star FRIDAY on Bob Hope's show over NBC. Starring in the World War I drama are John Cassavetes, Carol Lynley, and Chester Morris.

Judy Garland visits "On Broadway Tonight" FRIDAY on CBS.

An anti-boxing bill gets Slattery in hot water FRIDAY on this top CBS drama series. Trouble comes from all sides, the press, the public and his own party.

Savage welcomes a new navigator (Keir Dullea) to his crew FRIDAY on 12 O'Clock High over ABC, but discovers the officer is a dengerous loner.

FDR is inaugurated as 32nd President in "The Hundred Days," FRIDAY on ABC's "FDR" series. He closes the banks, calls a special session of Congress, gets an emergency banking bill passed within hours, and makes the first move toward ending Prohibition in these feverish 100 days (and nights). Appearing are Mrs. Roosevelt, Henry Wallace, Hamilton Fish, Rexford Tugwell, Congressman Joe Martin, Carleton Smith and Edgar Johnson.

Are You Still Humidifying Like Grandmother Did?

This old fashioned method wasn't too effective in grandmother's time, but even then people realized the need to humidify their homes. Now there's an easy and effective way to give your home or business safe and comfortable humidification. A Lau V-27-H power humidifier is now available to provide automatic humidification. A built-in humidistat assures you of maintaining just the right amount of moisture. This in turn provides personal comfort and protects your furniture, carpets, walls, floors, fabrics and other valuables from excessive and damaging dryness. The V-27-H is economical too. It costs no more to operate than 2 60 watt light bulbs. The V-27-H has a workhorse capacity of 27 gallons per 24 hours of operation, large enough for the biggest home and even stores, offices, motels, etc. See us now for a free demonstration of the modern way to provide complete winter comfort.

Civic Players to Present 'Come Back, Little Sheba'

Local favorites will be featured in the Civic Players newest production, William Inge's "Come Back, Little Sheba," when the curtain rises Monday in the Fine Arts Center.

This is the story of a deep-seated frustration in marriage, and of its inevitable and furious eruption. As the story unfolds, we gradually understand that Doc and Lola have had an indiscreet affair, and that because of this he was compelled to marry her, give up his medical studies, forfeit all hopes of the future, and to settle down to a dull life with a tedious and stupid wife.

He became an alcoholic, and when the play opens, he has been off the stuff for a long time. As the action continues, however, and his wife's inane rattling becomes more and more exasperating, the explosion becomes inevitable. It is a terrible expectation, and it comes in an avalanche of fury.

Sidney Blackmer's performance in this climactic scene won for him the coveted Antoinette Perry Award as the best actor

Video Background Music Used to Help Story

HOW TO COMPOSE MUSIC FOR TV—Undoubtedly, the general television viewer is not much aware of the background music. But for musicians it's different. There is a movement in films, and in some television, to reduce background music, and to approach the format of the stage, as far as sound is concerned, to heighten the impact of the human voice. But in general, background music is a standby device of the films and television, without which the average viewer would perhaps feel quite lost, not knowing why.

Composer Morton Gould, famous for his work and inventiveness, has a few enlightening remarks to say about this kind of music.

The versatile composer - conductor-pianist has to be to turn out a 26-minute score weekly for CBS-TV documentary series on Sunday night, "World War I."

There are no sound effects on these half-hour episodes which consist of a fine blend of narration and factual films of the conflict, which, of course, was fought before sound-on-film, or "the talkies," existed.

"So, the musical background is continually exposed and, actually, helps tell the story," Gould said.

"With producer Isaac Kleinerman, I view each picture and then see it through a movieola which I can start and stop at will as I block out the musical sequences."

Every second of each sequence is logged on a sheet, down to fractions. Then comes the composing which, of course, must conform to time measurements and also capture the psychological and emotional fabric of each segment.

"That is why I really must write with my eye on the clock," Gould continued. "Fractional timing is crucial. A stopwatch and a metronome are as vital a part of my composing as pen and paper. So, you might say that I write for and with the clock."

Gould uses his music to mean something beyond the pictures it may accompany on the screen. For example, a sequence showing smiling, happy soldiers marching off to the front to the accompaniment of cheers and tossed flowers from civilians will have a background that illustrates musically the destruction to which they are going.

When a "World War I" score is finished, it is recorded for the file by Alfredo Antonini and a symphony orchestra. Conductor Antonini also has to be a clock - watch. A clock that really is an enlarged stopwatch is before him, along with each score, because the music has to be recorded with split-second timing to fit the frames of the film.

Picasso at Work, photographed by Edward Quinn. Text by Roland Penrose (Doubleday $25): Nearly 300 photographs of the artist in the intimate atmosphere of his Riviera home at work on easel paintings, murals, sculpture, pottery. Seven paintings were created for the book and one mural was photographed in every stage of progress.

Japan: A History in Art, by Bradley Smith (Simon and Schuster $30): An exquisite book which traces Nipponese art from pre-historic times to World War I and encompasses sculpture, metal work, block prints, murals and paintings on scrolls, screens and fans. Many of the 237 color plates show items owned by the imperial family and other private collectors. The text provides a concise history of Japanese culture.

Goya, by Francisco Javier Sanchez Canton (Reynal $120): A literary treasure by the grand old man of the Prado Museum in Madrid and a gallery of Goya's immortal paintings. Gate panels unfold to give four-foot long reproductions of some of the Prado Goyas.

Marc Chagall, Life and Work, by Franz Meyer (Harry N. Abrams $35): A treatment of one of the most beloved of modern masters written with the cooperation of the artist and his family. The text is sensitive, poetic and evocative of the exciting decades of modern art experimentation. There are 1,250 illustrations, 53 in color and a 16-page section of photos of the Chagall family and friends.

"With producer Isaac Kleinerman, I view each picture and then see it through a movieola which I can start and stop at will as I block out the musical sequences."

Every second of each sequence is logged on a sheet, down to fractions. Then comes the composing which, of course, must conform to time measurements and also capture the psychological and emotional fabric of each segment.

"That is why I really must write with my eye on the clock," Gould continued. "Fractional timing is crucial. A stopwatch and a metronome are as vital a part of my composing as pen and paper. So, you might say that I write for and with the clock."

Gould uses his music to mean something beyond the pictures it may accompany on the screen. For example, a sequence showing smiling, happy soldiers marching off to the front to the accompaniment of cheers and tossed flowers from civilians will have a background that illustrates musically the destruction to which they are going.

When a "World War I" score is finished, it is recorded for the file by Alfredo Antonini and a symphony orchestra. Conductor Antonini also has to be a clock - watcher. A clock that really is an enlarged stopwatch is before him, along with each score, because the music has to be recorded with split-second timing to fit the frames of the film.

Gould attends all recordings and, from the control room, supervises the sound and balance.

ART BOOKS — Among recent publications in the field of art, are the following:

Picasso at Work, photographed by Edward Quinn. Seven paintings were created for the book and one mural was photographed in every stage of progress.

Japan: A History in Art, by Bradley Smith (Simon and Schuster $30): An exquisite book which traces Nipponese art from pre-historic times to World War I and encompasses sculpture, metal work, block prints, murals and paintings on scrolls, screens and fans. Many of the 237 color plates show items owned by the imperial family and other private collectors. The text provides a concise history of Japanese culture.

Goya, by Francisco Javier Sanchez Canton (Reynal $120): A literary treasure by the grand old man of the Prado Museum in Madrid and a gallery of Goya's immortal paintings. Gate panels unfold to give four-foot long reproductions of some of the Prado Goyas.

Marc Chagall, Life and Work, by Franz Meyer (Harry N. Abrams $35): A treatment of one of the most beloved of modern masters written with the cooperation of the artist and his family. The text is sensitive, poetic and evocative of the exciting decades of modern art experimentation. There are 1,250 illustrations, 53 in color and a 16-page section of photos of the Chagall family and friends.

Revolution Leaders Showed Ruthless Policy

THREE WHO MADE A REVOLUTION — By Bertram D. Wolfe - Two Volumes - Time, Inc. - $3.95 — This is a fascinating study of the forces of the Bolshevik Revolution. It deals with the complex characters of Lenin, Trotsky and Stalin, before they came to power, and how they came to power. For those, for instance, who often are puzzled about Stalin's later purges, this book may at least offer some psychological explanations, and of the origin of the theory and practice of "purge," as practiced by Lenin in his own faction, the Bolsheviks. And if it is viewed in this light, the bloody purges become more clarified from a policy viewpoint, rather than being merely attributed to Stalin's bloodthirstiness.

For, it was already Lenin long before he came to power who practiced the principle of "purge," which, in his eyes, even though it reduced the party to a few individuals, still strengthened its "activist" power, a theory diametrically opposite to the idea of having as wide participation in a party as possible. It could be compared to a water line which has a nozzle, such as in fire-fighting equipment: If the opening is too wide, the water has little pressure; the pressure is build up by reducing the opening of the nozzle.

Apparently Lenin thought in similar terms when it came to party personnel. Time and again he led "splits" with his Bolsheviks; and even though at times he was forced into compromises with the Mensheviks, and with other socialist groups, such as the Bund, and others, still, his main theory seems to have been an intensification of party structure, even at the expense of numbers, with which to achieve his goal.

But this is only one item in Lenin's pre - revolutionary career, as he prepared for the revolution which at times he thought would not occur during his lifetime. For, even though this is a highly authoritative book, that is, one which uses all kinds of source material which cannot today be even found in Russia, there are still many mysteries that remain unsolved.

One of these mysteries is just what exactly was the "bombshell," which Lenin planned to disclose to the Soviet rulers in Russia, just before he died? The author thinks Lenin died strictly of natural causes, and he discounts any "poisoning" theory, as the one proposed by Stalin's arch - rival, Trotsky. On the other hand, the book seems to infer the question that it was, after all, very strange, that Lenin died just as he was about to make the "bombshell" disclosure about Stalin, and the reader is left wondering whether Stalin would be unmasked as a Czarist police spy, or as something else? As one who plotted to take power, as he indeed did?

Then there are the unanswered questions of Czarist police spies in Lenin's own organization. The inference of the book is, mostly, that Lenin himself was chagrined to learn that some of his most trusted lieutenants were Czarist spies. But the question is: If Lenin had such an efficient espionage organization of his own, did he really not know about it? And there is sowed in the rader's mind a suspicion that Lenin might have used Czarist spies deliberately for his own purposes, in crosses, couble crosses, triple crosses and quadruple crosses, in the fantastically double - crossing activities of the Czarists, liberals, and leftist elements of prewar Russia.

Another item, of course, which emerges in these two volumes, is that whatever claims Stalin made for being Lenin's heir, are entirely spurious. Stalin's early career was not merely unsavory, such as conducting bank robberies "for the cause," a procedure which was denounced by the Social Democrats of the day; but he was also quite undistinguished politically — until he had burrowed himself into the party machinery, and by maneuverings finally emerged on top as a bureaucrat mainly, not as a real leader. And his claims of following the "true" Leninist line is disproven, showing that he was actually on occasions opposed to Lenin, rather than being his "most faithful disciple."

In view of the fact that this book was written while Stalin still reigned, these conclusions probably had bigger impact then than now, when Stalin has been discredited, but they do illustrate the struggle for power which existed among the Bolsheviks long before they seized power in Russia.

Allen Dulles, in his special introduction to the account of how Lenin, Trotsky and Stalin prepared for the Revolution, subscribes, in part, to the "hero theory" of history. "Important historical events are generally the products of men and opportunity," Dulles writes, "A leader appears when the stars in the heavens are in the right conjuncture — at a crucial moment in history when he, and possibly he alone, can exert a decisive influence. The course of events may then be decided for good or evil, depending upon the type of man who emerges and the environment in which he seizes the initiative."

The type of men who emerged from the waning Czarist days are now well - known. They provided the vector for Communism. Many of the legislators of the Communist legacy, as did two of the original revolutionary trio — Trotsky and Stalin — fall into political disfavor and are consumed by their creation. But the ideology continues.

IWO JIMA — By Richard Newcomb - Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc. — This book has been published as a 20th anniversary volume of the Battle of Iwo Jima, one of the fiercest, most costly in U.S. history. The publishers say this book is a monument to over 70,000 Marines, the Seabees and other thousands of sailors and naval aviators who fought the battle, many of whom did not return. It also gives a picture of Gen. "Howlin" Smith on his last campaign, and of Secretary Forrestal at the foot of Suribachi as the flag went up. It also tells for the first time the story of the 21,000 Japanese who knew they were doomed but held a heroic stand. The author, who is an assistant features editor for the Associated Press, interviewed about 100 of the survivors and corresponded with well over 400 in gathering the material for this book.

Delmer J. Rodanaugh of 905 W. Cheyenne Road of Colorado Springs is mentioned in the book.

Cycles Have Come of Age in Spite Of Black Leather Jackets

By STEVE WILLIAMS
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Does anyone here remember those black leather jackets that cycle jockeys used to wear while they roamed the asphalt highways terrorizing small towns and looking for trouble? Well, they're still with us, but you'll be happy to learn that they've taken on an aura of respectability in the past few years.

It seems that when the whole motorcycle craze started, a lack of organization prompted riders to band together in packs made familiar by Marlon Brando in "The Wild One," a movie which tots and teens emulated to such an extent that enyone daring to appear on the street riding a cycle was immediately labeled "another one of those crazy teenagers."

Motorcycle riding, at least in the Pikes Peak area, seems to have come of age lately, perhaps because that same band of joy riders grew out of what the psychologists like to call a "phase." Sunday at a competition event at the Rocky Mountain Paving Corporation property near the SkyVue Drive-in the cycle riders in the area went a long way towards proving that riding a motorcycle is nothing more than a sport, engaged in by men (and women, surprisingly) of almost every walk of life.

A "Scramble" was held at the property, sponsored by the Pikes Peak Comets, a local motorcycle club seemingly dedicated to eradicating the bad name cyclists have had thrust upon them. Among the things they do every year to foster a better relationship with car drivers is an Easter Egg Hunt, from which they donate all the proceeds to the Crippled Children's Home.

To get back to those black leather jackets, they are now used to protect a rider's body when he's racing, and before I hear any "aha's" let me set your mind at ease by saying that the races are organized, well-run, and fairly safe. By "fairly safe," I mean that a rider is well protected by a crash helmet and a leather suit when he's on the course, and no more than six riders are allowed to race against each other at one time.

The limiting of riders cuts down on the possibility of pile-ups, and the crash helmet and leather suit go a long way towards eliminating the most common of motorcycle-accident injuries, contusions and lacerations.

I might add here that if the races were any safer, the riders would probably give up the ghost and take up something that had at least a smell of danger in it, like sky-diving.

The scramble Sunday saw some 70 riders from all over Colorado participating, and an innumerable number of the younger set on anything from scooters to Hondas hanging around the fringes with their eyes glued to the better riders. The difference between this and the situation ten years ago is that the kids can't wait until they're allowed to join organized competition, while in 1955 they were intent only on getting out on the highway and seeing how many cars they could pass.

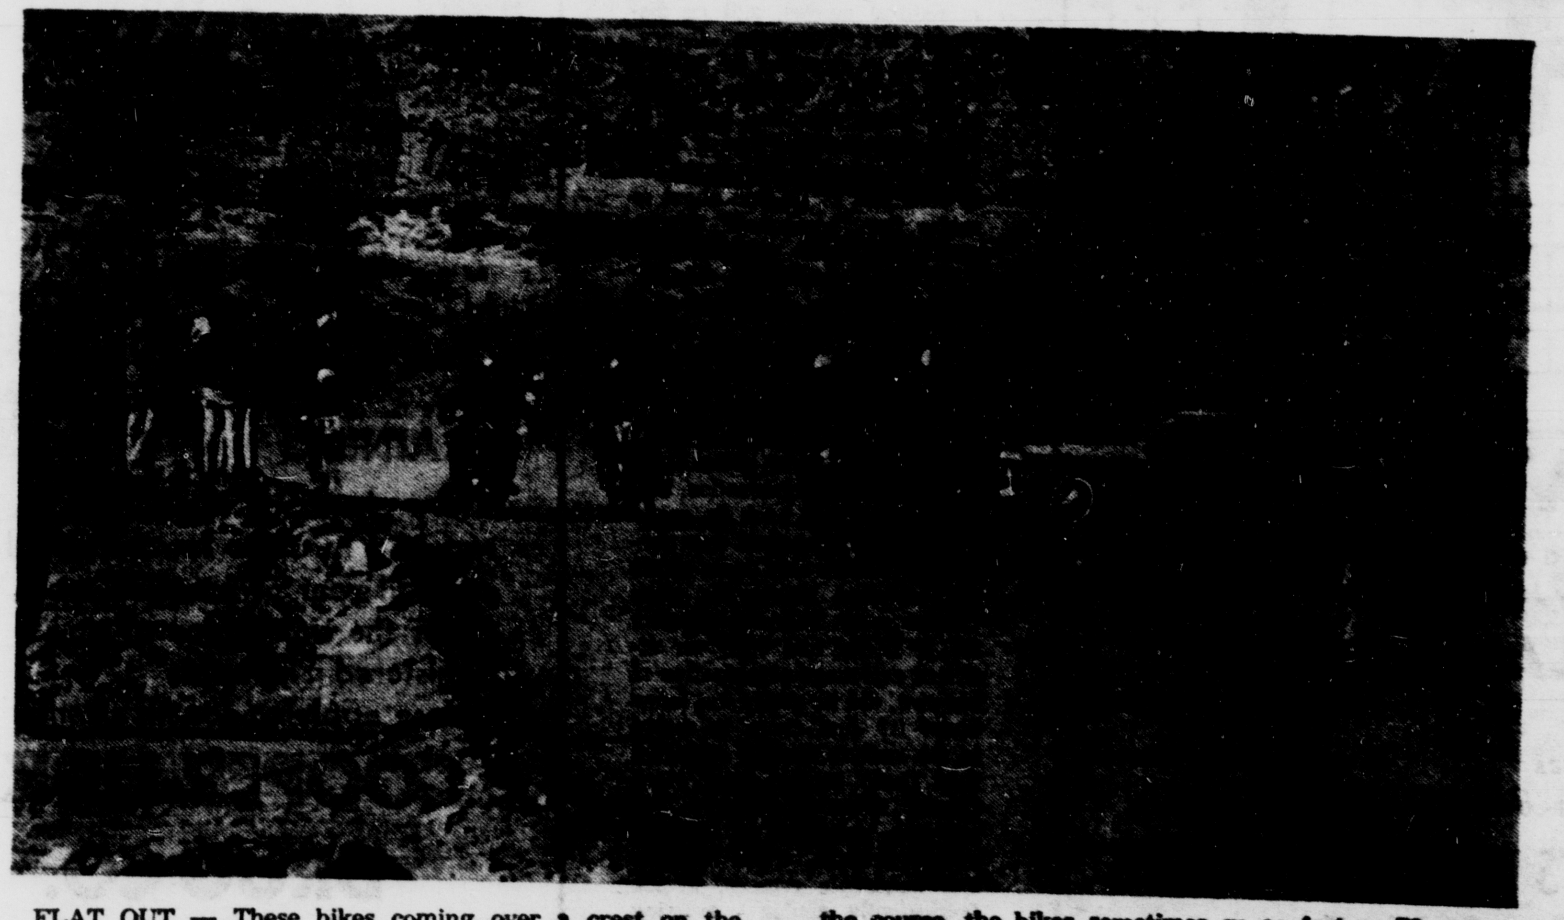
A "Scramble" is a race run over either unimproved or slightly improved ground, with several heats run, depending on the number of entries. Sunday there were four heats (a heat is a preliminary race to eliminate the slower riders) and a main event in the largest cycle class. The main event, of course, pitted the winners of the various heats against each other, and the result was both exciting and loud.

In case you haven't noticed, the smaller bikes sound like mosquitoes without mufflers, and the whine they produce would probably drown out an atomic blast at ground zero. Most of the crowd who came out to see the races (a rough guess on my part would place it at 1,000 people) didn't quite understand the procedures involved in racing, so when the bigger bikes left the track, about half of them went home... which is their misfortune. The smaller bikes, while not as fast, are apparently much more maneuverable, which made for more place changes during the course of a race.

In spite of the fun involved in a race, cyclists are cyclists as much for the mechanical tinkering that's involved in owning a cycle as for the competition involved in a race. Motorcycles, according to Lauren Anderson, one of the members of the Pikes Peak Comets, are the simplest gasoline combustion engines ever devised, and for this reason most repairs are both enjoyable and easy. Some of the racers may tear their bike down as often as twice a month, and the real enthusiasts completely overhaul them before every competition.

The riders do other things besides compete in races, of course, and one of the favorite pasttimes is trail riding. The close proximity of the mountains to the Pikes Peak area makes for trails of every description, and it's been said that cycles will go where even horses can't reach.

The riders also have a Pikes Peak Snow Climb every year on New Year's Day. They start



FLAT OUT — These bikes coming over a crest on the course at the Rocky Mountain Paving Corporation land are all of the bigger variety, each having more than 600 cubic centimeter engine displacements. On this straight part of the course, the bikes sometimes go as fast as 70 m.p.m The danger, however, is apparently in the eye of the beholder, since there were no accidents during the races that resulted in injuries. Times Have Changed Since the Days

BLAST OFF — These four riders at the cycle races last Sunday were in more than a hurry as the flagman gave them the go signal. The semi-improved ground provided a gravel surface that lent itself admirably spray of dust and peebles being kicked up to the racer's ability, as can be seen by the as the riders let out the clutch.

Cycles Have Come of Age in Spite Of Black Leather Jackets

Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Does anyone here remember those black leather jackets that cycle jockeys used to wear while they roamed the asphalt highways terrorizing small towns and looking for trouble? Well, they're still with us, but you'll be happy to learn that they've taken on an aura of respectability in the past few years.

It seems that when the whole motorcycle craze started, a lack of organization prompted riders to band together in packs made familiar by Marlon Brando in "The Wild One," a movie which tots and teens emulated to such an extent that enyone daring to appear on the street riding a cycle was immediately labeled "another one of those crazy teenagers."

Motorcycle riding, at least in the Pikes Peak area, seems to have come of age lately, perhaps because that same band of joy riders grew out of what the psychologists like to call a "phase." Sunday at a competition event at the Rocky Mountain Paving Corporation property near the SkyVue Drive-in the cycle riders in the area went a long way towards proving that riding a motorcycle is nothing more than a sport, engaged in by men (and women, surprisingly) of almost every walk of life.

A "Scramble" was held at the property, sponsored by the Pikes Peak Comets, a local motorcycle club seemingly dedicated to eradicating the bad name cyclists have had thrust upon them. Among the things they do every year to foster a better relationship with car drivers is an Easter Egg Hunt, from which they donate all the proceeds to the Crippled Children's Home.

To get back to those black leather jackets, they are now used to protect a rider's body when he's racing, and before I hear any "aha's" let me set your mind at ease by saying that the races are organized, well-run, and fairly safe. By "fairly safe," I mean that a rider is well protected by a crash helmet and a leather suit when he's on the course, and no more than six riders are allowed to race against each other at one time.

The limiting of riders cuts down on the possibility of pile-ups, and the crash helmet and leather suit go a long way towards eliminating the most common of motorcycle-accident injuries, contusions and lacerations.

I might add here that if the races were any safer, the riders would probably give up the ghost and take up something that had at least a smell of danger in it, like sky-diving.

The scramble Sunday saw some 70 riders from all over Colorado participating, and an innumerable number of the younger set on anything from scooters to Hondas hanging around the fringes with their eyes glued to the better riders. The difference between this and the situation ten years ago is that the kids can't wait until they're allowed to join organized competition, while in 1955 they were intent only on getting out on the highway and seeing how many cars they could pass.

A "Scramble" is a race run over either unimproved or slightly improved ground, with several heats run, depending on the number of entries. Sunday there were four heats (a heat is a preliminary race to eliminate the slower riders) and a main event in the largest cycle class. The main event, of course, pitted the winners of the various heats against each other, and the result was both exciting and loud.

In case you haven't noticed, the smaller bikes sound like mosquitoes without mufflers, and the whine they produce would probably drown out an atomic blast at ground zero. Most of the crowd who came out to see the races (a rough guess on my part would place it at 1,000 people) didn't quite understand the procedures involved in racing, so when the bigger bikes left the track, about half of them went home... which is their misfortune. The smaller bikes, while not as fast, are apparently much more maneuverable, which made for more place changes during the course of a race.

In spite of the fun involved in a race, cyclists are cyclists as much for the mechanical tinkering that's involved in owning a cycle as for the competition involved in a race. Motorcycles, according to Lauren Anderson, one of the members of the Pikes Peak Comets, are the simplest gasoline combustion engines ever devised, and for this reason most repairs are both enjoyable and easy. Some of the racers may tear their bike down as often as twice a month, and the real enthusiasts completely overhaul them before every competition.

Of Brando and the 'Wild One' Gang

C'MON, BABY — One foot on the ground, both hands on the throttle, this rider is trying to maintain his balance before ending up in the weeds. The faceguard he's wearing is made of plexiglass, and is a necessary part of a racer's equipment on unimproved ground because of the dust that's kicked up by the other riders . . . unless, of course, you're leading, and then you give the others your dust.

HANG O N— This rider, one of over 70 who attended the races at the Rocky Mountain Paving Corporation's property Sunday, is rounding a switchback during one of the heats. The racer, attired with the crash helmet that is mandatory for competitors, also has "knobbies" on his bike. "Knobbies" is the name given to tires with rubber knobs for traction, used in gravel track races and hill climbs. (Gazette Telegraph Photo) from Glen Cove and work their way up, and last year the snow was so bad that several riders temporarily lost their way.

Next weekend the Comets are holding a benefit race for one of their number who died recently of a heart attack. Emelio Petrellio, of Denver, was one of the oldest members of the club, and was well-known among cycling circles. He rode the snow climb every winter, and attended practically every competition in the state year after year. It almost goes without saying that a band of "wild ones" would no more do something as humane as having a benefit for one of their number than they would be caught without their black leather jackets.

I must confess that in spite of all the talking I've done up to this point, my feelings lie with the majority of people who are just a bit afraid of those two-wheeled wonders. . . They frighten me a little. But perhaps all I need is a whiz around a track sitting astride a responsive little monster that reacts like it knows what you're thinking. . .I've been promised one, so maybe next weekend I'll gather what courage I have together and join what they tell me is fun.

FIXIT TIME — One of the pleasures (they say) of racing a motorcycle is that when it breaks down you just pull it off the track and fix it. These riders are intent on doing just that, and the workings of a bike are simple enough to allow minor repairs to be made almost while the race is in progress. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

'Boccanegra' Plunges to Low Depths of Obscurity

By JIM GLEN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Operatic plots are not noted for credibility or lucidity, but Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" to be heard today on radio station KOA at noon plunges into depths of obscurity seldom equalled anywhere.

It is the ninth Texaco broadcast this season direct from the stage of the Met.

Compared with "Boccanegra" the same composer's "Il Trovatore," often derided for its maze of complications, is a model of lucidity.

"Boccanegra" is based on a Spanish drama by Gutierrez and was first given at the Teatro La Fenice in Venice on March 12, 1857, with a libretto by Mario Piave. The public was bored and it was a resounding flop.

Twenty-four years later a revised version was heard at La Scala, and though it fared much better the reception was not precisely tumultuous. Much of the trouble seemed to be, and indeed still is, the plot and, to some extent, the music.

Boito, Verdi's enormously talented librettist who wrote "Falstaff" for him, re-worked the plot and only succeeded in slowing down the action to the point of immobility. Of course there is strong reason to believe that the first version was a great deal worse.

Boito was correct when he referred to it as a "rickety table" needing "another leg." Unfortunately no one ever supplied the other leg.

As everyone in the opera is ignorant of the identity of everyone else and practically no one is what he appears to be chaos was guaranteed from the outset.

It is a work of almost totally unrelieved gloom and depression, with the chief character so tediously and inhumanly noble that one longs to kick him where it would do the most good.

The plot, as far as this writer can discern, tells of a 14th century Italian pirate who somehow becomes the doge of Geoa. The first act follows a prologue which occurs 24 years earlier. Simon finds a daughter he has lost years earlier (one is irresistibly reminded of Lady Bracknell's famous remark about "the height of carelessness,"; but he refuses to allow her to marry his death bed gives his consent.

The above is the merest suggestion of what goes on for there is all sorts of 14th century skullduggery shrouded in obscurity and generally appropriately darkly lit, involving conspirators and dozens of other shady characters. None of the foregoing has ever been clear to the writer. It's a case of now you see it, now you don't.

Apparently Boito did very little tinkering with the text but Verdi made drastic revisions, re-scoring and re-writing, and here is one of the disparities in the work. Much of the music was composed before the Maestro had completely mastered his art and other portions we hear reveal his growing maturity and command.

"Traviata" was behind him, and "Aida" "Otello" and "Falstaff" were yet to come. There is a disturbing conflict in style here.

Undoubtedly the scene in the council chamber which was almost entirely re-written, is the best. The only truly memorable aria, "Il lacerato spirito" was also an addition to the earlier version, and is a concert hall favorite with bass soloists.

The opera has never been very popular because it is not a very good opera. It did not cross the Atlantic until 1932 when it was first heard at the Met. The premiere was notable for it introduced the late Lawrence Tibbett to the public.

It was not heard in England until 1948 when it was presented, not at Covent Garden, but in the more modest house at Sadlers Wells where the writer first became acquainted with it.

In a letter to a friend Verdi wrote that the work was "gloomy because of its nature," but added that it "was interesting." The lesser work of genius in any sphere is generally some appreciation for an occasional revival of "Simon Boccanegra."

GUEST APPEARANCE — Judy Garland makes a guest appearance on "On Broadway Tonight" Friday on CBS. After chatting with Rudy Vallee, host of the variety series, Miss Garland will do a medley of songs.

Pepper-Stuffing Recipes Lenten Season Mainstay

Down in New Orleans, this is one of the favorite Lenten dishes. So while there is an "R" in the month, and peppers are reasonable, try this unusual way to serve oysters.

Cut three large green peppers lengthwise and remove the seeds. Parboil for a few minutes and allow to drain on paper towels.

Drain liquor from one pint fresh oysters. Saute the oysters in three tablespoons butter just until their edges begin to curl slightly. Remove oysters immediately and reserve.

Add enough milk to oyster liquor to make a cup and a half of liquid, also adding the butter the oysters have cooked in. Add three tablespoons butter to pan and make a roux with three tablespoons flour. Season lightly with salt, white pepper, and a couple of dashes of tabasco. Add the liquid and cook to a medium consistency. Add oysters, and divide the mixture into the six pepper shells. Sprinkle with fine bread crumbs, dot with butter, and bake in a 350-degree oven for about 20 minutes or until browned. Serve immediately.

The Bulgarians also have an unusual way to serve peppers, stuffed with a cottage cheese mixture.

Wash six large green peppers, remove the tops and seeds, and sprinkle the insides with salt and pepper.

Saute one small chopped onion in one-half cup butter until transparent. Combine this with two medium tomatoes, diced; two slices of white bread that have been soaking in milk; one pound cottage cheese, small curd; four eggs, beaten; a dash of pepper, and one tablespoon chopped parsley.

Stuff the peppers, place in a baking dish, dot with butter and bake for one hour in a preheated 350-degree oven. Serves six.

While apples are also reasonable, make a chutney using peppers. Seed and core three large peppers, 18 tart apples that have been peeled and cored, and chop fine one large onion.

Mix with one and a half cups each seeded raisins, sugar and a tart jelly, three cups cider vinegar, and the juice of three lemons.

Stir into these ingredients one and a half tablespoons ground ginger, one-fourth teaspoon ground cloves, one-fourth teaspoon allspice, a half teaspoon nutmeg, and two bay leaves.

Boil until thick, using a low heat, stirring occasionally.

Correct the seasoning by adding a little salt and cayenne pepper to taste. Put up in sterilized jars and seal.

Pears may be substituted for the apples.

Tomatoes may also be substituted, but if you use them, make the chutney with brown sugar instead of white, and double the amount. Also omit the allspice and nutmeg, and substitute cinnamon and ground mustard.

Actually chutney is such a simple preserve that you can just about throw into a kettle any mixture of fruit and spices, with peppers and onions, and come up with a good one.

Artist and His 'Stage Hands' Aid Local Opera Effort and Learn Too

By JIM GIBNEY

All the success of the operas being produced by the Colorado Springs Opera Association is not due solely to the excellent operatic singing of the local men and women taking part in the productions. Much of the credit for the beauty of the operas must go to a local artist who designs the sets and supervises their construction and painting, and to some 20 art students who assist him in each of these productions.

Walter Wilson, art instructor at Fountain Valley School, and an artist of considerable reputation in this country, has been set designer for the Colorado Springs Opera Association for the past three years.

We made a visit this week to his studios at the picturesque school south of Colorado Springs to view the construction of the opera sets for "Tosca." The Giacomo Puccini opera which is an actual account of an episode that took place in Rome, Italy in June 1800 at the turn of the century is to be presented at Wasson High Auditorium on Feb. 5-6.

Wilson and four of his art students were at work on one of the sets. Some 20 of his 55 art students participate in the painting and construction of the opera sets. "I feel that a live project like building and painting sets for the operas is the most constructive work my students can get, for they are able to see the practical results of their labor," Wilson stated.

The artist begins his designs of the opera sets months before the production. "The biggest problem we face in bringing opera to the public in grand style is that the sets must be so huge," he said, and added, "fortunately, we have a big stage to work with at Wasson High School.

The operas require about 30 "flats" for each production. These are painted and repainted, cut down and built up to form the scenic designs required for each opera.

The 35-year-old art instructor was born in Auburn, N. Y. He graduated from Colgate University and received his master's degree in art at Colorado College. During the Korean Conflict, he was an Air Force pilot flying transport aircraft.

He is married to the former Patricia Steele of Auburn, N.Y. They have six children: Polly, 10, Eva, 9, Richard, 8, Blake, 4, Myra, 2, and Lincoln, age nine months. The family resides in quarters at the Fountain Valley School.

Wilson was appointed Art Master at the school in 1957. His paintings have been exhibited at Butler Institute in Ohio, the Canon City Art Center, the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center, the Denver Museum, the New Mexico Museum at Santa Fe, Pueblo College, the University of Oklahoma and the Oklahoma Art Center. He explored the use of using lightweight polyurethane in reliefpaintings a few years ago which combines the art of sculpture and painting.

He has designed sets for the Civic Players and for the past six years he has designed the settings for the Cripple Creek Melodrama presentations.

Wilson and his students will take the "Tosca" sets to the Wasson High Auditorium Monday where he and his crew will work with Homer Paris, Wasson drama instructor and technical director for the "Tosca" opera. There the first act sets will be placed on stage, removed and folded, and the succeeding settings for the following acts will undergo a "dry-run" in a technical rehearsal for timing prior to dress rehearsals with the cast later in the week.

Right after the final curtain comes down on "Tosca", the sets will be transported back to the Fountain Valley School where Wilson and his art students will commence work on the building of sets for "Die Fledermaus". The Johann Strauss' production will close the local opera season at the Wasson Auditorium on April 2-3.

Think Factory

Five mornings a week dozens of scholarly looking men file through the lobby of a picturesque old hotel in Santa Barbara, California, and go into private offices converted from hotel rooms. Each of these men stays in his office for eight hours, communicating with no one. The only equipment in the office is a desk and chair. These men sit and think. They think on a variety of subjects ranging from will there be an atomic war in 1990, to what can be developed to replace oil when the world's supply runs out. This is G. E. Artist and His 'Stage Hands' Aid Local Opera Effort and Learn Too

By JIM GIBNEY

All the success of the operas being produced by the Colorado Springs Opera Association is not due solely to the excellent operatic singing of the local men and women taking part in the productions. Much of the credit for the beauty of the operas must go to a local artist who designs the sets and supervises their construction and painting, and to some 20 art students who assist him in each of these productions.

Walter Wilson, art instructor at Fountain Valley School, and an artist of considerable reputation in this country, has been set designer for the Colorado Springs Opera Association for the past three years.

We made a visit this week to his studios at the picturesque school south of Colorado Springs to view the construction of the opera sets for "Tosca." The Giacomo Puccini opera which is an actual account of an episode that took place in Rome, Italy in June 1800 at the turn of the century is to be presented at Wasson High Auditorium on Feb. 5-6.

Wilson and four of his art students were at work on one of the sets. Some 20 of his 55 art students participate in the painting and construction of the opera sets. "I feel that a live project like building and painting sets for the operas is the most constructive work my students can get, for they are able to see the practical results of their labor," Wilson stated.

The artist begins his designs of the opera sets months before the production. "The biggest problem we face in bringing opera to the public in grand style is that the sets must be so huge," he said, and added, "fortunately, we have a big stage to work with at Wasson High School.

The operas require about 30 "flats" for each production. These are painted and repainted, cut down and built up to form the scenic designs required for each opera.

The 35-year-old art instructor was born in Auburn, N. Y. He graduated from Colgate University and received his master's degree in art at Colorado College. During the Korean Conflict, he was an Air Force pilot flying transport aircraft.

He is married to the former Patricia Steele of Auburn, N.Y. They have six children: Polly, 10, Eva, 9, Richard, 8, Blake, 4, Myra, 2, and Lincoln, age nine months. The family resides in quarters at the Fountain Valley School.

Wilson was appointed Art Master at the school in 1957. His paintings have been exhibited at Butler Institute in Ohio, the Canon City Art Center, the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center, the Denver Museum, the New Mexico Museum at Santa Fe, Pueblo College, the University of Oklahoma and the Oklahoma Art Center. He explored the use of using lightweight polyurethane in relief-paintings a few years ago which combines the art of sculpture and painting.

He has designed sets for the Civic Players and for the past six years he has designed the settings for the Cripple Creek Melodrama presentations.

Wilson and his students will take the "Tosca" sets to the Wasson High Auditorium Monday where he and his crew will work with Homer Paris, Wasson drama instructor and technical director for the "Tosca" opera. There the first act sets will be placed on stage, removed and folded, and the succeeding settings for the following acts will undergo a "dry-run" in a technical rehearsal for timing prior to dress rehearsals with the cast later in the week.

Right after the final curtain comes down on "Tosca", the sets will be transported back to the Fountain Valley School where Wilson and his art students will commence work on the building of sets for "Die Fledermaus". The Johann Strauss' production will close the local opera season at the Wasson Auditorium on April 2-3.

Armchair Traveler Treated to Tour Of Canadian Province at Fine Arts

A travel-adventure film of British Columbia, the westernmost Province of Canada, will be featured during Horizons Unlimited Feb. 14-15 at the Fine Arts Center Theatre.

The travelogue, filmed by free-lance photographer Cleveland P. Grant of Mineral Point, Wis., takes the armchair adventurer along mountain ramparts, canyons and valleys whose contours cover miles of wooded terrain interspersed with Alpine lakes, glaciers, snowfields and turbulent waterfalls.

Among subjects featured in the film are the R.C.M.P. musical ride, "The Black Horse Ballet," Victoria and the Butchart Gardens, Vancouver and the Queen's Garden, the Sons of Freedom sect of the Doukhobors and dry-fly fishing for summer steelhead trout.

Westward from the Alberta border, British Columbia extends to the 40th parallel, the Yukon and the southwestern flank of Alaska. The province encompasses 366,225 square miles containing several climates and terrains, including Rogers Pass, the result of a $26 million road building project. Rogers Pass is the final link of the Trans-Canada Highway which extends 5,000 miles, the longest paved road in the world.

The 92-mile pass is a link between Alberta and British Columbia and has meant increased flow of goods between the two western provinces, including a means of transportation for Alberta apiarists who now move their bees to the mild winters of the Okanagan to gain an extra six weeks production time.

Okanagan, often referred to as the Riviera of Canada, is known for its carnivals and outdoor square dancing, including the Kelowna Regatta and the Penticton peach festival.

The Williams Lake-Bella Coola road cuts through the southern half of Tweedsmuir Provincial Park west of British Columbia and north is Highway 16 which separates Prince George and Prince Rupert by 466 scenic miles. This was the territory of early fur traders and pioneers whose travels are marked by settlements bearing their names. Indian totem poles are characteristic of the region.

North of Prince George is the 255-mile Hart Highway, the northern finger of Highway 97. The topmost tip is Dawson Creek, up and coming in the economic pattern of B. C. where men produce grains, petroleum products, oil and natural gas.

South is the lower Fraser Valley's dairy lands, neat communities, Harrison Hot Springs, Deas Island Tunnel and the activities of cosmopolitan Vancouver, Canada's third largest city. Some 282 miles long and with an average width of 50 miles, Vancouver Island's 8,028,000 acres are inhabited by about 300,000 persons, It lies across the strait of Georgia and offers golf in winter, the continent's most unique undersea gardens, antique shops, roses in December, fishing for salmon year-round and yachting events.

Heron fishes, activity of curlew, sandpiper and several other species of sea-going birds and ducks can be seen along the 7,000 odd mile of coastline to the west. Grizzlys, lynx, bobcat, marten, mink, deer, moose, caribo, elk, sheep mountain goats and cougar are part of the region's vast animal kingdom. Two years ago it was estimated that 70,000 deer and 20,000 moose were taken by hunters. Quail and partridge also offer game for sportsmen across the lower Fraser Valley.

The Provincial Government has fashioned large tracts of natural areas into parks west of the Alberta-British Columbia border. Alongside are privately constructed hotels, motels and resorts. The intensity of bird life on Vancouver Island is represented by such species as crows, sparrows and Canada jays which do not migrate, and pheasant, grouse and other upland birds. Farther west of the island is jagged coastline where inlets and tiny islands reap a harvest of clams along miles of flat beaches.

The island contains a stand of the world's largest Douglas firs and logging constitutes a considerable part of the economy.

Winter fishing in British Columbia offers salmon in coves and harbors and steelhead trout in the many rivers of the province. British Columbia holds the world's official steelhead record. Exclusive of the fishing and hunting fraternity, is the existence of bird watching societies, which last year recorded nearly 200 species of birdlife around Victoria.

Skiers find the Forbidden Plateau west of Courtney and 134 miles north of Victoria a center of activity during the winter months, near the 3,000 foot high Della Falls.

British Columbia is to Canada what California is to the United States. It is Canada's West Coast and greatest fruit growing area. Like California, its coast first was explored by Spaniards and Russians and its modern settlement started with a great gold rush.

Two matinees at 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. are scheduled Feb. 14. One showing will be offered at 8 p.m. Feb. 15. Tickets may be purchased at the Chinook Book Shop, 208½ N. Tejon St., or by calling 634-6820 or 632-6349, Feb. 12, 13 or 15.

American Shutterbugs to Step Up Travel, Pictures

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Americans love to travel and love to take pictures.

Travel today is getting faster, cheaper and easier.

Put the two statements together and out comes a prediction: More Americans will travel this year, visit more foreign countries and take more pictures than ever before!

Basically, there is vast potential for world good in this flow of traveling, picture-taking Americans. When people visit an get to know each other, they spread good will and understanding. Through photography, the spread of good will and understanding is made easier because it is a universal language which surmounts the barrier of a strange tonuge.

Recently a group of photographers pondered the role of photography as an instrument of good will and thought of a means to organize, direct and expand the process. The Institute for Cultural Exchange Through Photography was established. Its spokesman is Clemmo E. Merowit, 330 South Broadway, Tarrytown, N. Y. He is a retired builder, camera club member and photographic enthusiast.

"There are thousands of competent amateur photographers in this country," Merowit told me, "who can use their hobby almost as diplomatic emissaries. Theirs can be a two-fold mission. Simply stated, they can show people abroad how Americans live and they can come back with their photographic images of lif ein other countries images of life in other countries for viewing this country.

Photographers are a natural nucleus for a 'hobby peace corps' at the grass-roots level," he emphasized. "Our program will present a stiff challenge, perhaps, because we look for high quality in audiovisual presentation. But we think camera clubs and photo groups have made photographers very competitive and able to meet that challenge."

Arrangements have been made with representatives from several countries for participation in the institute's program. They will arrange receptions abroad for qualified photographers at which they will show color slides of some aspect of American life of their own making. To be judged by the institute on the basis of photographic ability, interpretive capacity and their personal qualification to represent the good will effort.

It is expected that participating photographers will seek their own photo impressions abroad, aided by briefings by foreign travel and cultural societies. On their return home, these pictures can be selected and edited to form a photo essay or "Travel Set" picture series accompaned by tape recorded narrative and music.

'We plan a Travel Set contest as the first phase of our program," Merowit disclosed. "Winners in the competition will receive broad distribution on local and national level. Photographers will receive appropriate recognition and top prizes will be three-week all-expense tours abroad."

Even if there were no prizes, photographic effort to spread good will and understanding is a rewarding experience.

Casa Allegra Will Feature Local Hootenanny Singers

To keep in stride with the hootenanny trend, Charles Morreale has established the Casa Allegra, featuring local hootenanny singers who have proved their ability to entertain audiences in the familiar hootenanny manner.

The Casa Allegra, located downstairs at the old Alta Vista Hotel at 118 N. Cascade Ave., opened six months ago and is featuring Italian - American foods. Their pizzas and spaghetti are made from old world recipes, prepared by Harry Rexhep. "Rex" is the chef and has been one for 45 years. He formerly ran the Cheyenne Lodge.

The high school students in the city should appreciate the Casa Allegra as a place to meet and enjoy music performed by people in their age bracket. Performances will be Friday and Saturday nights during the winter months, and in the summer they will continue through the week.

"There's no place for the kids to get together," says Morreale, "and this will be just the thing for them. I've got two teen-age kids of my own."

On the entertainment list are the Emanon Majority (Emanon is "no-name" spelled backwards) formerly the New Brandywine Singers. Mel Perry, Pat Faricy and John Griebel, St. Mary's seniors, make up the group. They won third place in a talent contest at the Hilton in Chicago where there were over 5,000 other entries. Locally they appeared at the March of Dimes Hootenanny held here recently, The Chat Noir at Breckenridge, The Heritage Coffee House in San Diego and at Castle Rock.

Other groups in the spotlight to appear are the Patriots, consisting of Buck Corrigan, Larry Dial and John Dickman. The Patriots are a Wasson High School group. A lone singer will be Little Brother Dave, who has appeared at Le Chat Noir, and The Green Spider in Denver. Another single will be Zack Hobbs, a Palmer senior who has written many songs and has appeared in Denver, Boulder, and CSU at Ft. Collins.

Entertainments starts at 7:30 p.m. every Friday and Saturday and will feature such drinks as Smugglers Grog, Angel Tip Mocha, Purple Passion and Ginger Beer . . . all non - alcoholic, of course.

* * * * * *

FOLK SINGER PERFORMS—Little Brother Dave, who has performed at the Le Chat Nor and the Green Spider in Denver, will be among many Folk singers to perform at the Casa Allegra Friday and Saturday nights. The establishment will feature folk music for the entertainment of local high school students and will serve Italian-American foods.

Arrangements have been made with representatives from several countries for participation in the institute's program. They will arrange receptions abroad for qualified photographers at which they will show color slides of some aspect of American life of their own making. To be judged by the institute on the basis of photographic ability, interpretive capacity and their personal qualification to represent the good will effort.

It is expected that participating photographers will seek their own photo impressions abroad, aided by briefings by foreign travel and cultural societies. On their return home, these pictures can be selected and edited to form a photo essay or "Travel Set" picture series accompaned by tape recorded narrative and music.

'We plan a Travel Set contest as the first phase of our program," Merowit disclosed. "Winners in the competition will receive broad distribution on local and national level. Photographers will receive appropriate recognition and top prizes will be three-week all-expense tours abroad."

Even if there were no prizes, photographic effort to spread good will and understanding is a rewarding experience.

Casa Allegra Will Feature Local Hootenanny Singers

To keep in stride with the hootenanny trend, Charles Morreale has established the Casa Allegra, featuring local hootenanny singers who have proved their ability to entertain audiences in the familiar hootenanny manner.

The Casa Allegra, located downstairs at the old Alta Vista Hotel at 118 N. Cascade Ave., opened six months ago and is featuring Italian - American foods. Their pizzas and spaghetti are made from old world recipes, prepared by Harry Rexhep. "Rex" is the chef and has been one for 45 years. He formerly ran the Cheyenne Lodge.

The high school students in the city should appreciate the Casa Allegra as a place to meet and enjoy music performed by people in their age bracket. Performances will be Friday and Saturday nights during the winter months, and in the summer they will continue through the week.

"There's no place for the kids to get together," says Morreale, "and this will be just the thing for them. I've got two teen-age kids of my own."

On the entertainment list are the Emanon Majority (Emanon is "no-name" spelled backwards) formerly the New Brandywine Singers. Mel Perry, Pat Faricy and John Griebel, St. Mary's seniors, make up the group. They won third place in a talent contest at the Hilton in Chicago where there were over 5,000 other entries. Locally they appeared at the March of Dimes Hootenanny held here recently, The Chat Noir at Breckenridge, The Heritage Coffee House in San Diego and at Castle Rock.

Other groups in the spotlight to appear are the Patriots, consisting of Buck Corrigan, Larry Dial and John Dickman. The Patriots are a Wasson High School group. A lone singer will be Little Brother Dave, who has appeared at Le Chat Noir, and The Green Spider in Denver. Another single will be Zack Hobbs, a Palmer senior who has written many songs and has appeared in Denver, Boulder, and CSU at Ft. Collins.

Entertainments starts at 7:30 p.m. every Friday and Saturday and will feature such drinks as Smugglers Grog, Angel Tip Mocha, Purple Passion and Ginger Beer . . . all non - alcoholic, of course.

FOLK SINGER PERFORMS—Little Brother Dave, who has performed at the Le Chat Nor and the Green Spider in Denver, will be among many Folk singers to perform at the Casa Allegra Friday and Saturday nights. The establishment will feature folk music for the entertainment of local high school students and will serve Italian-American foods.

Chorale Will Perform 'Elijah Sunday at the Fine Arts Center

The Colorado Springs Chorale will perform Mendelssohn's "Elijah" Sunday at the Fine Arts Center under the baton of David Porter. The performance is scheduled for 3:15 p.m. and only one performance will be given. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

"Elijah" is a fine interpretation of the biblical story of Elijah, the prophet, and the musical score, though difficult to perform, is very dramatic and inspiring. It is recognized as one of the most popular of all oratorios, but has not been done recently by any group in the Pikes Peak area.

The capable and versatile David Porter has been director of the Chorale for almost two years, and served as assistant director for one year prior to that. His last musical success was "Finian's Rainbow," presented last November by the Choral Society. His versatility is shown in his ability to direct not only the light musicals and choral works but also the heavier and more demanding oratorios.

Porter is also vocal instructor at Cheyenne Mountain School and during the school year he presentes several choral concerts and at least one musical besides regular school activities. In the past few years he has done "Bye, Bye Birdie," "South Pacific," and "Down in the Valley" for the High School as well as directing "Camelot" and "Show Boat" for the Chorale.

Porter's interpretation of the tremendous Mendelssohn work, "Elijah," is an uplifting and tremendous emotional experience, and the superb voices of the Choral Society lend themselves extremely well to his direction.

The Bible story of Elijah begins with his prophesy to Ahab, the king, who with his wife Jezebel were the very epitome of evil in those days.

Jezebel was the daughter of the king of Zidonia and worshipped the false god Baal.

After his marriage to her, Ahab had made an altar for Baal in Samaria, the capitol of Israel, and turned to the worship of the false gods.

Very little is known about Elijah, but the name means "my God is Jehovah," so the conflict between Elijah and the priests of Baal on Mt. Caramel was very pronounced. Baal's followers symbolized all evil, and the prophet Elijah symbolized steadfast faith in the Word of God. When he heard the cry of his people, he realized that it was his duty to turn their thoughts and their love back to the Lord God of Israel.

The children of Israel would not listen to the word of Elijah because the fear of punishment and of what they deemed God's Wrath was so strong.

Ultimately, Elijah challenged the priests of Baal, and through the story of the bullocks and the fire Elijah proved to the people of Israel that their God was supreme, for the fire descended from heaven and the bullock and all the water which had been poured over it was consumed in flames, whereas the prayers of the priests of Baal were never answered.

Discouraged by the fact that Jezebel still clung to her false gods, Elijah turned to self-condemnation and lost sight of the good he had accomplished in the past, feeling it was better to die.

Angel thoughts of trust and the reassurance that God's ever present help and omnipotent power resulted in Elijah's realization that "He who watches over Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps."

Elijah, realizing all this, was finally taken "by a whirlwind up into heaven."

'Pacific' at Fine Arts on Tuesday

"South Pacific," one of the all-time great motion pictures, will be shown at the Fine Arts Center both Monday and Tuesday. There will be evening showings at 8 p.m. both Monday and Tuesday and a matinee Tuesday at 2:30 p.m..

The movie version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Pulitzer prize - Winning Musical, which ran for almost five years on Broadway, is a color delight enhanced by its on-location filming on the island of Kauai, known as the "Garden Island of the Hawaiians."

The same creative team responsible for "South Pacific's" theatre production brought it to the screen under Buddy Adler's producing guidance — Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein II and director Josua Logan. The now-famous music and lyrics introduced 15 years ago sound as fresh as ever on the screen.

"South Pacific," adapted from James Michener's best-selling novel, "Tales of the South Pacific," is the love story of a Navy nurse, played by Mitzi Gaynor, who falls in love during World War II with a French plantation owner, portrayed by Rossano Brazzi, on a Pacific island. A concurrent love story concerns a Marine Officer (John Kerr) and a native girl, (France Nuyen).

BRUSSELS — King Boudoui salary has been raised $1,400 a month.

Jerry Starts New Movie

Producer-director Jerry Lewis puts his 32nd Paramount Pictures release, "The Family Jewels," into production at a Culver City little league baseball park location.

In addition to the producing and directing, the comedian will star in multiple roles in the new film in which his "leading lady" is eight-year-old actress Donna Butterworth, moppet entertainer brought here from the Hawaiian Islands to make her screen debut with Lewis.

Artist to Exhibit 'Sided' Paintings at Arts Center

Paintings with two and even four sides will be featured at an exhibition of 33 works by James Trissel, opening at 3 p.m. Feb. 7 at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center. It will continue through March 3.

The show is the fist in six years for Trissel, an assistant professor of art at Colorado College here, who regards the artist as "a maker rather than a creator." He quit exhibiting after winning the Purchase prize at the University of consin Art Salon because he was dissatisfied with the work he was doing then.

Trissel's paintings in strong colors are of actual people and real objects. "That's what painting is all about," he says. All of the works in the show seem to be a reaction against the "fuzzy blobs of color" laymen have come to expect from painters.

There is a linear quality about his paintings that bears a direct relationship to the high quality of the ten drawings and prints and two calligraphs also featured in the show.

Most of the 21 paintings in the exhibition were done in the past year. In addition to teaching two studio classes and a popular art history course at Colorado College, Trissel managed to average 20 hours a week at the easel and drawing board.

The paintings range in size from three by four inches to four by six feet.

Most unusual work in the show is the box painting, 18 inches high and 10 by eight inches at the top and bottom. Called "Flower Box," it is to be seen from four sides, each showing the flower from a different angle.

Regarding the box painting, Trissel had this to say: "We know, of course, that the real business of painting is on flat surfaces. But there is a tendency in my work toward playfulness, and I could not resist the temptation to see what would happen if I took a flat surface and bent it." The test of the painting is its presence and clarity. A painting of this kind works if it makes things more tangible."

Also unusual is his "Still Life for a Corner," a two-foot high work disigned to be placed in a corner.

The 34-year-old painter, a native of Davenport, Iowa, regards himself as a craftsman.

Trissel says he is concerned with "the importance of the artist's relationship with the world around him, and at the same time with the importance of making paintings." "There has been too much pretentious literature about the artist and his 'ambitions,' "he says. He thinks there has been too much of the "religion" of art in recent years.

Starting as a child, Trissel always has drawn and painted for fun, but it was not until he was a graduate student of English literature at Colorado State College that he became seriously interested in art. He completed his master's degree in art there and returned to the State University of Iowa where he earned a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Prior to joining the faculty at Colorado College in January of 1964, he was an assistant professor of art at the University of California at Los Angeles. He started his teaching career in 1958 at Beloit College.

OLE! — The Abeyta Brothers, a Spanish Singing Duet who accompany themselves on guitar, made their first appearance in Colorado Springs Saturday in the Acacia Hotel Ballroom. Performing before a sell-out crowd, the Abeytas did several Spanish Folk Songs as well as providing music for a dance. They will be appearing in this city again at a later date.

Years in Minutes

As Naninga in Menotti's "Martin's Lie," Noreen Berry, attractive 30-year-old mezzo soprano, has to look like a 50-year-old woman to whom time has not been kind. For the production, her facial make-up alone took more than an hour. So thorough a job of make-up was done that it took even longer to get it all off—106 minutes, to be exact.

Takes Time

Months are needed to create the lifelike likeness of each film star to be added to the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park, California. After the facial features are sculptured, eyes and teeth are positioned and each human hair must be inserted by hand for the head, eyelashes, eyebrows, and beard.

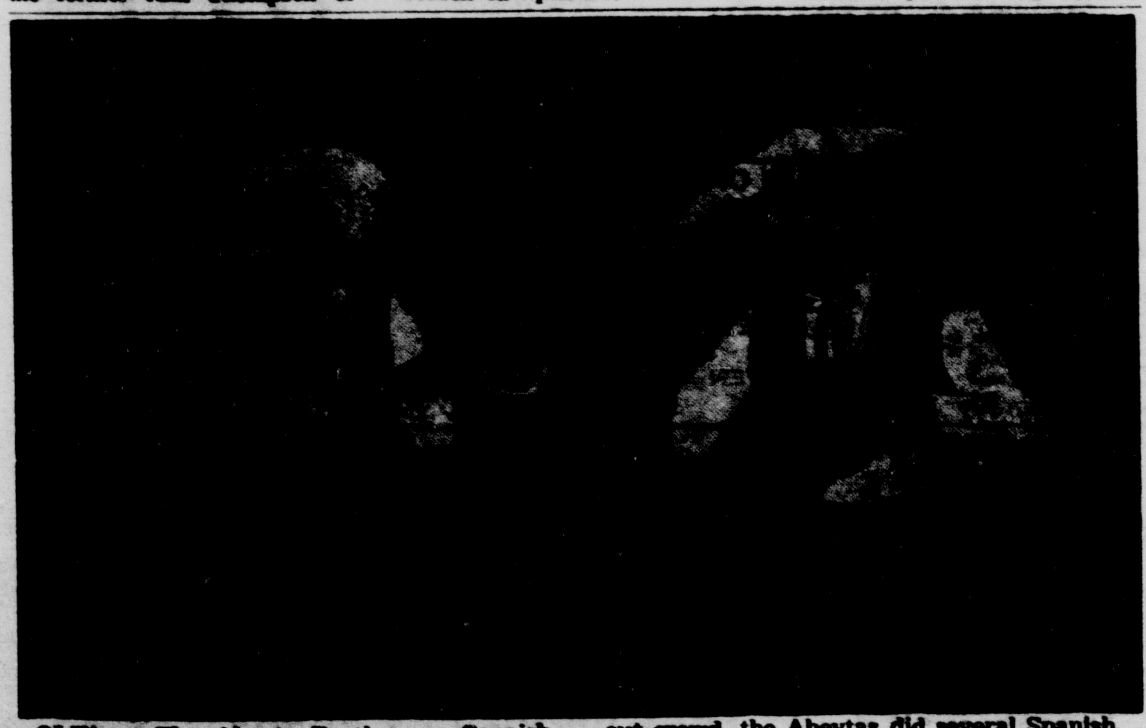
The 34-year-old painter, a native of Davenport, Iowa, regards himself as a craftsman.

Trissel says he is concerned with "the importance of the artist's relationship with the world around him, and at the same time with the importance of making paintings." "There has been too much pretentious literature about the artist and his 'ambitions,' "he says. He thinks there has been too much of the "religion" of art in recent years.

Starting as a child, Trissel always has drawn and painted for fun, but it was not until he was a graduate student of English literature at Colorado State College that he became seriously interested in art. He completed his master's degree in art there and returned to the State University of Iowa where he earned a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Prior to joining the faculty at Colorado College in January of 1964, he was an assistant professor of art at the University of California at Los Angeles. He started his teaching career in 1958 at Beloit College.



OLE! — The Abeyta Brothers, a Spanish Singing Duet who accompany themselves on guitar, made their first appearance in Colorado Springs Saturday in the Acacia Hotel Ballroom. Performing before a sell-out crowd, the Abeytas did several Spanish Folk Songs as well as providing music for a dance. They will be appearing in this city again at a later date.

Years in Minutes

As Naninga in Menotti's "Martin's Lie," Noreen Berry, attractive 30-year-old mezzo soprano, has to look like a 50-year-old woman to whom time has not been kind. For the production, her facial make-up alone took more than an hour. So thorough a job of make-up was done that it took even longer to get it all off—106 minutes, to be exact.

Takes Time

Months are needed to create the lifelike likeness of each film star to be added to the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park, California. After the facial features are sculptured, eyes and teeth are positioned and each human hair must be inserted by hand for the head, eyelashes, eyebrows, and beard.
